COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE,

The Subcommittee met, pursuant to call, at 1:30 p.m., in Room HVC-210 of the Capitol Visitor Center, Hon. Marcia L. Fudge [Chair of the Subcommittee] presiding.

Members present: Representatives Fudge, McGovern, Adams, Hayes, Schrier, Panetta, Costa, Spanberger, Pingree, O'Halleran, Peterson (ex officio), Johnson, Davis, Bacon, Hagedorn, Thompson, Austin Scott of Georgia, Hartzler, Kelly, and Conaway (ex officio).

Staff present: Lyron Blum-Evitts, Jasmine Dickerson, Grayson Haynes, Ross Hettervig, Chu-Yuan Hwang, Anne Simmons, Anna Brightwell, Emily Hytha, Matthew S. Schertz, Ricki Schroeder, Patricia Straughn, Jennifer Tiller, John Konya, Dana Sandman, and Justina Graff.

OPENING STATEMENT OF HON. MARCIA L. FUDGE, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM OHIO

The CHAIR. This hearing of the Subcommittee on Nutrition, Oversight, and Department Operations entitled, An Overview of the Farmers to Families Food Box Program, will come to order. Welcome and thank you for joining today's hearing with the Under Secretary, Mr. Ibach, President and CEO of the San Antonio Food Bank, Mr. Eric Cooper, and the President and CEO of the Mid-Ohio Food Bank, Mr. Habash. After brief opening remarks, the hearing will be open to questions. Members will be recognized in the order of seniority, alternating between Majority and Minority Members. When you are recognized, you will be asked to unmute your microphone, and you will have 5 minutes to ask your questions or make a comment. In order to get to as many questions as possible, the timer will stay consistently visible on your screen.

Good afternoon, and thank you for joining us today for the House Agriculture Committee's first hybrid hearing during this unprecedented time in our nation's recent history. The COVID-19 pandemic has brought with it an economic toll that has left millions of Americans jobless, and without the basic income needed to purchase food for their families. More than 40 million Americans have applied for unemployment as a result of pandemic related job losses. At one point, 40 percent of Americans making less than $40,000 a year lost their jobs. In my State of Ohio, SNAP caseloads increased by 21 percent from February to May. According to Feeding America, which represents 200 food banks across the nation, demand has increased an average of 70 percent.

Many have read the heartbreaking stories about the thousands of people across the country who lined up for miles to receive food, many of them people who had never experienced visiting a food bank. We also heard stories about milk dumping, and backups along the hog and poultry supply chains, forcing farmers to make excruciatingly difficult choices. Congress passed several bipartisan pieces of legislation that were signed into law, and helped expand aid to distressed farmers, rural businesses, and small towns, and provided food assistance to vulnerable children and families. We can all agree that additional help was, and still is, needed to assist our farmers, businesses, and vulnerable people experiencing hardship as COVID-19 cases continue to rise, and the economic damage that comes with that. Today's hearing is focused on the Administration's $3 billion program intended to quickly deliver fresh food to those in need.

On April 17, 2020, Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue announced the creation of the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program, known as CFAP, to provide $19 billion in financial relief to farmers, ranchers, and consumers. This includes $16 billion in direct payments to producers impacted by the drop in commodity prices and the disruption in food supply chains. It also includes the Farmers to Families Food Box Program, which provides $3 billion in fresh produce, dairy, and meat product purchases for distribution through food banks and other nonprofit organizations. However, despite some reports of nonprofits successfully receiving and delivering food to people in need, including in my district, the effort is clearly not working for everyone.

Since the Farmers to Families Food Box Program was announced on April 17, several issues have been raised regarding the program's implementation and delivery. It has been broadly reported that the program fell well short of its initial commitment to providing 40 million boxes of food to food banks, churches, and other nonprofit organizations by the end of June 2020. We have seen reports of companies awarded contracts with little to no experience in the timely sourcing and distribution of food, including nearly \$40 million to a Texas wedding planner. A contractor committed to providing 750,000 boxes of food. To date, it has distributed fewer than  $\frac{1}{3}$  of their promise. Our Ranking Member frequently complains about what he sees as waste, fraud, and abuse in our anti-hunger programs, but I would like to know if he is concerned about the egregious failures in his own backyard.

Some awardees have no prior experience working with food banks, or even wholesale food distribution. Other contract recipients have reportedly spent money on lobbying and PR instead of diverting the money into more food for the hungry. We have heard about inconsistencies in the coordination between distributors and nonprofits on the amount of food a nonprofit can handle, resulting in food spoiling in 90° weather. We have heard from food banks which have historically enjoyed a good working relationship with USDA's Food and Nutrition Service that there are no clear points of contact within the Agricultural Marketing Service to submit complaints or ask questions.

This Committee requested, and to date has not received, any information on how USDA and distributors are tracking which nonprofits are receiving food boxes. USDA has also failed to provide sufficient rationale for how it determined regional food distribution such that Puerto Rico is in the same region as Pennsylvania, and the Virgin Islands is in the same region as Maine. Nor has USDA responded to public criticism by publishing information on how they are ensuring only legitimate and experienced nonprofits participate in the program. In my district in Cleveland, Ohio, our food banks and nonprofits have the benefit of working with a seasoned distributor that has served local emergency food providers for over 100 years. However, if the stated mission of the Families to Food Box Program is not being accomplished everywhere, either through misspent funds, mismanagement, or inconsistent operations, then this program is creating hardships instead of relieving them.

It is clear greater transparency and oversight are needed to shed light on a program designed in the dark by USDA, outside of the farm bill, in the absence of input from Congress, or experienced agriculture stakeholders and emergency food providers. A program intended to feed the hungry that fails to operate consistently and equitably for all people across this nation is unacceptable. That is not good government, and only lends itself to fraud, waste, and abuse of taxpayers' dollars.

Today's hearing is only the beginning. I intend to closely review this program to ensure that it meets its intended policy goals and operates efficiently for all those depending on its promised success.

I will recognize my colleague, Mr. Johnson, but let me just make this one statement, Mr. Johnson. Because we are in votes, and a lot of things are happening, without objection, the Chair is authorized at any time to declare the Committee in recess, subject to the call of the chair. Without objection, thank you.

[The prepared statement of Ms. Fudge follows:]

PREPARED STATEMENT OF HON. MARCIA L. FUDGE, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM OHIO

Good afternoon, and thank you for joining us today for the House Agriculture Committee's first hybrid hearing during this unprecedented time in our nation's recent history.

The COVID-19 pandemic has brought with it an economic toll that has left millions of Americans jobless and without the basic income needed to purchase food for their families.

More than 40 million Americans have applied for unemployment as a result of pandemic-related job losses.

At one point,  $\frac{1}{3}$  of Americans making less than \$40,000 a year lost their jobs.

In my State of Ohio, SNAP caseloads increased by 21 percent from February to May.

According to Feeding America, which represents 200 food banks across the nation, demand has increased an average of 70 percent.

Many have read the heartbreaking stories about the thousands of people across the country who lined up for miles to receive food, many of them people who have never experienced visiting a food bank.

We also heard stories about milk dumping and backups along the hog and poultry supply chains, forcing farmers to make excruciatingly difficult choices.

Congress passed several bipartisan pieces of legislation that were signed into law and helped expand aid to distressed farmers, rural businesses, and small towns, and provided food assistance for vulnerable children and families.

We can all agree that additional help was—and still is—needed to assist our farmers, businesses, and vulnerable people experiencing hardship as COVID-19 cases continue to rise, and the economic damage that comes with that.

Today's hearing is focused on the Administration's $3 billion program intended to quickly deliver fresh food to those in need.

On April 17, 2020, Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue announced the creation of the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program, known as CFAP, to provide $19 billion in financial relief to farmers, ranchers, and consumers.

This includes $16 billion in direct payments to producers impacted by the drop in commodity prices and the disruption in food supply chains.

It also includes the Farmers to Families Food Box Program, which provides $3 billion in fresh produce, dairy, and meat product purchases for distribution through food banks and other nonprofit organizations.

However, despite some reports of nonprofits successfully receiving and delivering food to people in need, including in my district, the effort is clearly not working for everyone.

Since the Farmers to Families Food Box Program was announced on April 17, several issues have been raised regarding the program's implementation and delivery.

It has been broadly reported that the program fell well short of its initial commitment of providing 40 million boxes of food to food banks, churches, and other nonprofit organizations by the end of June 2020.

We've seen reports of companies awarded contracts with little-to-no experience in the timely sourcing and distribution of food, including nearly $40 million to a Texas wedding planner.

Some awardees have no prior experience working with food banks or even wholesale food distribution.

Other contract recipients have reportedly spent money on lobbying and PR instead of diverting that money into more food for the hungry.

We've heard about inconsistencies in the coordination between distributors and nonprofit on the amount of food a nonprofit can handle, resulting in food spoiling in 90° weather.

To date, this Committee has not received any information on how USDA and distributors are tracking which nonprofits are receiving food boxes and how they are ensuring only legitimate and experienced nonprofits participate in the program.

If the stated mission of the Families to Food Box Program is not being accomplished everywhere—either through misspent funds, mismanagement or inconsistent operations—then this program is creating hardship instead of relieving it.

In my district in Cleveland, Ohio, our food banks and nonprofits have the benefit of working with seasoned distributors who have been serving local emergency food providers for over 100 years.

However, a program intended to feed the hungry that fails to operate consistently and equitably for all people across this nation, is unacceptable.

It is clear greater transparency and oversight are needed to shed light on a program designed in the dark by USDA, outside of the farm bill, in the absence of input from Congress, or experienced agriculture stakeholders and emergency food providers.

That is not good government and only lends itself to fraud, waste, and abuse of taxpayer dollars.

Today's hearing is only the beginning. I intend to closely review this program to ensure that it meets its intended policy goals and operates efficiently for all those depending on its promised success.

I now recognize my colleague, Mr. Johnson of South Dakota, for any opening remarks he'd like to make.

The CHAIR. I now recognize my colleague, Mr. Johnson of South Dakota, for any opening remarks he would like to make.

OPENING STATEMENT OF HON. DUSTY JOHNSON, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM SOUTH DAKOTA

Mr. JOHNSON. Thank you, Madam Chair. Good afternoon. Of course, I want to thank our witnesses on both panels for their participation today. When Secretary Perdue announced the creation of the Farmers to Families Food Box Program, I will admit I was excited. This was a way to expeditiously assist producers, some of whom were, as the Chair mentioned, plowing over crops, dumping milk, because of supply chain disruptions, as well as an opportunity to help consumers who had found themselves in circumstances beyond their control, and many of them in very great need.

USDA's promise to purchase fresh produce, dairy, and certain meat products was indeed welcome news, and to date their purchases have far exceeded their own goals. Since May 15, Feeding South Dakota, who I talked to just the other day, has accepted 95,241 boxes. To put that into context, that is more than 1.5 million pounds of food. These boxes have included a combination of produce, fluid milk, protein, and mixed dairy, and, again, my reports from the field are that the quality of those boxes have been excellent. Almost 100 communities throughout South Dakota have benefited from the Farmers to Families Program.

Now, let us be clear, no program, particularly of this size and scope, is ever without growing pains, and indeed I wrote to the Secretary on May 22 to further understand some of the things I was reading, and some of the things I was hearing about. The Secretary responded, explaining everything from the contracting flexibilities under the Federal Acquisition Regulation Part 18, to PACA licenses to further awards, and I thought it was instructive and important data. And here we are, 90 days after the initial announcement of this program, and I get the sense that we are focusing more on the fault in details instead of, at the same time, also celebrating the bold effort, and largely successful effort to feed those in need. What has been accomplished really is worthy of celebration, and that would be true regardless of what Administration is in charge. Farmers to Families works. It has been successful, and it is doing exactly what it was intended to do, connecting farmers to families in need.

But instead of applauding the efforts of the Department and the Administration, we sit here—and, again, I get the sense that we will be cherry picking challenges that certain areas of the country have faced. Meanwhile, and of great concern to me, the other part of CFAP receives almost no attention from this Committee. On April 1, I helped lead a bipartisan, bicameral group of over 140 Members urging targeted, temporary, and equitable relief for cattle producers. And, from what I see, and this has been consistent for weeks and weeks, there has been no greater push for assistance than for cattle country. But the CFAP Program still came up short, as producers who sold livestock after April 15 only received a fraction of those who sold thereafter. As the pandemic carried on, and the situation deteriorated for pork producers, we followed up with other strong, bipartisan letters urging support for producers who had been feeling the economic impact of shrinking shackle space.

We appreciate the hard work of the Department, and I want to make it clear that much of what I am talking about is not USDA's fault. As Congress, we have failed to deliver the resources necessary to properly aid our farmers and ranchers. We had to fight hard for that $23.5 billion, and that was a fight to back the efforts of those who are working so hard every day to ensure our food supply chain remains uninterrupted, and our store shelves remain stocked. And I would like to remind Members, and those viewing at home, that in the early days of the pandemic Republicans asked for $50 billion in dedicated agricultural funding.

My hope is that we can come together and fight for enough funding for agriculture in this next package that is going to need to come together in the next week or 2. We need to provide resources to both extend coverage for our cattlemen who sold at the bottom of the market after April 15, and our pork producers, who creatively found markets for hogs, but many of them, I am sorry to say, suffered huge losses to avoid euthanizing their livestock. A hearing on that topic would be very much welcome, at least by me.

With that, Madam Chair, I yield back.

The CHAIR. Thank you, Mr. Johnson. And, prior to recognizing Mr. Peterson, I just want to make you aware that, in consultation with the Ranking Member, and pursuant to Rule XI(e), I want to make Members of the Subcommittee aware that other Members of the full Committee may join us today.

I now recognize Chairman Peterson for any opening comments he would like to make.

OPENING STATEMENT OF HON. COLLIN C. PETERSON, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM MINNESOTA

Mr. PETERSON. Thank you, Madam Chair, and thank you for your leadership. Mr. Johnson, you as well. As we all know, the pandemic has really exposed a lot of things in agriculture. Not only in production agriculture, but also in the distribution of food, and I hope that we are going to spend quite a bit of time on this Committee following up on that, and trying to get in position where we are not going to have this kind of problem in the future, where we are kind of ahead of the curve, if you will.

Mr. Johnson, I don't know exactly what he was referring to, but one of my concerns—and I appreciate the money that's been allocated out of the CCC, but I just think that this idea that we are going to give more money to the CCC, where we are really having no kind of oversight, no kind of involvement in it whatsoever, is not a good idea in the long-term, because you are basically taking the Agriculture Committee out of this whole situation. One of the things that I am going to—hope we can do is, as we look at ways to deal with these challenges, that we make sure that this money comes out of the CCC to take care of these challenges. I am all for that, but just to have an open-ended check I don't think is necessarily a good idea, and maybe some of the stuff that has happened the last couple years is going to come back and haunt us. Even though it has been a welcome thing, I understand that, and producers needed it, but I am not sure this is the right way for us to go. And we will have discussions about that, I am sure.

When I was back a couple weeks ago, I went over to my local food bank, and I was shocked to find out that their caseload is 57 percent of what it was at this time last year. They are way below what they were a year ago, and it has been that way for 2 or 3 months. And it is not only in my hometown, it is in that whole area. And I said, "Well, what do you think is going on here?" And he says, "Well, we are not exactly sure, but maybe it is the unemployment benefits that are being paid," which are more than—the $600 is more than the average net take home pay of people in my district. They get these $1,200 checks, they get $600 unemployment. Maybe that is it, we don't know; but, we need to look into why it is in our area we are down, and why we have actually more food in there than they can store, and then in Marcia's area, and places like that, we have lines around the block, right? Marcia tried to get into these, so we need to look at what is going on here, and why is there a disparity between different regions of the country, and see if there is something we can do to help resolve that.

In regard to this Food Box Program, I don't know if I have a problem with this, but what I am concerned about is are we, in fact, getting the best bang for our buck with this program? And I talked to the Secretary earlier, Under Secretary, and they are doing competitive bidding, and they claim they are making sure that they get the best price, and we need to do oversight, Marcia, to make sure that is actually happening, look into how this competitive bidding is going, and how much we are paying for some of these things, because my sense is that you are probably getting a better deal through SNAP than we are through these food boxes. I don't know if that is true or not, but we need to figure it out, and need to take a look at it.

The bottom line, though, I mean, we need to make sure that people that are unemployed, people that are having a tough time, have enough food to take care of their kids, that is very important, but we also need to make sure that we don't have bureaucracy getting in the way, or we don't have mismatches in the situation. I was getting complaints from some areas where they said they couldn't get the stuff they were buying from the farmers into the food bank, and found out that there is some kind of a third party in some of these food banks where you can't actually give the money directly—or give the food to the food bank, you have to go through this third party in order to get qualified, and it takes 5 months to do it. Well, does that make any sense, and is that something that we should take a look at as well? I think the Department is doing as good a job as they can under the circumstances. We are in a crisis, we understand that, but let us take this time over the next few months to look at what has been happening, see if there are things that we can do to streamline it, and to make sure that the taxpayers' money that is going into this is spent in the best way.

On top of all of that, the talk about some people complaining about the error rate in SNAP and so forth, I just had my staff pull together information on the food bank system, and in 95 percent of the cases these are self-certified and really, from what I can tell, nobody is checking anything. If people show up, then they get served. In a lot of cases, the income limit, if it even was followed, is 200 percent or 300 percent of poverty, as opposed to 130 for SNAP, I guess that is fine in an emergency, but does that make sense, for us to have such strict rules on one program, and kind of have an open-ended situation on another? I don't know. Maybe that makes sense, but those are some of the things we need to look at.

So, with that, Madam Chair, I appreciate your leadership, and look forward to hearing the witnesses' testimony.

The CHAIR. Thank you very much. I now recognize Ranking Member Conaway for any opening comments he would like to make.

Ms. SCHRIER. Madam Chair? I apologize for interrupting. Several Members of the Committee are not wearing masks. That is required in Committee meetings, and it is a sign of respect, and, frankly, as a doctor, it is a good health practice to have a mask on at a time of a pandemic.

The CHAIR. If all of the Members would please wear your masks? Mr. Conaway, you are recognized.

OPENING STATEMENT OF HON. K. MICHAEL CONAWAY, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM TEXAS

Mr. CONAWAY. Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you for holding this hearing, which, quite frankly, is the first since March the 10th for our Committee. In fact, the Agriculture Committee is the last standing committee to have a hearing since the pandemic started, and that is really disappointing. However, based on my good colleague, the Chairman's remarks about need for oversight across a broad spectrum of things, I am hopeful that that gets translated into a lot more aggressive committee activity so that we could actually get to the answers to the questions that he posed. And, Madam Chair, thank you for breaking the chain of no hearings for a long, long time, so I appreciate that.

We are here today, well, some of us are here. The folks on the screen over there, they are here as well, to—not to discuss the litany of issues impacting farm country that this Committee continues to ignore, but to discuss a program that is popular, effective, and working as intended, a program that is meant to supplement, not supplant, the vast nutrition safety net that USDA is responsible for administering for our friends and neighbors in need. Farmers to Families is doing exactly what the Secretary wanted it to do, connect farmers with families impacted by this crisis. This program not only helped producers who found themselves in the middle of major shifts in the supply chain, but consumers who fell victim to unprecedented circumstances.

I am also frustrated with our witness list today. We have two witnesses whose testimony is darn near identical coming from backgrounds that are almost identical, from the food banks, but we are not hearing from witnesses associated with the hundreds of not-for-profits and community-based organizations out there who have actually been in the fight getting these boxes out to the consumers. I would prefer to hear from somebody like that, as well as the folks that we are likely to hear from. So, that said, I also appreciate Secretary Ibach for coming, and I will look forward to hearing from Mr. Cooper and Mr. Habash when they get here for their panel, but our panel should have been a little broader spectrum for the testimony today. So, with that, Mr. Chairman—Madam Chair, I yield back.

The CHAIR. Thank you very much. And, for the record, you had an opportunity to put a witness on this panel, and chose not to do so. The chair would request that other Members submit their opening statements for the record so witnesses may begin their testimony to ensure that there is ample time for questions.

With that, I would welcome our first panel. I thank you for being here today. At this time I will introduce our first witness, Under Secretary Greg Ibach. The Under Secretary was confirmed by the Senate and sworn in as Under Secretary for Marketing and Regulatory Programs on October 30, 2017. In his role as Under Secretary, Mr. Ibach is responsible for carrying out MRP mission area, which is comprised of the Agricultural Marketing Service agency, and the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service agency. He is accompanied today by Administrator Bruce Summers. Sir, you may begin. You have 5 minutes.

STATEMENT OF HON. GREG IBACH, UNDER SECRETARY, MARKETING AND REGULATORY PROGRAMS, U.S.
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, WASHINGTON, D.C.;
ACCOMPANIED BY BRUCE SUMMERS, ADMINISTRATOR, AGRICULTURAL MARKETING SERVICE, USDA

Mr. IBACH. Chair Fudge, Ranking Member Johnson, as well as the full Committee, thank you for the opportunity to appear before you today to discuss the Farmers to Families Food Box Program. I am Greg Ibach, the Under Secretary for Marketing and Regulatory Programs in the USDA's mission area. With me today is Bruce Summers, Administrator for the Agricultural Marketing Service, the agency which implements the Food Box Program.

Before I begin, Chair Fudge, I want to thank your constituents at the Cleveland Food Bank and the Sanson Company for hosting me in Cleveland to discuss the impact this program has in your community. We were also joined by Produce One and Wiers Farms, two other local food box distributors, and the Grace Christian and Missionary Alliance Church. I am pleased to report what I saw firsthand in your district. As a result of this program, the Cleveland Food Bank is delivering boxes of fresh fruits, vegetables, dairy, and meat to 25,000 newly food-insecure families. The Sanson Company hired, or re-hired, dozens of employees, and the Grace Christian and Missionary Alliance Church shared that distributing boxes to families in need has given the congregation a renewed sense of purpose in these trying times. Wherever I visit, distributors and food banks share handwritten notes from families who consider the Farmers to Families Food Box Program a lifeline during this crisis. I brought several letters today written by families in Cleveland.

Today, I would like to provide you with background of how we formulated the program in its current status and next steps. As part of the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program Secretary Perdue announced on April 17, USDA utilized authority under the Families First Coronavirus Response Act to purchase and distribute up to $3 billion in fresh produce, dairy, and meat products. The program supplies boxes packaged with fresh fruits and vegetables, dairy products, meat products, and a combination box of produce, dairy, or meat products. Local and regional suppliers package these products into family-sized boxes, and then transport them to food banks, community and faith-based organizations, and other non-profits serving Americans in need. This multi-billion dollar program, stood up in a short period of time, addresses three critical needs. One, providing markets for farmers faced with declining demand, and the crisis of food rotting in fields, and not being wasted. Two, supplying food to newly unemployed Americans, and three, utilizing the idle food distribution infrastructure. Employees have been called back to work, and even new employees hired, many of whom lost their jobs in other industries.

Applicants to the program had to demonstrate capabilities regarding commercial experience, business ethics and integrity standards, food safety and/or experience with regulatory audits, inspections, certifications, and approvals, and financial performance. The amounts and locations awarded were based on the offers received, and the evaluation of those offers. I would like to stress two important points. One, all commodities purchased, packaged, and delivered are 100 percent domestic origin, and two, no vendor is paid until proof of delivery and compliance with the contract is confirmed.

Oversight of the program is ongoing. This program assists in safeguarding U.S. taxpayers' funds and ensuring relevant laws and regulations are followed. Audits are performed to ensure that safe, high-quality, domestically-produced products are delivered to food banks and nonprofit community and faith-based organizations. Later this week USDA will announce an opportunity for new and current vendors to submit proposals to utilize approximately $500 to $700 million that will be remaining when current contracts expire.

In summation, tens of millions of boxes have been delivered, resulting in hundreds of millions of meals being provided to Americans in need. As Secretary Perdue has stated on multiple occasions, the program is a win-win-win. While the feedback received by the Department has been overwhelmingly positive, we are constantly evaluating program operations, and inviting input to ensure the program continues to have the most positive impact possible, as we at USDA strive to do right and feed everyone. Again, thank you for the opportunity to be here today. I am happy to answer any questions you might have.

[The prepared statement of Mr. Ibach follows:]

PREPARED STATEMENT OF HON. GREG IBACH, UNDER SECRETARY, MARKETING AND REGULATORY PROGRAMS, U.S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, WASHINGTON, D.C.

Chair Fudge, Ranking Member Johnson, and Members of the Subcommittee and full Committee, thank you for the opportunity to appear before you today to discuss the Farmers to Families Food Box Program (FFFBP). I am Greg Ibach, Under Secretary for USDA's Marketing and Regulatory Programs mission area. With me today is Bruce Summers, Administrator for the Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS), the agency which implements the FFFBP.

Today, I would like to provide you with background on the formulation and implementation of the program, the current status of activities, AMS' contracting and oversight of the program, and next steps.

Background

As part of the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program Secretary Perdue announced on April 17, USDA utilized authority under the Families First Coronavirus Response Act to purchase and distribute agricultural products to those in need. Through FFFBP, AMS partners with national, regional and local suppliers, whose workforce has been significantly impacted by the closure of restaurants, hotels and other food service businesses, to purchase up to $3 billion in fresh produce, dairy and meat products. Specifically, the announced objective of the program was to purchase an estimated $100 million per month in fresh fruits and vegetables, $100 million per month in a variety of dairy products, and $100 million per month in meat products. The program supplies boxes packaged with fresh fruits and vegetables, dairy products, meat products and a combination box of fresh produce, dairy or meat products. Suppliers package these products into family-sized boxes, then transport them to food banks, community and faith-based organizations, and other nonprofits serving Americans in need.

In just a few short weeks, USDA stood up FFFBP as a new and innovative multi-billion-dollar COVID response program to address three critical needs simultaneously: to provide markets for farmers faced with declining demand and the crisis of food rotting in fields and animals being euthanized; the food needs of newly unemployed Americans; and helping put suppliers and distributors back to work. I would like to stress two important points: all commodities purchased, packaged, and delivered are of 100 percent domestic origin and no vendor is paid until proof of delivery and compliance with the contract is confirmed.

Current Status

The first round of purchases, for which $1.2 billion was allocated, occurred from May 15 through June 30, 2020. USDA received approximately 550 bids and awarded 198 contracts just 1 week after the bids were due. During this first round, 35.5 million food boxes were delivered to over 10,000 nonprofit organizations across the United States including Guam, and Puerto Rico. These boxes provided hundreds of millions of meals to needy Americans.

On July 1, 2020, USDA announced the approval up to $1.27 billion in 189 extended contracts and up to $218 million in 17 new contracts to support American producers and communities. In this second round of purchases, the program will purchase $523 million in fresh fruits and vegetables, $288 million in a variety of dairy products, $233 million in meat products and $444 million in a combination box of fresh produce, dairy or meat products.

As a part of the original request for proposal, USDA provided an option for vendors to offer delivery of boxes from July 1–Aug[.] 30. USDA exercised this option for the next performance period, however, vendor performance was critical to receiving a contract extension. Evaluation criteria for contract extensions included successful delivery of promised boxes, product quality, and safety, among other factors. Additionally, some contracts were not extended at the vendors' request or reduced based on information provided by the contractor.

USDA approved up to $218 million in new contracts, via a new acquisition activity, with select vendors whose offers were not previously accepted due to various issues in their proposals. These distributors will help direct food to under-served areas and will have an increased focus on Opportunity Zones in order to direct food to reach under-served areas, places where either no boxes have yet been delivered, or where boxes are being delivered, but where there is additional need. A full, updated, list of current suppliers is available on the AMS website.

As of July 17, 2020, 43.5 million food boxes have been invoiced.

In addition, a survey was conducted during the week of June 22–26, 2020, of contractors participating in the program focused on the impact of their ability to retain, recall, or hire employees and on the extent FFFB[P] helped to offset losses caused by COVID-19 mitigation efforts. Approximately 70 percent of the contractors provided feedback on a series of questions.

Responders were asked to rate the impact of the program on their company using a scale of 1 to 10 with 1 having no impact and 10 having the greatest impact. All 135 responders provided feedback with just over half (55 percent) giving the program the maximum rating of 10. Fully 85 percent rated the program as 8 or higher with 13 percent scoring it between 5 and 7 and just over one percent rating the program less than 3.

Another question sought to gauge the effect of FFFBP on the contractor's ability to avoid furloughs, layoffs, or other such actions. Of the 100 responses received, 72 percent indicated that FFFBP did have a positive effect on their ability to retain staff. Respondents collectively identified that they either retained or created over 5,000 jobs.

When asked if their participation in FFFBP helped them to offset losses caused by COVID-19 mitigation efforts, of the 135 who responded, 95 percent said that it did. Of those surveyed, 96 percent indicated that participation in FFFBP helped them to form new relationships with nonprofit, community organizations, or religious organizations with the same percentage indicating that they intend to maintain these new relationships.

Contracting and Oversight

Utilizing contracting flexibilities provided by Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) Part 18 during an emergency declaration, USDA designed a process to rapidly vet and approve contractors to participate in the program. The vetting process relied on answers to a Request for Proposals. Offerors described the capabilities they had for achieving performance under the contract.

Like other Federal contracts administered by USDA, FFFBP and its awardees must adhere to FAR and other regulations. All proposals were carefully reviewed by a team of approximately 18 contracting and technical experts, and contracts were made accordingly. Proposals for the FFFBP were evaluated by (in descending order of importance) the technical information; past performance of the offeror; the offeror's capability to perform; and the prices offered. The requirement of the RFP was to submit a price per box to the government, which was all inclusive, including product, boxes, assembly of the boxes, and transportation to the distribution site. Prices were evaluated in accordance with contracting regulations to ensure fair and reasonable pricing. Prices per box varies based on size and contents, but the average value is approximately $30 per box. Offerors must have met all criteria in order to be competitive and must have, or be able to acquire, a Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (PACA) license to comply with the contractual requirement. All current contractors have valid PACA licenses.

As part of the proposal, applicants described their capabilities for achieving performance under the contract. Demonstrations of this capability included, but were not limited to, commercial experience; business ethics and integrity standards; food safety and/or regulatory audits, inspections, certifications and approvals; and a demonstration of financial capability to perform. Each vendor awarded a contract provided three past performance references for similar contract/orders completed within the past 3 years (or contracts and orders which were currently being completed). The amounts and locations awarded were based on the offers received and the evaluation of those offers.

Regarding oversight, there are safeguards in place to protect taxpayers' funds and ensure that relevant laws and regulations are followed. USDA provides oversight throughout the contract period, conducting robust audits to ensure food safety plans are followed, that only domestic produce is provided, and that quality products are delivered, among other contract administration matters. Contracts require suppliers to source food from producers, prepare the boxes of items identified in their proposal, and deliver the boxes to nonprofit organizations on a mutually agreeable, recurring schedule, while adhering to the high USDA food safety protocols. Payment is only made upon the submission of an invoice documenting evidence of delivery and adherence to the contractual requirements.

In addition, the Contracting Officer is responsible for monitoring the performance of all contractors. If there are concerns, contractual remedies may be used, which could include termination. USDA has chosen to exercise this right in two situations. As with any new program, evaluations are ongoing to assist USDA in determining whether any adjustments are needed.

Next Steps

The program was designed to put American farmers and distributors of all sizes back to work while supporting over-burdened food banks; community and faith-based organizations; and other nonprofits serving Americans in need. USDA continues to prioritize working with impacted businesses of all sizes and across all regions of the United States, to ensure maximum positive impact of the program during the COVID-19 pandemic.

USDA also understands that challenges and lessons learned have been identified throughout the current program.

Some of these challenges and lessons learned include:

- Last mile distribution and the costs associated with that distribution;
- Nonprofit access to all types of food boxes; and
- Variation in box size and contents.

While I cannot provide specific details on how each of these challenges will be addressed because this is a Federal contract activity, later this week, USDA will announce an opportunity for new and current vendors to submit proposals to utilize approximately $500–$700 million that will be remaining when current contracts expire on August 31.

Conclusion

In the early days of the pandemic in March and April, USDA recognized the impacts to farmers, families, and sectors of the agricultural supply chain and responded by establishing this new program in a relatively short period of time. Tens of millions of boxes have been delivered resulting in hundreds of millions of meals being provided for needy Americans. As Secretary Perdue has stated on multiple occasions, the program is a “win-win-win.” While the feedback received by the Department has been overwhelmingly positive, we are constantly evaluating program operations and inviting input in order to ensure the program continues to have as positive an impact as possible. Again, thank you for the opportunity to be here today and I am happy to answer any questions you may have.

Mr. PETERSON [presiding.] I thank the Under Secretary for his testimony, the Chair went up to vote, and so I will just take care of this until she gets back.

So the question I have regards—one of the questions regards what I talked about earlier, and that is the self-certification issue. Is there nobody from the IG, or from the GAO, or anybody to check any of that stuff? It is all just hearing or taking peoples’ word for it?

Mr. IBACH. The Farmers to Families Food Box Program was authorized by Congress under the Families First Coronavirus Response Act, which I believe was the second Act that was passed to address the coronavirus.

Mr. PETERSON. CARES Act, yes.

Mr. IBACH. Under that, Congress authorized USDA to access such funds as necessary to address the newly unemployed. It does not necessarily fall under the same rules and regulations that FNS’s programs does.

And so it was designed not to need to be means-tested, and so there is a difference there between the Farmers to Families Box Program and the other—

Mr. PETERSON. If we weren’t in this situation, there might be some kind of auditing going on if we were in a normal kind of situation?

Mr. IBACH. At the time that the program was designed, we were hearing from food banks that they were under such need that they didn’t have time to go through income verification, or means-testing, and so it was intentionally designed—

Mr. PETERSON. Yes.

Our discussion we had earlier here about the—how you acquire the dairy, and produce, and so forth, this is all done on competitive bids?

Mr. IBACH. Again, the Section 32 purchases, and all the purchases we make under the other FNS feeding programs are done under competitive bid. The Farmers to Families Food Box Program, because we needed to address getting food out faster, competitive bid wasn’t part of the consideration. It was some of the other factors are they able to prove that they have experience doing this? Are they financially able to do this? Price competitive was not our number one consideration.

Mr. PETERSON. But you must be doing some oversight over that? You are not just letting it be wide open?

Mr. IBACH. We are doing oversight. We do know the average price of each category of boxes. We can compare that to the marketplace. But there is a difference, and we wanted also to be able to free our contractors to be able to purchase from farmers in the region where they were going to be distributing the boxes to make sure the fresh fruits and produce in that region that were being wasted were able to be incorporated into the Food Box Program.

Mr. PETERSON. Under normal circumstances, though, there would be some kind of auditing of that process, the competitive bidding and so forth?

Mr. IBACH. Yes. And as we move forward with the second phase that I suggested in the testimony that we would be announcing later this week, a new competitive process, we are going to elevate the value consideration in our evaluation of those proposals that are forwarded to USDA.

Mr. PETERSON. The gentleman from South Dakota?

Mr. JOHNSON. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman, I appreciate it. Thanks, Mr. Ibach. I want to start by just highlighting some of the positive feedback that I have heard in South Dakota about this program. Of course, no program is perfect, but Ms. Katherine Anderson of Aberdeen sent the following note of thanks, and I will make sure that this gets entered into the record of the hearing. "To Farmers to Families, I am thanking you for the generous boxes I received in Aberdeen, South Dakota. I shared with a divorced friend who cares for an adult disabled son. We were both flabbergasted at the contents of the boxes. It was Christmas in July. Please forward my thank you to any producers, organizers, secretaries, et cetera that you can. You made a whopping difference to this person." Logistically, when I consider everything that the Department has done, that the distributors have done, and that the food banks who ultimately help to finish that last mile have done, it is remarkable. It is remarkable how much food has been sent out there, so thank you for the efforts of the Department.

There has been some data I have reviewed that has shown the disparities, state by state, of how many dollars have actually hit per million people. I think that is been put together by your agency. What drives those differences in numbers?

Mr. IBACH. Excuse me. One of the pillars of the program is that contractors had to offer to participate in the program, and so there were certain regions of the country where less people offered to become our contractors, which created—which we were able to analyze and identify as under-served areas in certain places of the United States. We have gone to direct contracting, and we have invested $218 million in direct contracting to try to address those under-served areas.

Mr. JOHNSON. I know there was a phase two. A relatively small number of new contracts were issued as part of phase two. Did you have any attempts to try to balance some of those regional disparities?

Mr. IBACH. That direct contracting, the $218 million, was used as part of phase two to go directly to those under-served areas. Under phase two we have also extended a vast majority of the original contracts because of the success those contractors enjoyed in supplying food boxes to families.

Mr. JOHNSON. I know it was in your written testimony, which I reviewed, you may have said it when I ran out to the floor to vote, but I just want to highlight, because we have had some legitimate questions about accountability. In your written testimony, at the very least, you noted that a couple of contracts have been terminated, and I suspect there are tools in USDA's toolbox outside of termination that you are also able to use to try to make sure that people are holding up their end of the bargain, is that right?

Mr. IBACH. There were 198 contracts awarded out of the nearly 600 contracts offered to USDA. We had one contractor that, after being selected, decided they did not want to participate, so that contract was terminated. We had another contractor whose circumstances represented in their offer did not hold up after they were awarded the contract, so that contract was terminated. We have had numerous oversight activities on other contracts that were identified as high-risk contracts, or gained media attention to assure that those contracts were being responsibly administered.

Mr. JOHNSON. To shift a half a step in a different direction, sir, I mean, you have been overseeing an investigation for almost a year now on inefficiencies, or disruptions, or concerns in the cattle market. Do you have anything—any updates for us today?

Mr. IBACH. I think that we are nearing conclusion of that process, and we look forward to being able to release a report from USDA in the very near future.

Mr. JOHNSON. Well, maybe after that is released it will make sense for some subcommittee, the Agriculture Committee, to have another hearing, but as long as I have you in the hot seat, I mean, does packers and stockyards—do you all have the resources that would be needed to follow up from anything that would come from that report?

Mr. IBACH. I think that there are going to be several things that come out of that report that Members of the Committee, as well as the industry, will want to consider and discuss, and there may be actions that the Committee and the industry may want to consider as a result of that report.

Mr. JOHNSON. Okay. Well, with the little time I have left, I am sure it is a bill you are aware of, but some of us, in a bipartisan way, have introduced H.R. 7425, DIRECT Act (Direct Interstate Retail Exemption for Certain Transactions Act). I think this is an opportunity to try to make sure that state inspected facilities have an opportunity to sell across state lines direct to consumer. This is, of course, not as flexible as some people want it, but it is laser focused. It is tailored to make sure we don't run afoul of food safety concerns, or of trade concerns with other countries. Any observations that you would have on the DIRECT Act? I mean, we want to try to add more capacity to the interstate system. Did we calibrate our approach right, in your opinion?

Mr. IBACH. That authority would be within Under Secretary for Food Safety, or the Office for Food Safety.

Mr. JOHNSON. Dr. Brashears.

Mr. IBACH. Dr. Brashears, and so it would be more appropriate for her to interact with you on answers to those specific questions.

Mr. JOHNSON. Well, and it won't surprise you at all to know that I have lots of conversations with her, but given your experience in the marketplace, I wanted to try to put you on the spot anyway.

Mr. IBACH. Okay.

Mr. JOHNSON. Thank you very much, ma'am. I yield back.

The CHAIR [presiding.] Thank you very much. I will recognize myself for 5 minutes.

Mr. Ibach, you, in your statement, indicated that you awarded up to $1.2 billion in the first round of contracts. How much money has the Department actually paid out for invoices in that first round?

Mr. IBACH. I will maybe refer to Administrator Summers to give some of those specifics, but first of all I would like to just hit a couple statistics there: 77 percent of the contractors that we entered into agreements with delivered 90 percent or more of the volume they—

The CHAIR. Sir, I only have 5 minutes, I just want to know how much has been paid.

Mr. SUMMERS. At this point—sorry. Good afternoon. At this point we have delivered 35 million boxes at the value of about $900 million.

The CHAIR. Is that what you have paid out? The $900 million that is my question.

Mr. SUMMERS. Yes, ma'am.

The CHAIR. Okay. Second, how is the Department verifying these invoices for accuracy?

Mr. IBACH. Go ahead.

Mr. SUMMERS. The invoices are accompanied with delivery documents showing how many boxes were delivered to which nonprofit organizations. The invoice comes in with an amount, but then has to be backed up by delivery receipts that are signed by the recipient organization.

The CHAIR. Do you have direct contact with the nonprofit organization that is receiving them?

Mr. SUMMERS. Generally not, unless we have a question.

The CHAIR. How many invoices have been rejected?

Mr. SUMMERS. None have been rejected outright. They will be paid once the appropriate documentation is supplied. At one point there were about 400 that we were working on. That number has come down significantly since then. But, again, if an invoice comes in, doesn't have the appropriate documentation.

The CHAIR. So, every invoice that has been submitted to you, you have paid?

Mr. SUMMERS. Basically, yes.

Mr. IBACH. I think it has been possible—

Mr. SUMMERS. There may be a few that are pending payment right now, but not very many, because round one is basically over.

The CHAIR. Okay. Does USDA have a publicly available list of participating nonprofits and/or food banks by the region and supplier?

Mr. SUMMERS. We have that for the contractors, the distributors that we are contracting with. We don't have a publicly available list of all of the nonprofits that are working with the distributors that we contracted with.

The CHAIR. We would like to see that.

Mr. SUMMERS. The list of the contractors?

The CHAIR. Yes.

Mr. SUMMERS. Yes, absolutely. That is on our website.

The CHAIR. Okay.

Mr. SUMMERS. And we could provide—

The CHAIR. It is publicly available?

Mr. SUMMERS. Yes, ma'am.

The CHAIR. Okay.

Mr. SUMMERS. It has been updated now, it is now updated to reflect the new contracts under round two as well.

The CHAIR. Okay. What were the eligibility requirements for individuals to receive Farmers to Families food boxes?

Mr. IBACH. I will let you keep going.

Mr. SUMMERS. We put out a request for proposals, based on a series of criteria, and, as the Under Secretary said, we received 600 proposals in response. We evaluated those criteria on a number of factors, including the ability to partner with nonprofit organizations to deliver food to Americans in need. It also looked at past business experience, financial ability to meet the needs of the program, as well as price. It was a series of criteria that we used.

The CHAIR. So, how do we end up with a wedding planner?

Mr. SUMMERS. Every firm, including that one, provided information in their proposal that showed that they had been involved in the distribution of food, and then had the ability to go out, procure food, pack it in boxes, and deliver it to nonprofit organizations.

The CHAIR. But that proved not to be accurate, didn't it?

Mr. SUMMERS. No, ma'am. They supplied about 500,000 boxes. They did not supply the entire amount of their contract. I think it was 60, almost 70 percent.

The CHAIR. And just to your answer right before this, it is my understanding that on your website you have a list of the suppliers, but not the nonprofits you supplied to?—

Mr. SUMMERS. Yes, right.

We don't have the nonprofits. We have the list of the folks we have—

The CHAIR. I would like to see the nonprofits that were supplied.

Mr. SUMMERS. Okay. We will have to compile that. It is many, many thousands.

The CHAIR. Okay. I yield back. Thank you. I would now recognize Mr. Conaway for 5 minutes.

Mr. CONAWAY. Thank you, Madam Chairman. I have a letter here from Borden Company, which is located in Dallas, and services an awful lot of Texas. I would like to read a couple of comments. "When COVID-19 began making its impact in the U.S., Borden lost approximately 30% of its business virtually overnight due to school and restaurant closures. The contract Borden was awarded through the Farmers to Families Food Box Program enabled us to preserve employment and benefits for our people. The opportunity has reinvigorated our employees to fulfill this important mission of providing nutrition for American families." It also states, "More importantly, Borden has supplied or scheduled donations for nearly 1,000 charitable organizations across the country. By August 31, we anticipate we will have provided more than 11 million free gallons of milk to people in need." Borden, by the way, is in bankruptcy reorganization, but at the same time they are fulfilling this wonderful work. I ask unanimous consent, Madam Chair, to submit into the record the letter, the various social media praises, photos from recipient organizations.

[The letter referred to is located on p. 76.]

Mr. CONAWAY. Thank you, ma'am.

Secretary Ibach, you said that there was a survey done of the contractors on the 22nd and 26th of June. Has the Department given any thought to surveying recipients, recipient entities, those that the Chair has asked to give you a list of? Have you got a survey of those folks to see what insights you might get from them?

Mr. IBACH. As we have had the program develop, have been open to input from the recipient organizations, the food banks, as well as the nonprofits and faith-based organizations, and we have worked with them to help them understand what our contractors are required to do under their contracts, and in some cases that has helped smooth some of the misunderstandings about the delivery, and the coordination between the contractors and those recipients.

Mr. CONAWAY. All right. Do you think a survey of the folks would be helpful?

Mr. IBACH. Yes, we can continue to do that and that would be helpful.

Mr. CONAWAY. Okay.

Madam Chair, the clock is now running, but I will ask one more real quick question. Mr. Ibach, the vaccine bank recently announced some activity there. Would you give us a quick summary? I know that is off topic, but would you give a quick response, since I have you.

Mr. IBACH. Yes. We announced that we invested about $27.1 million of the sums that you had made available in the 2018 Farm Bill. With that, we purchased 47 million doses of foot-and-mouth vaccine. During the negotiation process, we were able to extend the effective date on the vaccine from 5 years to 10 years, so we feel that we almost got a twofer in our purchase there.

Mr. CONAWAY. That was code for the shelf life of the vaccine? When expired, will they sit on our shelves? You will rotate that stock through so that you maintain standard life already, but then at the end of 10 years you will have some program in place to use what was there?

Mr. IBACH. Yes. We have worked with them, and have something that we feel very good about.

Mr. CONAWAY. All right. Thank you. Madam Chair, I yield back.

The CHAIR. Thank you very much. Mr. McGovern, you are recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Thank you, Madam Chair, I appreciate it. Let me just state at the outset that even before this COVID-19 public health crisis we had a hunger problem in the United States of America. And since the onset of the crisis, that hunger problem has gotten a whole hell of a lot worse. In Massachusetts, where I represent, before the COVID-19 public health crisis, more than 600,000 people experienced food insecurity. Recent projections from Feeding America estimate somewhere in the excess of 940,000 people. But despite the Northeast region representing one of the highest numbers of COVID-19 cases in the country, and ten percent of the country's population, we received the second-lowest allocation of any geographic region, only $46 million, or 4.4 percent, of the total $1.2 billion made in the first round of USDA's distributions, and only $57.5 million, less than four percent of the total $1.5 billion awarded by USDA in the second round of distribution.

Mr. Summers, on July 2 the Food Bank of Western Massachusetts, which I represent, wrote you a letter listing some of the challenges that they have experienced with the Farmers to Families Program. Are you familiar with the letter at all?

Mr. IBACH. Yes, we are familiar with, this is Under Secretary Ibach, and I will take this question, if you will indulge me, we are familiar with some of the communication that we have received. We also are familiar with the fact that we did not have as many offers from the Northeast region of the United States as we had hoped that we would, and so that is partially why we were unable to award larger sums to the northeastern portion of the United States. We did invest $218 million to try to address areas that we felt were under-served through direct contracting, where we reached out to suppliers to try to enhance the Farmers to Families Food Box Program in the Northeast. This isn't the only program that we run.

Mr. MCGOVERN. I have 5 minutes, then I get cut off. With respect, I think the view in my state, in New England, that we were not sufficiently provided with the food that, quite frankly, we needed. And so maybe my question should be, how does AMS process feedback from food banks and contractors on how the Farmers to Families Program is going? I mean, what has AMS done to facilitate communication between contractors and food banks to make sure that the program is working as intended? Because the goal here should be to make sure no one goes hungry.

Now, before the pandemic a criticism of the Administration was that they were indifferent to the plight of people who are hungry in this country. I still feel that way, and here is a program that is supposed to provide some relief, and yet it didn't live up to its expectation. I will associate myself with the remarks of Mr. Peterson by saying we ought to be expanding SNAP at this particular point. Unfortunately, that has become a political football, with this Administration, but if you could answer my question, how do you process this, and how do you communicate with food banks, and how do you know whether or not areas are being shortchanged?

Mr. IBACH. We are going to have a new announcement of availability of proposals that we are going to announce later this week that will make available an additional $500 to $700 million. We plan to host a webinar to help contractors that would be making proposals understand the rules, and we hope by doing that we will encourage more participation in the Northeast part of the United States. We also hope to make food available to the northeastern portion of the United States through our trade mitigation purchases that are made available for food banks to order the food that they need, and that they anticipate they need, and we also are working as partners with FNS as they invest the $850 million of additional funding to purchase food that Congress allocated FNS through the coronavirus relief programs that, again, are distributed based on the orders that we receive from the states and the food bank system.

Mr. MCGOVERN. And you received the letter from the food bank, and I am sure from others in the Northeast. Do you follow up? Have you talked to these people? Have you tried to work with them to see where some of the challenges are? I mean, the bottom line is there is hunger in this country, food insecurity, is exploding. This is a humanitarian crisis, and again, any little crumbs that we can get from the Administration to try to address this, we want to make sure that we are utilizing it.

And, I appreciate—do a webinar at some point, but have you been in touch with the Food Bank of Western Massachusetts, or have you contacted any of the food banks in the Northeast? Given the fact that I think we could all acknowledge what was necessary to get there, in order to make a dent into this problem, didn't get there. I mean, is there direct communication like that, or is it just tune into a webinar on a date-certain?

Mr. IBACH. Definitely USDA has multiple mission areas that are working on hunger. FNS would work more directly with those food banks to assess their needs to help them understand the food that is available to request and purchase, as well as AMS would then purchase the food that is being offered and being—offered to and ordered by those food banks. Yes, we are working directly with food banks, as well as state feeding programs to understand what their needs are.

The CHAIR. Thank you. Mr. Bacon, you are recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BACON. Thank you, Madam Chair. I want to just also note here that Mr. Ibach is from Nebraska, one of our favorite sons, so thank you for being here today. You may have mentioned this, but I had to go vote twice, so I apologize if you are repeating this. Can you just explain a little bit how the farmers are compensated? How do you determine the compensation for each box? How does that work?

Mr. IBACH. Most of the food boxes are put together by distributors or contractors that had experience in distributing food. Obviously, that in most cases was not a farmer himself, but it has been encouraged, and was part of the solicitation that they try to source the food products locally or regionally, and so those distributors that are putting together the food boxes would reach out to the farmers themselves to purchase the items to put it in the box.

Mr. BACON. It tends to be a standard rate for whatever the food is?

Mr. IBACH. Yes. They would probably go to the marketplace and look at what the price was, and what the farmer was asking for that.

Mr. BACON. Is there a particular favorite with the recipients? Is there, like, the fastest moving kind of produce, or what is the best ticket item?

Mr. IBACH. I have been to Montana, I have been to Philadelphia, I have been to New Jersey, and I have been to Ohio and looked at food boxes. The Secretary has been even more places and looked at food boxes. There is huge variety. I looked at one in Cleveland yesterday that was being put together that had 15 different items in it. Those items vary each week that they put the box together, and so there is great variety between fruits and vegetables in most of these boxes. And then, as we move into the dairy products, I also saw a box that had fluid milk, cottage cheese, several different flavors of block cheese, as well as yogurt, a lot of variety.

Mr. BACON. One last question. Have you heard concerns, like, the local grocers, does this impact their business? Because, you have the access to the SNAP Program, so is there a little bit of give and take here, or what kind of feedback are you getting?

Mr. IBACH. Actually, there has been some concern, especially in the dairy sector, as the dairy sector struggled at the time that we had milk being wasted, and so the way the program was designed, and the prices that were reflected for cheese and milk at that time were very low. As the distribution system has adjusted, and demand has remained strong at retail, the price of cheese has steadily increased, and so the Box Program actually provides an opportunity for contractors to come to USDA and say, "Hey, the retail market is demanding this product, can we adjust our box," and we have a process to go through to allow that to happen.

Mr. BACON. Thank you very much. Thanks for coming in. Good to see one of our favorite sons here. Madam Chair, I yield back.

The CHAIR. Thank you very much. The chair now recognizes Ms. Adams, for 5 minutes.

Ms. ADAMS. Thank you, Madam Chair. Can you hear me?

The CHAIR. Yes.

Ms. ADAMS. Okay.

The CHAIR. Yes, we can hear you.

Ms. ADAMS. Well, okay. Thank you. Thank you, Chair Fudge, and Ranking Member Johnson, for holding the hearing, and, Under Secretary, thank you for being here.

First let me thank you for the work on this program. Food banks in my district have received over 1 million pounds of food so far. We have a lot of struggling families there, but it is urgent that we help Americans facing food insecurity, and farmers who are hurting because of this pandemic, and that is what the program aims to do. I do have a few questions to ensure that USDA is working to incorporate feedback from folks on the ground.

Now, according to USDA's website, 44 contracts have been issued for the Southeast region so far, totaling about $364 million, and North Carolina vendors only received five of those contracts, totaling about $8 million, which is about two percent of the funding for our region. At the same time, nine contracts totaling $155 million were given to vendors headquartered in states well outside of our region, like Washington, Pennsylvania, and Colorado. My first question is, did the USDA contracting process include any consideration for sourcing from nearby vendors, keeping foods within or close to their home state or region?

Mr. IBACH. Yes, the contracting process did emphasize, or encourage contractors to source food locally, as well as from small and medium-sized producers, or farmers, if you will, and so there was a provision for that. Thank you.

Ms. ADAMS. Okay. Well, nonprofits and food banks participating in the program in my state, they have told me that they are having to pay for the storage and the delivery of perishable foods that they receive. Unlike TEFAP, this program, is providing food without covering any administrative costs, and so that leaves a lot of food banks high and dry, especially those servicing smaller areas with less existing capacity to store large quantities of food. To what extent is USDA able to assist nonprofits and food banks with these challenges, such as the ability to store perishable foods, and procure transportation to pick up the food boxes?

Mr. IBACH. Under this program, the food banks and the non-profits actually are in the driver's seat, and have the power to refuse delivery, and it is incumbent upon the contractor to work with the food bank to be able to take deliveries when they are able to either distribute the food directly, or when they have the storage ability.

Ms. ADAMS. Okay. Does USDA have a mechanism in place for nonprofit food banks to provide complaints or feedback about the suppliers that they are working with?

Mr. IBACH. We have many different points of entry for people to be able to supply USDA with feedback about the program, and we actually welcome the feedback that we would receive, because we want to continue to improve the program, and in some cases the feedback has allowed us to reach out to the contractor to remind them of their responsibility under the contract to work more directly and in a more accommodating fashion with the recipient of the boxes.

Ms. ADAMS. All right. Well, thank you very much. Thank you, Madam Chair. I yield back.

The CHAIR. Thank you very much. Mr. Hagedorn, you are now recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HAGEDORN. Thank you, Madam Chair, I appreciate that. It is great to see the witnesses, Mr. Secretary. Since you are here, I want to reiterate what you know, that our farmers, particularly in southern Minnesota, I can attest to them going through tough times since they closed down the restaurants, and the futures markets went through the tank, and the packing plants were disrupted, so I appreciate what you, and the Department, and Secretary, everybody is doing to help them, but we need to do more, and we are all committed to that, so keep working with you on that.

We have a regional food bank, Channel One, in our district that is distributed about $370,000 worth of food to people. This program is working for folks, and I can also testify on some of the senior nutrition programs that they are working—I was just in Austin less than a couple weeks ago helping to distribute meals at lunch, and they are getting out 500 or more meals just in Austin, Minnesota every day, so it is making a big difference, and we appreciate it.

One of the folks that has been involved in this is Northview Church, which distributes meals into Minnesota, in Chairman Peterson's district, but they write—one result of these events has been the founding of Reach of the Heart, a service-minded entity through which we recently distributed 75,000 pounds of food to those of need of our community, all because of the food provided by Farmers to Families. These events, conducted in June, went a long way toward promoting community unity at a time when civil unrest was stirring in our area. I was pleased that we were able to distribute food to diverse groups, including those who came to the United States from Nepal, Haiti, Sudan, Ivory Coast, and Bosnia, just to name a few.

There are some great stories out there of what is being done. I would like, Madam Chair, to submit this letter for the record, if that is okay? I ask unanimous consent to do that.

[The letter referred to is located on p. 106.]*

The CHAIR. Without objection.

Mr. HAGEDORN. And there is one specific case, Mr. Secretary, that has come before me that I would like an explanation, and it has to do with a vendor in San Antonio. Can you walk me through that a little bit, and tell me how that one was handled? And maybe some of the facts that are out there aren't exactly accurate.

Mr. IBACH. I would assume that you are referencing the contractor that the Chair has referenced several times as well, and so, with that assumption, I won't necessarily say the name, but, yes, we became aware of the concern that surfaced among Congress, among the media about that contractor. We spent time with that contractor to make sure that we re-verified that they were capable of trying to fulfill their contract. We visited their facilities, and talked to the management of that group, and, as a result of that, they had the opportunity to deliver up to 750,000 boxes. They did deliver 500,000 boxes. They were only paid for the amount of boxes that they actually delivered, and so the fact that they maybe came up a little bit short on their numbers, they were not awarded—rewarded financially for not delivering those boxes.

Mr. HAGEDORN. I appreciate the clarification on that. And this is like a lot of different programs that have been authorized and appropriated here recently. Obviously we had a crisis situation, we put things together, rules are written very quickly. We are trying to get, whether it is money or food, out the door and help the American people, and it is good to know that you are going to provide the type of oversight that we need on this to make this right as we move forward. Thank you, I appreciate your testimony, and I yield back.

The CHAIR. Thank you. The chair now recognizes Ms. Schrier. You are recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. SCHRIER. Thank you. And, Under Secretary Ibach, thank you so much for having a conversation with me back in April about specialty crops. I very much appreciated that, and I appreciate your being here today with us. I also want to say that, in my state, farmers and food banks very much appreciate this program. That said, it is very hard to do a program this big from 30,000 feet, and that is really where my questions are going today.

I recently spoke to a medium-sized co-op who has a contract in my state, and he indicated that the USDA is by far his largest customer, and that the Farmers to Families Food Box Program is keeping the bills paid for dozens of their grower members, and that is fantastic. The issue he wanted to raise was the issue of pricing. The price of a box depends on what is in it, and the transportation, and the storage, which incentivizes, essentially, if you have a distributor in Seattle, they can price much more competitively if they only deliver within 50 miles of Seattle, which really leaves our rural communities disadvantaged once again. And so I was wondering, in order to serve our rural communities, and still take into account pricing for these distributors, whether the USDA will give any consideration to changing that policy, or at least to look at distance traveled in evaluating that.

Mr. IBACH. Definitely, for phase one, pricing wasn't our number one consideration because we realized that there were going to be, in rural areas especially, more costs associated with that distribution. Storage and distribution is something that the contractor is able to build into their box price, and when I was in Cleveland yesterday, one of the participants, Wiers Farms, actually gave $1 per box to the food bank itself, or their co-operator that was to aid in the distribution, and that was an eligible expense to be bid into the process. Definitely delivery and storage, and that is why we didn't want to necessarily have them compete against each other just based on price, because that would have made it more difficult for those rural areas to be served, and so we want to continue to try to make sure we are getting value, but not eliminate people, because the overhead costs do vary.

Ms. SCHRIER. But here is another quick question about overhead is that a lot of the small to medium farmers don't have the GAP (Good Agricultural Practices) certification, and they would love to participate. I mean, if the idea is to keep food local, and support our small farmers, would you give consideration to not having to have that GAP certification?

Mr. IBACH. One of our major concerns was maintaining food safety throughout this process. The worst thing that could happen is that we have a food safety slip through this, and make people ill as a result of our distribution program, so we tried to enforce the same food safety standards that we had in place for our other feeding programs to keep that consistency, and also make sure we kept that standard available. I think we would want to continue to elevate food safety as we move through this.

Ms. SCHRIER. That makes sense. If I could ask one more thing, that is one of the reasons, actually, that I introduced a bill called H.R. 6725, the Farmers Feeding Families Coronavirus Response Act, which really gets the state in there, so you could have the non-GAP (Good Agricultural Practices) certified farmers, the small, medium, farmers' market type farmers involved, and you could bring this down to the state level, where they really are used to dealing with small farmers, small food banks. If the program is really about helping food stay local, working with local and small growers and regional distributors, can we give more of this responsibility and ownership to the states? Because I know Washington State's Department of Agriculture could be a very nimble aid in distributing these boxes.

Mr. IBACH. And I worked at the beginning of the program with Director Sandison, and we had some conversations about how he might be able to reach out to some of the people that were awarded contracts to be able to help them understand who in their vicinity might be able to supply him, to try to connect those small and medium sized farmers, or the farmers' market vendors to those programs, and continue to want to do that. There are various programs that USDA has that we are trying to implement and use to cover the whole need that is out there, because the need for food is great.

Ms. SCHRIER. Thank you. I would love to help our small farmers. Thank you very much. Yield back.

Mrs. HAYES [presiding.] Okay. I now recognize Mr. Davis for 5 minutes. Thank you. I guess I recognize myself for 5 minutes.

Thank you, Mr. Ibach, for being here today. I come from the State of Connecticut, and we have been one of the states that was hit hard by COVID-19 in the very early stages. We have seen over 400,000 cases of the virus, and over 4,000 deaths in my state. In addition to threatening the health of our residents, COVID-19 has decimated our economy, and further destabilized Americans' steady access to nutritious meals.

Early in the pandemic I heard from farmers in my district that they were having to dump milk and discard other products due to business interruption with restaurants and school districts. At the same time, I was hearing from food banks that lines were stretching around buildings, while donations were dwindling. The Farmers to Families Food Box Program was billed as a solution to this pressing issue, a way for farmers experiencing those difficulties to partner with food banks, and ensure families were fed. In my district, it is home to many small farmers, rather than the large industrial farm operations that we often hear about. Although our farms have great relationships with local food banks, they were completely left out of this program for a variety of foreseeable reasons. First, not only did the Department's application process have a very short turnaround time for interested contractors, but they conducted a regional open competition process in order to select those contractors once they applied. Mr. Ibach, why did the Department decide to have a completely open regional competition process, rather than one with set-asides for small farmers, minority farmers, or new and beginning farmers who were disproportionately suffering due to the economic crisis of COVID-19?

Mr. IBACH. Implementing the program in a speedy fashion was one of our major considerations because of the crisis that we were hearing from the fruit and vegetable industry about the waste of food occurring there, as well as the waste of milk and dairy products that was occurring. And so, while we conducted webinars, the opportunities to try to inform people about the parameters of becoming involved with the program, it did proceed very quickly, and we know that there were people that weren't able to react fast enough to be able to embrace the program. And we are going to open again another bid process at the end of this week, and we are going to—we are committed to trying to provide informational sessions to be able to help more people be able to bid competitively.

Mrs. HAYES. Okay, good. Is there any opportunity for either set-asides or consideration for small farmers, especially in the Northeast regions like I am talking about? Because an open competition process is just disproportionate, when you think about it, as a regional effort.

Mr. IBACH. Within the bidding, and selection, and evaluation process there was priority given to those contractors that talked about sourcing local and embracing the agriculture that was near their vicinity. While that wasn't a set-aside, we believe it somewhat influenced that ability for those smaller farmers. But, no, we weren't able to provide a set-aside during that first bid process.

Mrs. HAYES. Considering that only about four percent of small farms received access to the program, have you considered doing anything differently with your application process, or even the way, initially you said the turnout was low, but now that you have seen the problems, I understand we tried to implement a lot of things very quickly, but now that we have identified the problems, in the next rollout, have you specifically addressed any of the challenges that are faced by farmers in my community, or small farmers across the United States?

Mr. IBACH. We have tried to adjust the program and the contracting process to be able to meet some of the problems that we identified. We still will not be able to go so far as to be able to implement a set-aside in the time that we have available to get food to people.

Mrs. HAYES. And I guess just the last thing, I would say we have heard a lot of conversation about it today, but I recognize the efforts of the Department to solve a problem that was happening in real time, but you have to understand the concern that we are experiencing when we see that a wedding planner received funds, or access to the program when local farmers, with established relationships to food banks, were left out of consideration. I just hope that in the next phase, or even moving forward, that, now that we have seen it, and we have experienced it, that we can work hard to mitigate the problem and ensure it doesn't happen again.

Mr. IBACH. Yes, and we appreciate that, and we will do that, but also part of the program was to be able to make access available to the most amount of people to enter into the program because we knew that the need was great for people to participate to be able to distribute as much food as possible.

Mrs. HAYES. Thank you. I yield back. I now recognize Mr. Davis.

Mr. DAVIS. Thank you, Madam Chair, and I appreciate the opportunity to be here. Sorry I wasn't ready right off the bat, but here I am. Let me pull my notes out, and I want to tell you, though, Mr. Secretary, it has been great to talk to you via conference call during this pandemic, talk about what the Farmers to Families Food Box Program has done. I was very proud to see, when the first boxes arrived at the Taylorville Food Pantry in my hometown of Taylorville, that we immediately put it out on social media. And I can tell you personally, and you have heard me say this to you via phone call, that the line at the Taylorville Food Pantry in my hometown of 11,000 people has grown exponentially throughout this pandemic. I can't go into town from where I live without driving by and seeing that line on the days that they are distributing, so we appreciate the investment, and we appreciate the opportunity to talk about it here.

Also in my district, Vermilion Valley, a central Illinois produce company, was awarded a contract that has since been extended. It has provided approximately 350,000 boxes to tens of thousands of families filled with locally grown produce and dairy from nearby producers like Ropp Jersey Cheese in Bloomington, Illinois, and also Prairie Farms in my district. John Rollins, their President and CEO, wrote a letter to the Chair and the Ranking Member of this Committee, outlining the many successes of the program, and I would like to ask unanimous consent to submit this letter in its entirety for the record.

Mrs. HAYES. So ordered.

[The letter referred to is located on p. 75.]

Mr. DAVIS. Thank you. These contracts have allowed Vermilion Valley to hire back workers who were laid off due to the lack of business, and to state-mandated closures. It also allowed many of our local nonprofits to continue their outreach in our local communities too. Separately I recently introduced a bill called the, H.R. 6968, Meals on Wheels For Kids Act of 2020, which, like Farmers to Families, would innovate the way we carry out existing programs by creating more partnerships between existing community organizations to deliver healthy meals to kids during the summer months, especially in rural areas, who live miles away from the congregate sites that you have helped to establish. With that in mind, I think these are some innovative solutions that we need.

And, Under Secretary Ibach, a quick question, what are your plans to continue the program? And I know everybody has probably asked what type of funding measures that we can put forth, but how does this program, going into the future, past this pandemic, how does it coincide with our congregate programs, and how can we provide the long-term sustainable funding to continue to get box foods like this, and really integrate it with our senior Meals on Wheels Programs so that we have the volunteers, and we have the outreach already getting into some of our most under-served, inaccessible areas? There is no more time that we have seen the importance of feeding hungry kids. Let us make sure we develop the plans to do it after the pandemic too.

Mr. IBACH. The funding to pay for the Farmers to Families Food Box Program came as a result of the Families First Coronavirus Response Act that was the second coronavirus relief program that Congress passed. In that, Congress provided USDA funds as necessary to implement programs to feed Americans that were in need. We feel, and Congress, you would feel the same way, that that money expires with the fiscal year, and so the $3 billion that we have invested, or committed, or asked for so far, $1.3 million of which, about $900,000 was actually requested in payment. We had about the same amount of money that is in the second phase that has been authorized, and we plan on trying to take bids to fulfill or invest the rest of the money that would have food boxes going out through the month of October. After that, we wouldn't have funding available without authorization from Congress.

Mr. DAVIS. As—okay. Well, I understand that. On an annual basis you are going to get an appropriations, but how can we work together to make the feeding programs in the post-pandemic work even better, especially in the rural areas, where we know so many kids are still left behind because they don't have that congregate opportunity? Let us continue to work together to come up with some solutions, because it is not about just feeding kids who can come to the congregate centers, which do a great job in my larger communities, but I know there are a lot of communities that don't have gas stations, they don't have grocery stores, they don't have food in their fridge when those kids are home for the summer. So let us work together and integrate some existing programs. And with that, Madam Chair, I yield back.

The CHAIR [presiding.] Thank you. The chair now recognizes Mr. Panetta, for 5 minutes.

Mr. PANETTA. Thank you, Madam Chair, I appreciate this opportunity to be here to have this hearing. Gentlemen, thanks for being here. I appreciate it as well. Thank you for dealing with the ups and downs of this pandemic, be it this hearing, be it the administration of the CFAP, so I appreciate that.

Secretary Ibach, it was good to talk to you about a month ago where we were able to talk about the CFAP, and the USDA's release of the CFAP, so I appreciate that opportunity. I am also glad that both of you are here today so that we can, obviously, learn more about how the USDA has administered the purchase component of the CFAP. And that being, obviously, the Farmers to Families Food Box Program. Given the obvious unfortunate realities of this pandemic, that box was—obviously heartened many people, and we had high hopes for it. However, from my conversations, as you are hearing today, and as I am sure you have heard over and over, there are some significant issues that clearly need to be addressed, and that is why I appreciate having this opportunity to talk to you today. But obviously, as my good friend Mr. Davis just said, we want to be able to work with you on it to make it better, because we do know that there is a lot of potential there for it to be better, and for it to help so many people of all backgrounds.

Now, the issue that I have heard over and over is based on the fact that this program is centered around distributors, and this has led to some serious issues, logistical issues, as well as some issues of equity as well. And by asking distributors to reach out to food banks and other nonprofits, it seems that there were certain vulnerable communities, our most vulnerable, that weren't getting the necessary distribution of these types of benefits. In some cases we felt like we were working against, rather than with, existing local relationships, and that led to a failing to address critical last mile issues to ensure that the food actually got from the farmer to the family. But, like I said, I do appreciate all the work that you have put into this program, and I do want to work to help to share some stories from my communities, and ultimately make this program better and stronger. We all do, and that is definitely one of the main purposes of this hearing.

Under Secretary Ibach, can you speak to how USDA worked to ensure equitable access to this program? Not just across regions, but within certain communities?

Mr. IBACH. I think that is an area that, in the speed that we tried to roll out the program, putting emphasis on the things we did, the capability of actually the contractor to pack a food box, acquire food, pay for food, and do that, and expected them to identify those people to distribute through or to work with through the distribution that some contractors did a great job of trying to blanket the areas. Others picked the easy fruit, and that is an area that we could work together with the contractors, as we identify people that want to participate, to try to point them in the future, and do better there.

Mr. PANETTA. Was there any sort of focus on under-served areas, and how you would actually distribute to those particular areas?

Mr. IBACH. Probably not specifically the way you are asking. Once we did see the contracts that were awarded, and evaluated where they planned to distribute, we were able to identify regions of the country, or states, or parts of states that were under-served, and so we took steps. We allocated just recently 16 different contracts representing $218 million that we directly went out and made direct contracting with, not through an offer system, to say, please serve those areas.

Mr. PANETTA. I got you. The program is not formula-based, correct?

Mr. IBACH. No.

Mr. PANETTA. Okay. Now, is it possible, and you may not have this now, but could you provide a breakdown of the funding that went to each food bank or nonprofit within each region?

Mr. IBACH. We would be able to provide a breakdown, very easily, of which contractors participated in the program. We would have to go to the contracts themselves to extract the specific food bank or nonprofit that received those, if they were enumerated in the contract. They could have just been enumerated as eligible recipients, but we could do polling to figure out who all received food.

Mr. PANETTA. Understood, understood. Now, one thing I have realized in going out and visiting each of my food banks basically every week and helping with the food distribution is not all food banks, even in my district, are the same. Some have, like, Monterey County has a food bank cold storage of 30,000' capacity, whereas San Benito County doesn't have one nearly close to that big. Did you guys take that into account in working with distributors, and how they would bring certain types of food to certain food banks?

Mr. IBACH. One of the things that we have identified as something that we need to continue to work on is communicating to the food banks, or to the recipients of the boxes, that they actually have the power within this equation to tell the person that is contracting with us to put together the food box what they want, when they want it, and how they will take it. They do not have to provide the cold storage, or the last mile distribution if they don't want to, but it would affect the ability of the contractor to put together the number of boxes they offered us, and they are only paid based on the boxes that they actually deliver successfully.

Mr. PANETTA. Understood. I am out of time.

The CHAIR. Thank you.

Mr. PANETTA. Gentlemen, thank you. I yield back.

The CHAIR. Mr. Thompson is not with us. Mr. Scott, you are recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. AUSTIN SCOTT of Georgia. Thank you, Madam Chair. Gentlemen, thank you for being here today, and I want to tell you, more has gone right than wrong with the food distribution in the last several months. Nobody could have prepared for this, unless they had already been through it before, and we haven't been through this before. I want to give a lot of credit to a couple of people. Chef V in Tift County Schools, Ms. Vanessa Hayes, she did a wonderful job of keeping people fed. We have also got a great mission there called Peanut Butter and Jesus. Tony McBrayer would be embarrassed that I mentioned his name with that, but I will tell you, in Tift County, and the key to feeding especially the kids was the coordination among the school systems and the other not-for-profits that were out there working. And so, if you had a community that was a close—that was close, within walking distance to school in Tift County, those who had vehicles and were carrying—would carry the food into the other communities, and that is something that I am very proud of my hometown and my local community, for how they worked together with the school system and the other not-for-profits to carry out the mission.

I am also proud of Second Harvest. I know that something was said about the accuracy of the food box distribution. And, obviously, this is a pretty big food bank, and when they pack those boxes, they are packed with canned fruits, canned vegetables, rice, other things. All that we would buy and feed our family, but not necessarily, but it wasn't fresh, it was all packaged. One of the things that they asked for, and were given, that helped expedite the food delivery was the simple waiver of the signature when they hand somebody a box, that you don't have to sign saying that you are eligible. And I can tell you, as many people as we had in my part of the world that were needing those boxes, where literally we had the Georgia National Guard out handing out the boxes, the ability to hand the family the box, and then to let them drive on off in their vehicle, it helped expedite the process. Whatever the error rate may be is much offset by how fast it allowed us to get people the food. And I can tell you the majority of the people in those lines that were long enough would not have waited had they not needed the food, whether they were technically eligible for it or not, so I appreciate that.

The difference I see in the farmers' market boxes, that is exactly what anybody with unlimited resources, if they went into the fanciest grocery store in America, would buy and take home to feed their family. And so I looked at those boxes, went to Atlanta with Secretary Perdue, I was very proud of what was happening there too. At the same time, it breaks my heart to know that dairy farmers that I know were dumping thousands of gallons of milk. Vegetable farmers literally couldn't get paid enough for the labor to harvest the crops. And what we have to do is recognize we have had a tremendous supply chain breakdown in this country, and we need to make sure that we learn from that.

And I want to say one final thing. The American farmer gets about 10¢ on the dollar of what we spend on our groceries. When you look at the price of the current commodities that are sitting out there today, I think that we have the potential of widespread bankruptcies among the American farmers over the next several months if something is not done in the next coronavirus package. Corn is \$3 a bushel. I mean, 5 years ago it was \$6. If you look at the price of cotton, if you look at every single commodity group out there, everything we eat starts with the farmer. And of what has been done in the \$4 trillion that has been either done by the Fed, or done by us in Congress, the American farmer, of that \$4 trillion, it was somewhere around \$20 billion total. Now, you do that math, and that comes out to about  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1 percent, if I am not mistaken. And so I am very concerned that, as we go forward through the end of the year, if there is not a bounce back in commodity prices, and we haven't done something as Congress, that we are going to go into the 2021 year with a lot fewer farmers, and a lot fewer people planting those crops that we depend on, regardless of what your income level is.

With that, Madam Chair, I appreciate what you have done, I appreciate this Committee and the work on feeding people, and as I look forward, I hope that we learn from the challenges that we have been through.

Mr. IBACH. Thank you, sir.

The CHAIR. Thank you. Mr. Costa, you are recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. COSTA. Thank you very much, Madam Chair, for this important Subcommittee hearing, and to be sitting in on—just to take off on our last colleague's comments, in H.R. 6800, HEROES Act (Health and Economic Recovery Omnibus Emergency Solutions Act) we do have an additional $16½ billion to provide support, which would put us, the way I add numbers up, from what we have done thus far, about $40 billion in total, although I have told the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Perdue, that somewhere in the neighborhood of 60+ as we try to do a safety net over the next year, because this is going to last for the next year. Anybody who thinks otherwise is fooling themselves. Included in that is funding for farmworkers for safety, and those workers, essential workers all of them, in our food processing facilities, whether they be our meat, poultry, or whether they be in packing houses, or other processing facilities. Without the workers, we can't provide food on America's dinner table, and we must be mindful of that. The workers are essential, and we know the parlance.

But, I want to talk about the issue of the regional disparities with the Food Box Program. We think in the West there has been not as much access to meat and dairy. Half the West's allocation was in fresh produce. Of course, we grow half the nation's fresh produce, so that is to be understood, but we are also, in California, the number one dairy state, with 20 percent of the dairy production. I have been, anecdotally, hearing some people say on the Food Box Program that, while we produce a great deal of milk products, that they are selling milk there that is produced in Oregon. And I like Oregonians, but we have had our own supply problems.

The contractor contact information publicly available to producers to get in touch and work collaborative with getting the products included in the box has been lacking, even though the program was advertised to help producers in the first place. What, under the lessons learned, can you see that we can do that? And, if there is a second allocation of CFAP 2.0, will that be included in the Food Box Program?

Mr. IBACH. First of all, to maybe address your question about dairy, that is probably, if we looked at the categories of boxes, that would be the category of boxes that are least fulfilled, based on what we had allocated to those contractors.

Mr. COSTA. Are we looking to address that in the second round?

Mr. IBACH. Part of that, though, isn't necessarily that they failed to execute their contracts. Part of it is the marketplace changed, the price of milk and cheese changed, and the retail industry pulled those products out of where they were accessible to our contractors, and demanded them in the retail space. And so we need to figure out how we provide the necessary dairy products, but also not disrupt the regular marketplace. And so we are working on that, and we continue to want to do that.

Mr. COSTA. And we have experiences where we have large experienced packers and shippers that have tried to apply, but we have only had one mid-sized shipper that got a contract in our area. Are you trying to provide greater opportunities for that to happen?

Mr. IBACH. I think that is partly providing more time for people to apply, and their—and to put together their proposals. Also we plan to do at least two webinars, I believe, in the upcoming bid process to help people understand the program. I think some of the—

Mr. COSTA. My time is going.

How about under the Good Agricultural Practices, that certification progress? Many feel—burdensome for farmers to get a chance to participate.

Mr. IBACH. GAP certification is part of a food safety concern that we have to make sure that we continue to assure that any products distributed would be safe.

Mr. COSTA. You looking to make any adjustments?

Mr. IBACH. I think that food safety will continue to be a priority and emphasis.—

Mr. COSTA. It should be.

Yes. I don't think anybody disagrees there. On the USDA requirement program, the offer should describe it is intended to engage small farmers for those farms servicing local and regional interests. My concern is that there really hasn't been metrics that have been engaged here, and I don't know how you can re-evaluate the effort without some level of metrics to evaluate how and what assurances are provided. What are you looking for in trying to develop in this next effort?

Mr. IBACH. Some of the other Members have asked, we do set-asides for small or medium. We set some incentives within the contracting process for them to source locally, which we thought would help with that. But the main focus of the program was to put a program together quickly that got food out quickly, and so attending to all those details was impossible.

Mr. COSTA. But are you looking at which farmers are helping in what region by region basis, in terms of trying to make sure that that product is being available?

Mr. IBACH. We try to set within the contracting parameters encouragement for them to source locally when possible. Understanding that, at the time the program started, California and the South had great access to crops that were growing in the fields. The northern part of the U.S., obviously, their season is behind, they didn't have the same access at that time.

The CHAIR. Thank you. The gentleman's time has expired. Thank you, Mr. Costa.

Mr. COSTA. Thank you, Madam Chair.

The CHAIR. Mr. Kelly, you are recognized for 5 minutes. Mr. Kelly, you are recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KELLY. Thank you, Madam Chair. The Ranking Member mentioned Borden Dairy. I want to bring light to the fact that Extra Table, an organization in Mississippi, relayed that this is the first year in its history that it was able to provide fresh milk to the food banks and soup kitchens it serves throughout Mississippi.

First and foremost, Mr. Under Secretary, thank you for taking the time to come to my home state in November of 2018 and 2019. We appreciate your time and interest in the commodities that we grow in Mississippi. I also appreciate you taking time to be here today.

Farmers to Families works, and my colleagues have pointed this out repeatedly. I would like to switch gears and talk a little bit about other areas of CFAP that are important to my state. We appreciate the work that USDA is doing to implement the intent of Congress in helping our farmers and ranchers feeling the impact of COVID-19 on their operations throughout CFAP. This program has been a lifeline for many farms that have been dealt a horrible blow. One of your USDA mission agencies, Agricultural Marketing Services, is heavily involved in working with the Farm Service Agency, as they implement the specialty crop segment of this important program.

The sweet potato industry in Mississippi is a major economic engine in our state, located mostly in my Congressional district. Many of my sweet potato farmers had contracts to sell the 2019 crops to wholesalers and restaurants that were canceled before April 15 due to the impact of coronavirus, and now they have no market to sell their produce. USDA has told these farmers that they do not qualify for CFAP because the potatoes did not perish immediately because they were in storage at the time. As the 2020 crop is quickly approaching, these farmers are about to have to destroy their 2019 crops in storage to make room for their 2020 harvest seasons. To me, it makes no difference whether it perished at the time, or there is no market, and we have to throw it away. Can you tell me if USDA will re-look at this rule and do what is right by my farmers in my district?

Mr. IBACH. There was the original prices that we were able to analyze to determine loss or damage, and we published those to make those crops eligible. Since then there has been a NOFA process, where different commodities could apply through the NOFA process. I don't know where we are at, necessarily, I apologize, on sweet potatoes, whether or not their NOFA has been completely analyzed, and what determination has been made. I will get back to you on that.

Mr. KELLY. Yes, and please do, Mr. Secretary, because the net effect is they had potatoes, they store for a long time, but the next crop is coming in, which means they eat the entire year's crop, and so any help, I mean, that meets the intent of what we are trying to do with CFAP, and sometimes our rules and regulations, and we have to look and, listen, I have been in the Army a long time, and I have been around government bureaucracy, and sometimes we look at things, but we have to get to the intent of the law, and I would really appreciate that.

I do thank you for your service. It is working. It is not perfect, but I appreciate you being on the conference calls, and being here today, and visiting my state. You guys are doing a great job, just keep it up, unless—as an old general told me a long time ago, General Scott, who was the Assistant Division Commander of the 1st Cavalry Division, he said, “Good, better, best, good get better, and better get best.” And, Mr. Under Secretary, we hope USDA will keep getting good, better, and best. And thank you, and I yield back.

The CHAIR. Thank you. Ms. Spanberger, you are recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. SPANBERGER. Thank you, Chair Fudge, for allowing me to waive onto the Subcommittee today for this important oversight hearing. Mr. Ibach, I want to thank you by expressing my appreciation for the speed with which USDA implemented the Farmers to Families Food Box Program. Not only has the program alleviated food waste, but it has helped those facing food insecurity receive aid at this critical moment. That said, I am concerned about some of the ways in which this program has been implemented, and on June 15 I sent a letter to Secretary Perdue regarding the geographic disparities present in the program’s rollout during the first wave of contracts. Madam Chair, I ask unanimous consent to enter a copy of that letter, and the June 29 response from Secretary Perdue, into the record.

The CHAIR. Without objection.

Ms. SPANBERGER. Under the first rounds of awards, Virginia received nearly 3 million fewer pounds of food than would have been expected if the program had been administered under the formula utilized by TEFAP, which distributes food relief proportionately to a state’s needs. While it is my understanding that the agency is doing more to address these discrepancies, I was concerned to see that not acknowledged is one of the challenges and lessons learned that you identified in your testimony. For my constituents this issue is a looming one, and remains so, and according to USDA provided statistics, Virginia remains near the bottom of states in terms of food delivered per person.

I know many of my colleagues have asked about this question so far today, so I don’t want to revisit some of the discussion, and I thank you for bringing forward your answers to their questions. But I do want to specifically ask, why did USDA elect not to utilize a need-based formula like the one used under TEFAP when distributing this aid?

Mr. IBACH. That is an excellent question, and it was a new program that, from inception, or our first thought about it, to when the first food box was being distributed was about 40 days and 40 nights, Bruce likes to say, with an intended reference there. But, we did it quickly. Our concern, or our wonder was who would apply, would we have a sufficient amount of contractors that wanted to participate in the program? And so, rather than set regional or state thresholds, we wanted to be able to get food out.

As a commodity farmer, I realize that a bushel of displaced corn, whether it is sold out of Nebraska or sold out of California, is a bushel of displaced corn, and it works the same way in the fruit and vegetable industry. And our goal was to get food circulating in the system to try to stabilize prices for farmers, to try to stop waste, and have food moving as we fed families. And so it was imperfect in its design, but our goal and intent was pure, and I hope noble.

Ms. SPANBERGER. Thank you very much for that answer. And, following up, to be clear, I appreciate the program very much. It has helped many hungry Americans, as well as farmers and producers, but to follow up on the discussion, and in your answer you were discussing the concern about who might apply, what contractors might apply to participate in the program. Before the rounds of contracts went out, did USDA conduct any outreach to individual food banks, or food bank networks, to assess their needs, level of increased demands, or any other concerns? And, recognizing the 40 days, 40 nights, now that the program has been implemented, we have a little bit of time and space, what has USDA done since then with any additional outreach to food banks, including those particularly hard impacted, under-served areas?

Mr. IBACH. We did reach out, as we were designing the program, to the fruit and vegetable industry, to the dairy industry, to understand how they might perceive this type of a program to work for them. We also worked with them as they reached out to food banks to say, "We would like to work with you on this program." We had conversations with food banks as well in that process. We have learned a lot in the input we have had as we have gone through this. Part of it is the education process for understanding that the people receiving the boxes, that wanted to participate in distributing the boxes, had more power in that process than sometimes they exerted, and we want them to continue to know that they do have the ability to influence their service, and how they are served, by accepting or not accepting the boxes.

Ms. SPANBERGER. And, Mr. Ibach, thank you for being here. I am running out of time, but I do want to implore you that, in the future, to engage a little bit more aggressively than what we have seen in the immediacy of the crisis, particularly with food banks and our food bank networks. From what we are hearing in Virginia, that would be really helpful on the ground. Thank you for your work thus far, and I look forward to seeing greater contact with those entities. Thank you.

Mr. IBACH. Well, we definitely wanted to engage food banks, but we also wanted to provide opportunities for community-based organizations, faith-based organizations, and other organizations that we knew would be in contact with needy people to be able to participate too on a level field with the food banks.

Ms. SPANBERGER. Absolutely. Thank you, sir.

The CHAIR. Ms. Pingree, you are recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. PINGREE. Thank you very much, Madam Chair. First, thank you for holding this hearing. It has been a great opportunity to hear how this program has been working. And, to Secretary Ibach, thank you for being with us today, and to your many answers for questions. I wanted to start by saying I share so many of the things that my colleagues have already said, questions too that you have answered. I, like Mr. Peterson, think we should have just done a SNAP increase all along. It would have been more efficient, and certainly it allows more dignity for the families who are allowed to go shopping on their own. I also had hoped that we could have just directed this money to the food banks. They are better able to deal with many of the problems that we have been talking about today, and also to make sure, when it comes to procuring from the farmers, that they know who to get their food from. Maine, as you know, and we have heard from other New Englanders, did not get any food in the first round, and we are able, thank you, to have another round, and so now we do have two contractors serving Maine, but we are still third from the bottom on the list in number of customers served, and that continues to be a concern. I hope that progress can be made in that, given that there are now more contracts.

I want to just focus my concern on the farmers. Part of the reason this program is there is because of the huge challenges with the supply chain that many others have mentioned, and the idea was to make sure that farmers who had big surpluses were getting their food into these boxes. Also, as you mentioned, there was criteria in making sure that local farmers were able to participate. We have heard a lot about that not being followed, and so one of my questions is whether you have data on who was actually awarded, who did the contractees purchase from? I know you have said, and I know that was part of the criteria, that they had to look at local and engaging small farmers, but we don't have any data at this point to know if that happened. Do you collect that data? Is there more information we could receive?

Mr. IBACH. We have not collected that data as part of our verification process at this time. I do know anecdotally, when I was at the different places that I visited that actually had a growing seasons that was harvesting, that there has been an attempt made by those people constructing the boxes to include local fruits and vegetables at that time.

The contract does not require them to tell us who they are purchasing the food from. We can survey to be able to, and many of the cooperators and contractors are very cooperative about working with us, and being transparent, and helping us understand how they put together their boxes. They are very proud of their boxes in many cases, and so we could do some work there over time to help understand that better.

Ms. PINGREE. Well, thank you for that response. I guess I would just put in a plug for the Committee to ask for that, and for you to consider doing that. And perhaps in future contracts there would be an appropriate way to have some oversight on that, because, again, this program was based on making sure that where we had surpluses, that food was going to go into these boxes, and in my region, one of the things we are particularly concerned about is we have a lot of small to medium-sized farmers who weren't able to get the direct assistance due to a whole variety of things, and the seasonality of their harvest, and so it didn't work into the money that came from the USDA, so this seemed like a pretty good opportunity for them to be able to supply this food. I would encourage you to do that surveying so that we can look into the future, have a better idea of how much local food was accessed, and also to make sure that, where there was the greatest need and oversupply, it was going to the right places.

Just one other thing that we heard from some of the food banks. Because local farmers weren't as engaged, and many of them procure from local farmers for their food banks, and have funding for that, there have been certain amounts of oversupply as the food is now coming in through the food boxes because it is not calculated to sort of take into account what is plentiful in our area at the same time, so I guess I want to mention that. I also just will use my last 20 seconds to put in a plug for something that other Members have asked for, and that is to understand better what non-profits and food banks did get this food to make sure that they were all legitimate, using criteria, but also it would be important information to have out there so that people in need who wanted to access the food banks knew where to go. And, since that is not readily available, I hope that that will be something else you provide. With that, I yield back, and I thank you, and I thank again the Chair for having this hearing.

The CHAIR. Thank you very, very much. We want to thank you for your testimony today. Mr. Johnson, do you have any closing comments?

Mr. JOHNSON. Yes, a few things, thank you, ma'am. First off, I would just say continue to use your audit and accountability functions to make sure that we are getting a good result. I mean, I have heard from the field concerns about that last mile delivery system by the distributor, particularly in rural areas. Some of these folks bit off maybe a bit more than they realized, so continue to make progress on that.

For my colleagues that are calling for, that we shouldn't have done this box program, we should have done SNAP, well, SNAP is a tremendous program, and it has a huge role to play here, but it is important during these unprecedented emergency times that we deploy a diverse set of tools. SNAP is incredibly helpful. We know that SNAP has scaled. We know that six million more people got on SNAP from February to April, and we know the spend is up, so SNAP can meet a portion of this demand, but it can't meet it all, we have been talking about farmers dumping milk. They weren't dumping milk because there wasn't demand. They were dumping milk because traditional distribution systems were broken. As we have talked about, the food supply chain was strained, and in some ways broken, and if we wanted to reduce food waste, and we do, and if we want to drive down hunger, and we do, we couldn't just rely on the same grocery store system that was strained and was breaking.

And so, to those of you at USDA, you provided another diverse set, or another opportunity to help producers, and to help hungry Americans. And you talk about 40 days and 40 nights, and as you alluded to, some of those nights probably were working nights rather than resting nights, and in the days since then your efforts have made a real impact. I will just close by saying this. There is still tremendous economic uncertainty in farm and ranch country, and throughout America for families. That economic uncertainty is lower today than it would have been but not for your efforts, so thank you.

The CHAIR. Thank you, and I will close as well. I just am confused about the people who sit on the other side of the aisle. They are just being so nice about there being no accountability. We have no idea whether these people have done what they were supposed to do, but they are all, it doesn't cease to amaze me the hypocrisy that I listen to. When I ask about accountability in another program, they will say it is freedom, just freedom. Now, that doesn't count when people are hungry or needy, this whole freedom idea. We talk about less government. Now we have more government than we have ever had. We create a whole other bureaucracy. We tell them what they can and cannot eat in SNAP. Now we are going to give them what we want to give them in boxes. I am confused, I really am, because I do not understand how they can sit here straight-faced and tell you how wonderful this is. We have no idea what you are doing, nor do you, because you can't answer the questions.

So, I would just suggest if we are going to continue to do this program, at least be able to give us some answers. Who is getting the food? Are they giving them rotten food, which is what I am hearing in some of these instances. Are you paying for somebody to really give it to people who should have it? We have none of those answers. This is fraught with waste, fraud, and abuse. And so I am hopeful just as we go forward that you can at least give us some of the answers we asked you for today, and understand that even people who are poor or who are hungry still have dignity, and they should be allowed to buy and feed their families what they choose.

And so, I would think that you might want to think about maybe just increasing SNAP a little bit more. We have kids who are not in school—not that I think it probably is that bad because you don't allow us to put nutritious food into schools—but we want less government.

With that, I will close and end this panel. Thank you so much.

Ms. HAYES. [presiding.] The Subcommittee will stand at recess pending technical issues.

[Recess]

Ms. HAYES. The recess is ended, the hearing will come to order. Mr. Cooper?

Mr. COOPER. Yes, ma'am?

Ms. HAYES. Hi. Thank you. Please begin with your testimony.

STATEMENT OF ERIC S. COOPER, PRESIDENT AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER, SAN ANTONIO FOOD BANK, SAN ANTONIO, TX

Mr. COOPER. You bet. Thank you. Distinguished Members of the Committee, my name is Eric Cooper. I am the President and CEO of the San Antonio Food Bank. I am one of the food banks in the Feeding America and Feeding Texas food bank networks. I serve a large section of southwest Texas, where I have the privilege of partnering with well over 500 different nonprofit charities, of which the majority are faith-based organizations. We also work with school districts and other organizations in feeding, pre-COVID, about 60,000 people each week. Now, at the onset of the COVID-19 crisis that number moved to 120,000 people a week. Now, we feed those families through our partner pantries, and then our pop-up distributions. It is these pop-up distributions that the truck to trunk model was based on. They are significant events, and take lots of logistics. You could imagine the coordination of bringing some extra gas and gas cans for cars that run out of fuel, jumper cables for cars that break down, making sure that you have hydration stations in the heat of south Texas, port-a-potties, lots and lots of volunteers, and then serving thousands of families. I want to thank our local Congressional delegation, who has shown up in big ways to help us with these distributions, and our outgoing Congressman Hurd has loaded a lot of trunks, and he will be missed.

When I am at those distributions, and see the great work that is coming from our community to feed these families, I check in with our staff and volunteers, but then I walk the lines to greet the families. Many of these families lost their jobs in our hospitality industry. One couple met at the hotel where they both worked. They were called in to work on the same day, and let go. They and their three children, not knowing how they are going to nourish their kids, were in that line to get food.

The program to rescue the food service supply chain and to help families should be applauded. I am personally grateful for USDA in initiating this program because I do believe it is a huge success, but there is some opportunity to tighten up, some opportunity to improve, and in two specific areas it would be in equity and accountability. When it comes to equity, it is equity between those that got food and those that didn't, equity between those that got paid and those that didn't. Some areas got a lot of produce, some got zero. Some got dairy, some got none. Having no distribution plan, with just a thought to work with any 501(c)(3), seemed a little willy-nilly. It does not honor the planning and logistics that go into these last mile distributions, the food safety that goes along with it, and the expenses. Many Feeding America food banks had to raise funds from private philanthropy to support this public program.

Specifically, when it comes to accountability, food banks in the Feeding America network know how to read a bill of lading. They understand audits. From many of the contractors there wasn't significant data on the bill of lading to know what you would be signing for and what you were not. Working with a local contractor here in San Antonio, we struggled to meet basic things, like labeling. Some of the protein boxes, which should have been a diverse variety of protein, contained five 5 pound boxes of peppered chicken labeled for commercial use. Families didn't know the heating instructions. We had to reach out to the manufacturer, which was in California, to get heating instructions to include in all the boxes we distributed.

Oftentimes details come down to the corrugated box. The box didn't have enough air, so the produce rotted. Onions competed with cantaloupes, and many of the cantaloupes were rotten. We wish the contractor would have substituted those cantaloupes with some of those sweet potatoes mentioned earlier, or they just pulled out the cantaloupe. More opportunity to get families out of the parking lot and into grocery stores is ultimately what is needed, and this will happen when the economy strengthens, and people go back to living wages. But until then, I would encourage boosting SNAP 15 percent. The heat of south Texas has families struggling in these parking lots, and we would all be better served to move them out of these parking lots and into grocery stores, where they can shop for the nutritious food.

Thank you so much for the opportunity to share some thought on this matter. From all of us in San Antonio, muchas gracias.

[The prepared statement of Mr. Cooper follows:]

PREPARED STATEMENT OF ERIC S. COOPER, PRESIDENT AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER, SAN ANTONIO FOOD BANK, SAN ANTONIO, TX

Coronavirus Food Assistance Program's Farmers to Families Food Box Delivery to Nonprofits

Dear Chair Fudge, Ranking Member Johnson, and distinguished Members of the Committee:

Thank you for the opportunity to share testimony on our experience with the Farm[ers] to Families Food Box Program. My name is Eric Cooper. I am the President and CEO of the San Antonio Food Bank, in San Antonio Texas. I represent one of the food banks in the Feeding America and Feeding Texas networks. We serve a large section of Southwest Texas where we provide food to well over 500 organizations and programs.

At the onset of the COVID-19 Crisis, we went from feeding 60,000 people per week to now feeding 120,000 people a week. The reality of the demand was captured in a photograph in the San Antonio Express News of our April 5th distribution at Traders Village. Over 10,000 families struggling to get food needed help. It has been this unprecedented demand that food banks across the nation have been working hard to feed.

It has taken an unprecedented response to meet that demand and we are grateful to the Companies, Foundations, Churches, and Individuals who have donated and volunteered. Their immediate action helped to bridge the gap until the public support started to arrive. I want to thank our Local Federal Delegation for volunteering at our distributions and advocating for support. Had it not been for the Texas Department of Emergency Management, FEMA, and USDA we would have run out of food.

Meeting this demand has been a daily challenge. Food insecurity is getting worse as unemployment rises across the country as more and more states look at needing to close again. Feeding America's research team has projected an additional 17.1 million individuals will be food-insecure in 2020 as a result of the economic fallout from COVID-19.

The San Antonio Food Bank, and the entire food bank network, is grateful for the additional funding for TEFAP, TEFAP Storage and Distribution, Pandemic-EBT, and SNAP emergency allotments provided in the Families First and CARES Act. This has immensely helped food banks and those they serve in communities across the country, and in particular the additional food will help provide a backstop this fall and winter.

Food banks across the country viewed USDA's announcement of the Farmers to Families Food Boxes as an innovative solution to the supply chain challenges many growers and producers are experiencing due to COVID-19, and a solution that would also help connect additional food with communities in need. USDA took a chance on standing up an entirely new purchasing system in a very fast turnaround time to address the food that many farmers were forced to plow under as buyers canceled contracts.

However, this haste did cause some unevenness in the bidding and contracting process. Many contractors did not have time to identify and negotiate distribution and delivery agreements with nonprofits ahead of time. This led to some speed bumps once contracts were awarded to avoid duplication of deliveries in certain areas. It also resulted in food banks shouldering more of the distribution burden than USDA had intended. Many food banks have hired additional staff, rented warehouse and refrigeration space, and rented trucks to handle the additional food. Other food banks have not been able to afford to invest in these additional capabilities and have had to turn some of the food offered through the program down due to lack of capacity.

Bolstering TEFAP will also help to offset deep declines in retail and other food donations, especially as food banks face extra costs related to new food delivery models that align with guidance from health professionals. With the increase in food moving through the network from USDA's Food Purchase and Distribution Program and the [Farmers] to Famil[ies] Program, a strain is being placed on the food bank infrastructure.

The San Antonio Food Bank cannot work alone in providing the support our community needs during this critical time. We need an increase in SNAP to help with the increased demand. SNAP has proven to be key to safeguarding the food security of Americans who are low-income in times of need for decades, and its strength is unparalleled. Strengthening SNAP will help make the program even more responsive to the economic downswing the nation is presently facing. It will assist in moving families from our parking lots and into grocery stores.

To meet this increased level of need it is crucial that funding be included in future legislation that increases access to food through SNAP, TEFAP, and child nutrition programs.

On behalf of Feeding America and Food-Insecure Families we ask:

- Increase the maximum SNAP benefits for all recipients by increasing the Thrifty Food Plan by at least 15 percent for as long as the economy is weak. This will help food banks that are seeing large increases in demand and also will help promote economic stimulus during this economic downturn.
- Increase the SNAP minimum benefit from $16 to $30 for the duration of the economic downturn.
- Extend Pandemic-EBT authority provided in earlier legislation to ensure USDA has the authority needed to continue this important program through the summer and into the next school year as needed.
- Provide $500 million for TEFAP food purchases to follow the increases included in previous legislation as well as funding for storage and distribution needs to help our food bank network continue to meet the unprecedented demand in our communities.
- Provide $543.25 million for food bank infrastructure capacity needs to support the rental, lease, or purchase of essential assets such as refrigeration and transportation equipment across the network of food banks and partner distribution agencies.

Recommendations for Improving CFAP

We applaud the investment of $3 Billion to procure surplus agriculture, strengthen food industry vendors, and feed families. Not having a strong distribution plan and allowing awarded contractors determine who and how much each nonprofit [501(c)(3)] challenged the equity and accountability of the Farm[ers] to Families Food Box Program.

- Food Access: We recommend that USDA expands the reach of the program so that all communities and states are able to participate equitably in the program. Several states were left with few to no food boxes while others received one type of box (i.e., produce) while receiving none of the other varieties (i.e., dairy and meat). This could also create opportunities for national and local partners with experience distributing food.
- Contractor Support and Compliance: We recommend that USDA increase technical assistance to contractors to ensure familiarity with USDA contract requirements and successful execution of the contract. Some contractors have experienced difficulties that fall into these common areas:
  - The contractor did not secure agreement with nonprofits for all the food they are contracted to deliver prior to submitting a bid.
  - The contractor does not have the equipment needed to deliver to distribution sites. This negates the ability of the contractor to provide “Truck to Trunk” delivery to distribution sites and means the food bank must take on the expense to do so.
- “Last Mile” Distribution Costs: We recommend that USDA support contractors in accurately assessing commodity and delivery costs. Many contractors may not have known the true distribution costs in the initial plans submitted to USDA; allowing consideration of additional expenses will help contractors either shoulder more of the distribution costs as USDA intended in the RFP or compensate nonprofits for the last mile delivery to clients. This will increase the reach of the program.
- Local Coordination: We recommend that USDA encourage contractors to strengthen coordination with food banks and other nonprofits. We have seen many instances where contractors do not coordinate among the “network” of nonprofits for delivery, resulting in some smaller nonprofits receiving food they cannot safely distribute or store and then asking the food bank to urgently pick up perishable food that has not be handled according to proper food safety guidelines.

Closing Ask of USDA/Congress

- We encourage the Committee on Agriculture along with USDA to ensure the Farmers to Families Food Box Program can provide a nationwide resource to individuals during this crisis and can provide food to communities in need through all four phases of the program (May–December) as announced by USDA in April.
- We also encourage USDA and Congress to continue the success of other USDA food purchase programs like the Food Purchase and Distribution Program, which has provided over 2 billion pounds of nutritious food to food banks over the last 2 years. Unfortunately, this food is slated to end in December 2020, creating a very large “commodity cliff” that will result in a significant reduction in food purchases for food banks. We believe another year of a planned food purchase program would provide U.S. growers and producers as well as food banks certainty and a steady supply of food to assist families and individuals in need.

Thank you again for allowing me to give written testimony on our direct experience. We are grateful to the Committee and USDA for making sure families are nourished.

May God bless you all for serving our great nation in this time of need!

Ms. HAYES. Thank you very much for your testimony. Mr. Habash, please begin when you are ready.

STATEMENT OF MATT HABASH, PRESIDENT AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER, MID-OHIO FOODBANK, GROVE CITY, OH

Mr. HABASH. Thank you, and good afternoon, Members of the Committee. My name is Matt Habash, and I serve as the CEO of the Mid-Ohio Food Collective, one of the largest hunger relief organizations in the country, and the largest here in Ohio. We serve a blended footprint of 20 counties in central and eastern Ohio, which includes urban, rural, and Appalachia. Over the past year we have served about 600,000 of our neighbors and distributed almost 75 million pounds of food through a network of 680 partner agencies. From March to June we distributed almost 30 million pounds of food, a 30 percent increase in comparison to the same time last year. We also had over 396,000 visits, including nearly 25,000 new families who have never asked for help before—all made possible by the fact that 95 percent of our agencies remained open.

To highlight our relationship with the USDA, this past fiscal year we distributed almost 20 million pounds of food through TEFAP, CSFP, and ESFP. This is a testament to our partnership, and a strong one. Thank you, also to Under Secretary Ibach, who visited us yesterday to see our work. To date, we have received 42,590 boxes, about 1.1 million pounds of milk, dairy, vegetables, and fruit. I never got offered the meat that Eric did. We are scheduled through August 2020 for 95,000 boxes and 2½ million pounds. While coordinating deliveries in all 20 counties, we are particularly focused on the rural counties. All the pre-planning in this program for us was around identifying a single agency in the 18 counties that we have outside of central, or right here in Columbus for local distribution. Unfortunately, that didn’t happen.

We are grateful to the suppliers and USDA for the amount of, and the quality of, the products. CFAP has also helped in supporting our food as health strategy to provide nutritious food to customers as part of an overall health care. Along with ensuring less food waste, the efficiencies of having food packed and ready for delivery is key to a touch free system to mitigate COVID-19 exposure. Transparency, there have been certain issues with the program. Not all distributors can pack and deliver the food as promised. When there are coordination issues, it increases costs to food banks for storage and distribution, straining the resources of food banks even more when already working hard to provide the rapid response to the 30 percent increase in demand caused by COVID.

And also concerning is the fact it has been inequitable, in access, in process, and in distribution around the country. Frankly, many vendors are failing to adhere to their contracts, creating logistical difficulties, and contributing to the inequity. In addition, utilizing nonprofits outside of the food distribution chain adds to coordination issues and creates confusion, and I would say you heard a lot already in the earlier panel about safety, and we are equally concerned about that as well. Moving forward it is incumbent on USDA to strengthen its communications with partners to streamline the process and ensure success, a goal we all seek. In my written testimony I have included national information to provide a larger context.

In short, incorporating more streamlined coordination, transparent communications, and deeper accountability of the program will go a long way in our collective efforts to help feed families who are struggling to put food on their tables. Looking at hunger relief overall, we know the most efficient way to address food insecurity during this crisis is to increase SNAP benefits. Increasing the SNAP Thrifty Food Plan by at least 15 percent, and a minimum benefit from $16 to $30 for the duration of this public health threat will provide economic boosts while fighting food insecurity. Extending the P-EBT authority into the next school year, and extending the multiple waivers and declarations tied to all anti-hunger programs will help ensure access to food for families. Providing an additional $500 million for TEFAP food storage and distribution will help food banks continue to meet unprecedented demand. And providing an additional $540 million to support acquisition of essential equipment will ensure safe food receipt and delivery. It is also imperative that National Guard deployment at food banks continue. The pandemic decimated our volunteer base that was 13,000 strong, and committed nearly 75,000 hours of service in our facility.

We are ready to help expand the CFAP's reach. Our recommendations are, one, focus on strengthening food access. This is not an equitable program. You heard from many parts of the country who got a lot of food, and other parts of the country who got next to none. Provide clarity on distribution costs and responsibility of contractors. When it says truck to trunk, that means take it to the site that it is supposed to, not give it to the food bank. We don't—necessarily can say no because of the fact that some food banks don't have the resources to transport the food across their service territories, especially given what is going on right now. And continue to provide contract oversight to encourage contractors to coordinate the work among nonprofit pantries to avoid duplication of services.

We encourage Congress and the USDA to ensure this program provides food for all four phases of the program. We stand ready to support, and on behalf of the 600,000 people we help, thank you.

PREPARED STATEMENT OF MATT HABASH, PRESIDENT AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER, MID-OHIO FOODBANK, GROVE CITY, OH

Coronavirus Food Assistance Program's Farmers to Families Food Box Delivery to Nonprofits

Dear Chair Fudge, Ranking Member Johnson, and distinguished Members of the Committee:

Thank you for the invitation to testify at today's hearing on how USDA's Coronavirus Food Assistance Program's Farmers to Families Food Box Program is working in Ohio. My name is Matt Habash and I serve as the CEO for the Mid-Ohio Food Collective, the largest hunger relief organization in Ohio. To put our work in context, the Mid-Ohio Food Collective, a customer-centric organization, is comprised of five assets: Mid-Ohio Foodbank (its anchor asset), Mid-Ohio Pharmacy, Mid-Ohio Farm, Mid-Ohio Kitchen and Mid-Ohio Markets—all intended to meet customers where they are. As the 12th largest food bank in the country, we serve a blended footprint of 20 counties in central and eastern Ohio that includes urban, rural, and Appalachian areas. Over the past year, the Mid-Ohio Collective served about 600,000 of our neighbors, distributing a record high, almost 75 million pounds of food through a network of more than 680 partner agencies.

Since the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic, our food bank has seen continued and unprecedented demand, like our partner food banks across the country. As so many Ohioans are seeking food assistance for the first time in their lives, the Mid-Ohio Food Collective is working in whole new ways to connect nutritious food to struggling families, displaced workers, children who depended on meals at school, isolated and health-compromised seniors, and to homeless men, women, and children. Since the beginning of March through June 30, 2020, we have responded to 396,367 visits across our 20 county urban, rural, and Appalachia footprint, including, providing a rapid response in serving an increase of 24,783 new families seeking nutritious food to feed themselves and their families. Additionally, our food bank has distributed 29.04 million pounds of food from March through June, a 30 percent increase from the same period last year, breaking record after record in food provided to our neighbors and will end its fiscal year with a distribution of more than 73 million pounds of food. Based on the current trajectory, we expect food insecurity to continue to rise as the coronavirus continues to greatly impact our day-to-day lives. According to research projections by Feeding America, our service area will most likely experience a 38 percent increase in food insecurity due to the economic impact of COVID-19.

While we have taken aggressive steps to ensure an adequate supply of food, such as early acquisitions and utilization of offsite storage units, we understand that COVID-19 is a marathon as well as a sprint, and that we need to secure business, community, and government partners to meet and sustain what we know will be a significant increased demand for food—the most fundamental of basic needs. COVID-19 has caused unprecedented supply chain disruptions as consumers shift to preparing and eating food at home. This has resulted in significant food loss from farmers, dairy producers and other food producers as consumers shelter-at-home, purchasing more food from groceries, and restaurants that normally purchase their food have experienced significantly reduced demand or have closed. Due to these disruptions in the supply chain, it is critical that the Federal nutrition programs continue to be well-funded and strengthened in order to serve our customers and food-insecure children, seniors, veterans and those struggling with disabilities nationwide. The increases and program flexibility changes in the CARES Act and Families First Act in TEFAP, SNAP and the child nutrition programs meant that we are able to serve our neighbors in safe and effective ways.

USDA and food banks frequently work together to connect surplus food with individuals and families in need when USDA makes market support commodity purchases through Section 32 and distributes the food through The Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP). Last year, USDA commodities from Section 32 market support purchases, the Food Purchase and Distribution Program, and TEFAP entitlement funding provided in the farm bill resulted in 20.283 million pounds of food distributed through our food bank. This is the backbone of our food supply, and without TEFAP and USDA foods, we would not have been able to respond as we did to the increased need caused by COVID-19. USDA's announcement of the Farmers to Families Food Box program in May meant we would have an even greater ability to get nutritious food onto the tables of those individuals and families who need it most.

CFAP Experience at Mid-Ohio

We are incredibly grateful to have partnered with USDA over the decades to ensure that no one in our communities go hungry. Regarding CFAP specifically, we have worked with select partner food agencies in our service area to distribute the CFAP food boxes. To date, we have received 42,590 boxes equaling 1.115 million pounds of food, receiving our first box on June 1st; through the next round of scheduled deliveries for July–August, we expect to receive and distribute 95,710 boxes equaling 2.515 million pounds of fresh food. We have largely focused on our rural and Appalachian counties, identifying a key agency in 18 of our 20 counties to distribute the food boxes. Both the partner agencies in our network and our customers appreciate the amount and freshness of the food. The CFAP initiative has been helpful in supporting our “food is health,” strategy—a high-value, low-cost healthcare solution—to enhance access and provide nutritious food to our customers. Along with ensuring less food waste, the efficiencies of having the food packed and ready for delivery has been key as we continue with a “touch free” system to mitigate COVID-19 exposure for associates and customers.

Having said the above, there have also been a number of “hiccups” with the program—namely around program coordination, accountability, and communications. Not all distributors are able to pack and deliver the food as promised and while the food is appreciated, it does not account for health concerns including allergies and other common issues. Where there are coordination issues for packing and delivery of the food, it actually has increased cost to the food banks for storage and transportation, straining valuable resources. Moreover, more accountability to ensure that the right food is getting to the right place at the right time by the right entity will not only strengthen the program but will give added confidence in the intention behind the program. Moving forward, it will be incumbent on USDA to be transparent and more robust in their communications with all partners engaged in the program in an effort to streamline the process and ensure the program’s success—a goal that we are all seeking to reach. If the CFAP program was administered via existing, experienced networks within USDA, these frustrations would most likely have been mitigated and the program overall, would have been more efficient and realize more substantive results.

National Information

It’s also important to note that we do not work in isolation to address food insecurity in Ohio or across the country. The Mid-Ohio Food Collective is a part of 13 food banks serving the state of Ohio, and the 200 Feeding America-affiliated food banks in the United States, working to serve the communities in which they live. Food banks have seen an increase in demand during the COVID-19 pandemic, with an average increase of 60 percent, and are experiencing similar challenges and hurdles as you have heard here today. From March 1 to May 24, the food banks in the Feeding America network distributed an estimated 1.3 billion meals to people facing hunger in the United States.

CFAP has created another option to get food to individuals across the country, and to provide additional support to growers and producers who are hurting due to the disruption in the food supply chain. As with any new program this one has experienced some challenges as reported by a number of food banks from the program’s onset. Some food banks have confirmed a lack of nationwide access to food, particularly in rural areas thereby reducing the reach of CFAP into rural areas that have been affected by the pandemic. Other food banks are successfully working with local producers to get fresh produce to food banks. Additionally, the consistency of the contractors of CFAP has led to varying degrees of success nationwide. Contractors in some regions have struggled with providing truck to trunk services and may have never been a part of a large-scale food distribution before. Overwhelmingly, the food banks that are receiving food through the Farmers to Families Food Box Program are thankful for the additional food provided and ask that USDA continue to provide nutritious food for food-insecure individuals and families and continue to improve this program to assist individuals for the duration of the year.

This program has the opportunity to play a crucial role alongside TEFAP and SNAP to feed families we serve every day, while also supporting U.S. agriculture.

Key Recommendations for the Next Stimulus Package

The food bank network is a critical part of the response to hunger in our country, but we also know that the most efficient way to address food insecurity during this crisis is to increase SNAP benefits for the duration of the economic recovery. Before COVID-19, for every meal the Feeding America network of food banks distributed on average, SNAP provided nine. In these uncertain times, SNAP can help people immediately while also providing an economic stimulus to local economies, helping people and communities get back on their feet so they don't have to rely on charitable or government assistance any longer than necessary.

- Increase the maximum SNAP benefits for all recipients by increasing the Thrifty Food Plan by at least 15 percent for as long as the economy is weak. This will help food banks that are seeing large increases in demand and also will help promote economic stimulus during this economic downturn.
- Increase the SNAP minimum benefit from $16 to $30 for the duration of the economic downturn.
- Extend Pandemic-EBT authority provided in earlier legislation to ensure USDA has the authority needed to continue this important program through the summer and into the next school year as needed.
- Provide $500 million for TEFAP food purchases to follow the increases included in previous legislation as well as funding for storage and distribution needs to help our food bank network continue to meet the unprecedented demand in our communities.
- Provide $543.25 million for food bank infrastructure capacity needs to support the rental, lease, or purchase of essential assets such as refrigeration and transportation equipment across the network of food banks and partner distribution agencies.

Key Recommendations for Improving CFAP

With any new program, there are opportunities to improve. We are ready to help expand the program's reach through partnerships between experienced food industry providers and food banks across the U.S. Although the Farmers to Families Food Box Program is meant to be a temporary program lasting May–December to address critical food supply chain imbalances, we stand ready to work with USDA and contractors on ways to strengthen this temporary program.

Our suggestions to USDA are to focus on strengthening food access, provide clarity on distribution cost and responsibility of contractors, and continue to provide contract oversight to encourage contractors to coordinate among nonprofit partners to avoid duplication of food distributions.

- Food Access: We recommend that USDA expands the reach of the program so that all communities and states are able to participate equitably in the program. Several states were left with few to no food boxes while others received one type of box (i.e., produce) while receiving none of the other varieties (i.e., dairy and meat). This could also create opportunities for national and local partners with experience distributing food.
- Contractor Support and Compliance: We recommend that USDA increase technical assistance to contractors to ensure familiarity with USDA contract requirements and successful execution of the contract. Some contractors have experienced difficulties that fall into these common areas:
  - The contractor did not secure agreement with nonprofits for all the food they are contracted to deliver prior to submitting a bid.
  - The contractor does not have the equipment needed to deliver to distribution sites. This negates the ability of the contractor to provide “Truck to Trunk” delivery to distribution sites and means the food bank must take on the expense to do so.
- “Last Mile” Distribution Costs: We recommend that USDA support contractors in accurately assessing commodity and delivery costs. Many contractors may not have known the true distribution costs in the initial plans submitted to USDA; allowing consideration of additional expenses will help contractors either shoulder more of the distribution costs as USDA intended in the RFP or compensate nonprofits for the last mile delivery to clients. This will increase the reach of the program.
- Local Coordination: We recommend that USDA encourage contractors to strengthen coordination with food banks and other nonprofits. We have seen many instances where contractors do not coordinate among the “network” of nonprofits for delivery, resulting in some smaller nonprofits receiving food they cannot safely distribute or store and then asking the food bank to urgently pick up perishable food that has not be handled according to proper food safety guidelines.

Closing Ask of USDA/Congress

- We encourage the Committee on Agriculture along with USDA to ensure the Farmers to Families Food Box Program can provide a nationwide resource to individuals during this crisis and can provide food to communities in need through all four phases of the program (May–December) as announced by USDA in April.

- We also encourage USDA and Congress to continue the success of other USDA food purchase programs like the Food Purchase and Distribution Program, which has provided over 2 billion pounds of nutritious food to food banks over the last 2 years. Unfortunately, this food is slated to end in December 2020, creating a very large “commodity cliff” that will result in a significant reduction in food purchases for food banks. We believe another year of a planned food purchase program would provide U.S. growers and producers as well as food banks certainty and a steady supply of food to assist families and individuals in need.

Making real progress towards reducing COVID-19’s impact on food insecurity will require investing new resources toward increasing access to food and allowing flexibilities within existing programs. I encourage the Committee on Agriculture along with USDA to ensure the Farmers to Families Food Box Program can provide a state by state, nationwide resource to individuals during this crisis and can provide food to communities in need through all four phases of the program as announced by USDA in April. I also ask Congress to strengthen Federal nutrition programs like SNAP and TEFAP for families affected by this public health crisis. It has been my honor to testify today on behalf of everyone we serve through the Mid-Ohio Food Collective and all of its assets. We look forward to working with this Committee to ensure no one goes to bed hungry. I look forward to answering your questions.

Thank you.

MATT HABASH,
CEO, Mid-Ohio Food Collective.

The CHAIR [presiding.] Thank you. Let us see, where are we? We will now begin Member questions. We will begin with Ms. Adams. You are recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ADAMS. Thank you, Madam Chair.

The CHAIR. I am sorry, 3 minutes, Ms. Adams. 3 minutes. Thank you.

Ms. ADAMS. Okay. Can you hear me? Thank you. Thank you to our panelists today. I have heard from North Carolina nonprofits and food banks, and, despite the Farmers to Families Food Box Program being billed as a truck to trunk, vendors are not necessarily storing and distributing the food provided, so, as a result, these banks have been handling the logistics of solving the costs of storage, et cetera. Are your organizations handling the distribution and storage of the food boxes that you have received, and have they, in terms of participating in the program, had any impacts on their orders and other programs? Can you hear me?

Mr. HABASH. Yes, I could hear you.

Ms. ADAMS. Okay.

Mr. HABASH. This is Matt, from Columbus, Ohio, the Mid-Ohio Food Bank. We are taking in all the product, and we didn’t have any contractor that was willing to deliver to the 18 sites. We have nine Appalachian counties that we serve, as well as Columbus, and they were unwilling to do that, to say we could have said no means people don’t get food. Nobody is paying us, with the exception of what was mentioned. Wiers Farms up in northern Ohio was paying us a dollar a box. That is the only vendor who has agreed to pay any money in our program so far.

Ms. ADAMS. Okay. So, based on the recent rise in cases of COVID, how many pounds of food do you anticipate distributing in the coming months?

Mr. HABASH. Well, we normally do about 75 million pounds a year, and that was already up from about 63 million the year before, and we are anticipating probably closing in on 100 million pounds of food, if we can find the food. It is just that demand is up 30 percent.

Ms. ADAMS. Okay. Was the food that you received from the program from a national, regional, or local producer, and do you think that this impacted your experience with the program?

Mr. HABASH. Well, Eric, do you want to go ahead and chime in, or do you want to—

Mr. COOPER. Yes. I think the challenges with the program is it is just not providing enough volume, and many families are going away hungry, if you will, because the supply is not meeting the demand. And then the challenges around the logistics and the expenses associated, the thought that food banks have the power to negotiate, it really is powerless, you either accept the food or you don't, the contractor's going to move that product to some other community, and you would miss out. And so we need the food. Ultimately, the line of families need nourishment, and we are, in a way, we will take the food and—raise to cover the expenses if we have to.

Ms. ADAMS. Very—thank you very much, and thank you very much for being here. I yield back, Madam Chair.

The CHAIR. Thank you so much. Ranking Member Conaway, you are recognized for—

Mr. CONAWAY. Thank you, Madam Chair. Eric, the dramatic photograph from early April of cars lined up at your facility, has that happened every single day?

Mr. COOPER. We have about 20 of those distributions a week. Now, that photograph was at the largest distribution, which occurred at the onset of the crisis, where 10,000 families came to get food. Our average distributions are about—

Mr. CONAWAY. But you pass out food every day at that site?

Mr. COOPER. No. We rotate throughout south Texas at multiple sites.

Mr. CONAWAY. All right. I have a note here from Libby Campbell, one of your cohorts, that I have the pleasure of representing. She got 1,200 boxes yesterday of cheese, butter, produce, and cream, and it is all out in the hands of consumers in less than 24 hours, so I need to brag on Libby and her team over in Midland and Odessa for making that happen.

Fellows, both of your testimony is almost exactly the same thing. Did Feeding America give you that testimony?

Mr. COOPER. Absolutely, we are all connected with Libby, she is a great.

Mr. CONAWAY. Okay. Eric, yes, I have a limited amount of time, Eric, I am going to be a little abrupt. I apologize for that. Are you free to disagree with that testimony?

Mr. COOPER. Absolutely.

Mr. CONAWAY. Did your board, did they go through with you and adopt that, or is that—you and Matt put that out on behalf of San Antonio-Ohio?

Mr. COOPER. Yes.

Mr. HABASH. Go ahead, Eric.

Mr. COOPER. Our board supports us in that, and, again, congratulations on working with Libby. I know last time we were together, Congressman, it was in Midland, and I know that was the first truckload of CFAP boxes that they received there in that community.

Mr. CONAWAY. Well, thanks——

Mr. HABASH. Congressman?

Mr. CONAWAY. Yes, Matt?

Mr. HABASH. This is Matt, and my testimony is my own. It was not written by Feeding America. It is what we experienced here in central and eastern Ohio.

Mr. CONAWAY. Yes, Matt. The recommendations, though, appear almost word for word with Eric's, so I don't know where either one of you got it, but it came off of Feeding America, which is fine, in that regard. But, do you guys pay fees to Feeding America to belong to their organization?

Mr. COOPER. They actually support us with food and funds across the United States. The network works very, very well together to make sure that——

Mr. CONAWAY. But you don't pay Feeding America an annual fee?

Mr. COOPER. I mean, we have some dues that we pay, but not in any comparison to the support that we get.

Mr. CONAWAY. Yes. Well, I thank you guys. I appreciate that with the limited amount of time. The Chair made some interesting comments about being anxious about the potential waste in this food program. I would hope that the other side would be just as indignant in the waste in the food stamp program, because they tolerate a $37 error rate in the over and under payments as if that doesn't happen at all, and billions are lost in these improper payments, and I don't hear the same kind of righteous indignation associated with those error rates as the potential, or alleged, errors within this program. With that, I yield back.

The CHAIR. I am concerned about every error in every program. Mrs. Hayes, you are recognized for 3 minutes.

Mrs. HAYES. Thank you. Mr. Cooper or Mr. Habash, I heard your concerns about the fact that some of your producers were not local, and didn't really know the area that they were expected to provide products for. Had you created the application process for the Farmers to Families Food Box, is there anything that you would have done differently that would have helped to improve your experience?

Mr. COOPER. Yes, I will go first, Eric from San Antonio. It is really a coordinated distribution plan. I know, Congressman Conaway, maybe we are similar food banks, and part of the same network, but we represent diverse parts of the country, and a diverse network of nonprofit organizations. Again, for us in San Antonio, over 500 different organizations that are feeding the 120,000 people each week. And coordinating those families to make sure that, one, they can be at the distribution, the amount of time it takes, the food safety aspects to keep the product under refrigeration, having the right equipment, and just making sure that families are fed in an equitable way, that you don't have families showing up and walking away without anything, that takes planning and logistics.

I think a little more effort in the coordination of that distribution plan to make sure that there is not duplication, nonprofits running into each other, organizations taking more food than they know—— many of the contractors only would ship a full truckload, so some of these churches were overwhelmed with the sheer volume, and many Feeding America food banks were having to go and rescue that food, pick it up at the distribution site, to take it back to their warehouse to get the product under cold storage. That is where waste occurs, that is where food safety is compromised, and that is what I would do to strengthen some of the aspects of the program.

Mrs. HAYES. Did you hear from local farmers about their involvement in being part of the production line?

Mr. HABASH. This is Matt—

Mr. COOPER. Many of our local farmers throughout the Winter Garden in southwest Texas were frustrated just because they didn't feel like they were a part of the program. Some local cooperatives put in bids, but were not awarded.

Mr. HABASH. We had a similar experience here in Columbus, where we had very—none of our local contractors got any bids, and so we had to depend on vendors willing to drive much larger distances to get any food at all in the beginning. The other suggestion—we organized ourselves through the Ohio Association of Food Banks to work on this program collectively for all small food banks, and you have Feeding America, with 200 food banks across the country, and thousands and thousands of agencies that are all doing this every day, so that system works really well in this country.

Mrs. HAYES. Thank you. My time has expired, but I just have one last question, if you could just say yes or no? Connecticut received boxes as part of this program, but everyone I have talked to says that the best way for government to keep families fed is to bolster the SNAP Program by 15 percent. Do you agree?

Mr. COOPER. Yes.

Mrs. HAYES. Thank you.

Mr. HABASH. Absolutely.

Mrs. HAYES. I yield back. Thank you.

The CHAIR. Thank you. Mr. Bacon, you are recognized for 3 minutes.

Mr. BACON. Thank you, Madam Chair. Mr. Cooper, would you say the Farm to Table Program is doing a good job alleviating hunger in your area?

Mr. COOPER. Yes. It is a fabulous program to be able to get the type of dairy, protein, and produce to families.

Mr. BACON. Would you like more of it?

Mr. COOPER. Absolutely. It is not meeting the demand that we see in our lines.

Mr. BACON. Mr. Cooper, same questions. Is it alleviating hunger, and would you like more of it?

Mr. HABASH. You mean Matt?

Mr. BACON. Or Mr. Habash, sorry. My fault.

Mr. HABASH. Thank you, Congressman. Yes, the answer is yes. I mean, without a doubt, we need the food stamp program, and we need additional food, people that don't qualify for food stamps that are asking for help, so what are we supposed to do? We need the food. The answer is yes, we can use it. We are big into food as help as a strategy. This program helps do that.

Mr. BACON. There were some comments that some of the food comes in a little old. Would you say that a lot of the food, though, was more fresh than maybe you get at the grocery store, being that it is coming straight from the farmer? I will ask you both. Thank you.

Mr. COOPER. Yes. I think mostly the same quality. It is just it was super convenient to have the produce packed in the boxes, but not all contractor's were equal. Some of those boxes, they weren't packed very full, and so, once they were stacked on top of each other, the boxes would crush, the produce would get crushed, the pallets would turn over in the truck that was delivering it to us. They would be all falling over. And so just some consistencies and tightening up some of those processes could really improve the program, and we hope that USDA would consider having the contractors do that.

Mr. BACON. I have no doubt there could be ways to tighten the program. I used to live on a farm until I joined the Air Force, and I can tell you, there is nothing better than fresh tomatoes, and sweet corn, and so forth. But one last question, what would you say is the percentage of the produce that you get is actually given to people in need? Is it 90 percent, 95 percent, 98? What would you say? Just trying to get a rough—because, to me, that is a good gauge of success.

Mr. COOPER. One hundred percent of the produce that we are receiving is going to families.

Mr. HABASH. I would say the same thing, Congressman. If it has come directly from a farm, it is absolutely 100 percent of the food. If it comes from a retail outlet that has leftovers that are pulling off the shelves, then you have a little bit of—basically shrink—that isn't going to be usable. But, come straight from the farms, we love product directly from the farms. It is in and out of our door in 24 hours.

Mr. BACON. That is good, because what I am hearing is there is not much being thrown out in that situation. What I am hearing is you are giving out about 100 percent of the produce, it is helping alleviate hunger, and you would like more. I appreciate your great feedback, and I yield back, Madam Chair. Thank you.

The CHAIR. Thank you. Mr. Panetta, you are recognized for 3 minutes.

Mr. PANETTA. Thank you, Madam Chair. I appreciate this opportunity. Gentlemen, thank you for your service, and I apologize for you not being here in front of us, but know you are doing a lot better job, and a lot more to the people that you serve than being here. I appreciate you being there, so thank you very much.

Quickly, I know one of you mentioned the National Guard, and the benefits that they are providing there. Can you go into that a little bit more?

Mr. HABASH. Sure. We, very early, in Ohio asked our governor for National Guard support, so this is early March. We were lucky, as the State Association of Food Banks told us—made a direct request for all of us. I asked for 100 National Guards-people. They have been here since the later part of March. They are scheduled to expire on August the 7th, then they have 2 weeks of furlough, the money has run out. We could not get volunteers. I have 754 volunteer slots a week to fill. They have filled those, they have delivered meals to seniors, they have stepped in and packed 27,000 emergency boxes. They have delivered these CFAP boxes. They are running our pantry, which went from 100 families a day to 700 families a day because of this. They have been a godsend to us, and we would love to keep them, because right now—well, you have to remember it is not all senior citizens for volunteers, some it is corporate, and there are corporations that are not willing to come back, particularly when the pandemic is rising here in Ohio.

Mr. PANETTA. Understood.

Mr. COOPER. Yes, we too have gotten National Guard, and would not be able to maintain as many distributions as we are doing without them. Just because of the spike of cases, a lot of our volunteers are seniors, so it has been an incredible backbone of strength to get these food boxes to families.

Mr. PANETTA. Good, and that is exactly what I see out on the Central Coast of California, every week I go out to food distribution sites, and let me tell you, going to the sites that have the National Guard make it a little bit easier, a little smoother, and let me tell you, the people that work for the food banks are very thankful for their participation, so we will hopefully continue to work our governor to make sure that they stay there in California as well.

Talk to me about the percentage of new recipients you are seeing come to your food banks. I know in my area it is about 40 percent new recipients from the COVID pandemic. What are you guys seeing?

Mr. COOPER. Because of our significant hospitality industry in San Antonio, about 50 percent of who were receiving were first time recipients of our food bank, and it caused us to really partner with hotels, restaurant associations to do some outreach to connect to their furloughed workers. But it is about 50 percent.

Mr. HABASH. Our is a little lower than that, but we can tell you exactly that, as of today, 27,430 new families have shown up that have never asked for help. We have a data tracking system that goes back 10 years. These are new families to our system that have never asked for help ever before.

Mr. PANETTA. Okay. Let me just ask this real quick question before my time runs out. In your opinion, what Federal food program has the most impact on people receiving these types of benefits, in your opinion?

Mr. COOPER. The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, SNAP, is the first line of defense, and really is super efficient, because it capitalizes on the existing infrastructure of grocery stores in rural communities and urban, and that is what can strengthen households' nutrition.

Mr. HABASH. Congressman, we have said here that we are not going to food bank our way out of hunger. At the end of the day, the SNAP Program is the number one. And then, as you look at who else doesn't qualify for SNAP because their income is above that, food banks are—and the pantries that we have are the only line of defense for them as well.

Mr. PANETTA. I appreciate that, I appreciate your service. I yield back. Thank you, Madam Chair.

The CHAIR. Thank you. Ranking Member Conaway, in the absence of Mr. Johnson, do you wish to make any closing comments?

Mr. CONAWAY. No, ma'am. I am good to go. Thank you.

The CHAIR. All right. As we close, let me just ask one question to you both. Did you say anything today that was not accurate? To the best of your knowledge?

Mr. COOPER. No.

Mr. HABASH. No.

The CHAIR. So, no matter who wrote it, it was accurate?

Mr. HABASH. I guarantee we wrote it, for starters, but the second point is, yes, everything we have said is accurate. I was trying not to use any anecdotal information from anybody, only direct things that we knew from ourselves and the testimony.

The CHAIR. Thank you very much. As we prepare to adjourn, let me just say that under the Rules of the Committee, the record of today's hearing will remain open for 10 calendar days to receive additional material and supplementary written responses from the witnesses to any question posed by a Member. This hearing of the Subcommittee on Nutrition, Oversight, and Department Operations is adjourned, and thank you all so much for being here today.

Mr. COOPER. Thank you.

SUBMITTED LETTERS AND ARTICLES BY HON. JAMES P. MCGOVERN, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM MASSACHUSETTS; ON BEHALF OF HON. LLOYD DOGGETT, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM TEXAS

Letter 1

May 26, 2020

Hon. SONNY PERDUE,
Secretary,
 U.S. Department of Agriculture
 Washington, D.C. 20250

Dear Secretary Perdue:

I write to express my strong objection to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) decision to award Farmers to Families Food Box Program distribution contracts to entities lacking the operational capability to receive, store, and distribute requested food for families struggling with food insecurity.

I am specifically requesting that you immediately issue a stop work order for CRE8AD8 in San Antonio, as you have reportedly already done with California Avocados Direct, and that thereafter you promptly cancel this contract. This contract was issued without a credible background check with a company not licensed to perform and with no work history indicating a capacity to perform at a time of urgent public need for competent delivery. CRE8AD8 was given until June 30 to complete distribution of the 750,000 boxes in a seven-state region, but to date it has apparently failed to distribute a single box.

Images from San Antonio brought national attention to the record number of families facing food insecurity as a result of the economic fallout of the ongoing pandemic. Those with children represent some of the most impacted—recent reports show two in five households with children 12 and under are food-insecure. At a time when families need help the most, USDA should be prioritizing funding for experienced contractors with established community relationships to ensure there are no unnecessary delays to much needed support. A family cannot eat an IOU. Poor performing, inexperienced contractors risk delaying food delivery or even delivering spoiled dangerous food to families who need help now.

USDA awarding 198 contracts in a week involved a process which failed to protect taxpayers, the hungry, and producers with food going to waste. In addition to seeking prompt answers to all of the questions raised by House Agriculture Subcommittee Chairs Rep. Stacey Plaskett, Rep. Jim Costa, and Rep. Marcia Fudge in their May 22 letter expressing similar concerns, I seek your responses to the following in order to determine how you are assuring that flaws with other companies do not create similar problems:

1. How did USDA ensure awardees had established relationships with other supply chain subcontractors needed to execute the Farmers to Families Food Box Program? Describe in full the background check done for each awardee and provide the specific results of your background check on CRE8AD8.

2. Prior to awarding contracts, what specific steps, if any, did USDA take to ensure awardees had secured facilities to protect food safety, including refrigerated transportation and storage?
3. What is USDA doing now to ensure food safety during the contract period?
4. What actions has USDA taken for awardees who are not fulfilling contractual obligations?
5. Which Farmers to Families Food Box Program distribution contracts have already been terminated?
6. Under the contract awarded to CRE8AD8, was there a daily and weekly distribution requirement to ensure families are not waiting on food throughout the approximately 6 week contract period?
7. What steps have already been undertaken, if any, to ensure that families receive the food that CRE8AD8 has been unable to deliver since the program's distribution period began May 15?

For the sake of those Texans who through no fault of their own rely on these meals, I look forward to your prompt action on this important matter.

Sincerely,

Hon. LLOYD DOGGETT.

Hon. SONNY PERDUE,
Secretary,
 Washington, D.C. 20250

Dear Secretary Perdue:

In the midst of the coronavirus pandemic, so many Texas families continue to rely on food banks for meals. I write regarding your unexplained failure to respond to my urgent May 26 inquiry concerning the Farmers to Families Food Box Program and the contract awarded to unqualified and unprepared San Antonio-based company, CRE8AD8. Despite repeated comments by your Congressional Relations office that you are "prioritizing a response," I have not received one.

I have enclosed a San Antonio Express-News report for your review. As of Saturday, June 6, only the San Antonio Food Bank had received shipments from CRE8AD8 within the seven-state contract area that includes Arizona, Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Utah as well as Texas. Other food banks in the Southwest Region have not received any of the 469 total truckloads they desperately need, including the Central Texas Food Bank in Austin, whose inquiries to CRE8AD8 were ignored.

This contract requires delivering 750,000 boxes by the end of this month. Recent reporting of delays and mismanagement indicate that this will not come close to being achieved. As I requested previously, you should immediately issue a stop work order, cancel the contract, and instead ensure that hungry families get the food they need. For the sake of those Texans who through no fault of their own rely on these meals, I look forward to your immediate action and response to my specific questions about the mismanagement of this matter by USDA.

Sincerely,

Hon. LLOYD DOGGETT.

San Antonio Express-News

Food banks in other cities, states disappointed by San Antonio's CRE8AD8 lack of performance

TOM ORSBORN (<https://www.expressnews.com/author/tom-orsborn/>) June 7, 2020
Updated: June 7, 2020 11:42 a.m.

Food bank administrators in Texas and surrounding states are baffled by the lack of communication and food boxes from a San Antonio events planning company that landed a $39 million Federal contract to provide food relief.

While many U.S. Department of Agriculture contractors in the agency's Farmers to Families Food Box Program began making shipments shortly after the start of the distribution period on May 15, the first delivery from Gregorio Palomino's CRE8AD8—pronounced “create a date”—didn't come until May 28.

After the completion of that first delivery—235 boxes out of a total of 750,000 required under the contract—Palomino posted on his personal Facebook page that “tens of thousands” of food boxes would be “landing next week throughout TX, UT, AZ, OK, LA, AR & NM!”

It didn't happen.

“They were supposed to ramp up right away, and here we are almost 3 weeks after the start time and we've got nothing,” said Tom Kertis, President and CEO of St. Mary's Food Bank in Phoenix. “All this money was poured into one provider, and they are not delivering.”

“In the meantime, people aren't getting food because (CRE8AD8) wasn't prepared.”

As of Saturday, only the San Antonio Food Bank had received shipments from CRE8AD8, which has until June 30 to deliver all 750,000 food boxes within a seven-state area that includes Arizona, Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Utah as well as Texas.

Through Saturday, the San Antonio Food Bank has received 4,121 total boxes: 2,747 filled with fruits and vegetables from San Antonio's Avila Produce and 1,374 containing precooked chicken from Gourmet Foods of Rancho Dominguez, Calif., according to bills of lading.

Of the 469 truckloads of food CRE8AD8 is contracted to deliver in the seven-state region, the San Antonio Food Bank is scheduled to receive 57. The boxes typically weigh between 17 and 25 pounds each.

San Antonio Food Bank employee Victor Mariscal unloads pallets of produce boxes delivered by Avila Produce, Friday, June 5, 2020. The delivery is part of CRE8AD8's $39 million Federal contract to deliver 750,000 boxes of produce, dairy and protein by the end of June to a seven-state area. Friday's shipment brought the total to 4,121 boxes delivered to the food bank so far; no boxes have been sent to food banks in other cities yet.

The Food Bank is scheduled to receive more boxes of protein from CRE8AD8 next week.

"We are 3 weeks into the 6 week program and we have received 3½ truckloads of the 57 we hope to use to feed our families," said Eric Cooper, President and CEO of the Food Bank. "I guess we are lucky to have received the 3½ as the other food banks in the Southwest Region have not received any of the 469 they desperately need."

Palomino, who has boasted of heading "an internationally recognized" business "with a global footprint," did not respond to requests for comment.

Lauren Lear, identified as CRE8AD8's "dispatch manager" on a bill of lading, also declined interview requests.

Palomino traveled to California last week to broker deals with food purveyors. CRE8AD8's credit payment terms have ranged from 30 to 60 days, said purveyors in Texas who had preliminary negotiations with the company but declined to go forward because they didn't want to extend credit to an inexperienced company and other reasons.

"Many of these people want everything up-front," Palomino wrote in an email to a consultant in Arizona who shared it with the Express-News. "I'm not against it, but people think that we just have money in the bank like that."

The USDA required that bidders show proof of "adequate financial resources to perform the contract or the ability to obtain them." A USDA spokesperson said contractors are paid "upon the submission and approval of an invoice evidencing delivery."

The Federal agency handed out nearly 200 contracts worth $1.2 billion for the food box program, which calls for contractors to buy up surplus food from farmers and ranchers, pack it into boxes and deliver it to food banks and other nonprofits to assist people reeling from the COVID-19-triggered recession.

CRE8AD8 won the contract despite having no experience in food distribution and lacking a Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (PACA) license, which the USDA likens to a driver's license for operating a produce business.

CRE8AD8 has since acquired a PACA license, receiving it just days after it submitted an application. The process usually takes weeks to complete, industry veterans said.

A box of produce filled with white onions, oranges, zucchini and other vegetables and fruits is part of a shipment of produce delivered by Avila Produce to the San Antonio Food Bank on Friday, June 5, 2020. The delivery is part of San Antonio CRE8AD8's $39 million USDA contract to deliver 750,000 boxes of produce and protein by the end of June to a seven-state area as part of a new food relief program.

With CRE8AD8 lacking contacts within the food bank industry, Cooper helped the company develop a distribution schedule. On May 15, he presented CRE8AD8 with a plan calling for deliveries to 23 food banks in Texas, Arizona, Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Utah.

"The USDA is bringing these non-industry partners to the table, and we are having to help them with the learning curve," Cooper said.

Cooper's plan included the number of truckloads for each food bank; the number of boxes in each of the produce, protein and dairy categories; addresses and contact information for food bank employees.

After receiving input from CRE8AD8, the plan was revised "several times" before it was "finalized" May 27, Cooper said. The revisions centered on overcoming logistical challenges, mainly involving what is known in the food bank industry as "last-mile issues," Cooper said.

"They were supposed to then reach out to the (food banks) and coordinate the deliveries," Cooper said of CRE8AD8.

But food bank administrators throughout the seven-state region that should be served by CRE8AD8 said they have not heard from the company.

"I've moved on and I am working with those vendors who are communicating with me," said Denise Blok, chief operating officer of the Central Texas Food Bank in Austin, which is supposed to receive three truckloads from CRE8AD8.

Blok said she called CRE8AD8 shortly after the USDA announced May 8 it had given the company the contract.

"Nobody has ever gotten in touch with us," Blok said "There is frustration, especially because it is someone that is (geographically) close to us. To not hear from a single person from the company, that is a little discouraging."

San Antonio Food Bank warehouse receiver Servando Ramirez checks out a load of produce delivered by Avila Produce on Friday, May 5, 2020. The delivery is part of CRE8AD8's $39 million Federal contract to deliver 750,000 boxes of produce and protein by the end of June to a seven-state area.

Trisha Cunningham, President and CEO of the North Dallas Food Bank in Plano, described a similarly frustrating experience with CRE8AD8. The North Dallas Food Bank should receive nine truckloads from CRE8AD8.

"The (North Dallas Food Bank) has requested food from the company, but to date, we have not received any product," Cunningham said. "We are hopeful they will be able to deliver on the requested product so we can use this food to feed our community."

St. Mary's Food Bank in Phoenix was told it would receive 24 truckloads from CRE8AD8. In need of protein boxes, Kertis said he reached out to Gourmet Foods to see if CRE8AD8 could provide it with boxes of precooked chicken.

"I was told they are going to focus on Texas, and they might schedule a load for (delivery to Phoenix) at the end of the month," Kertis said. "The program ends at the end of the month, so in effect we have virtually no meat items."

Kertis said he's puzzled as to why CRE8AD8 is focused on delivering so many boxes of chicken and pork to Texas when it would be cheaper to ship to Phoenix.

CRE8AD8 Dispatch Manager Lauren Lear, second from right, talks with Dayna Robokowski, the San Antonio Food Bank produce procurement manager, second from left, as pallets of produce boxes are unloaded, Friday, June 5, 2020. The delivery is part of the CRE8AD8's $39 million USDA contract to deliver 750,000 boxes of produce, protein and dairy by the end of June in a seven-state area for a new national food relief program.

"They are coming out of L.A., and it's about a 6 to 7 hour drive out of L.A.," he said. "The cost would be lower, and they would spread the wealth around a little bit. But it doesn't sound like they want to do it. It's unfortunate."

Eric Kopelow, chief operating officer for Gourmet Foods, said the company's "first obligation is to the San Antonio Food Bank," according to its agreement with CRE8AD8. "Phoenix is a secondary location," Kopelow said.

Letter 3

Hon. LLOYD DOGGETT,
U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Congressman Doggett:

Thank you for your letter of May 26 and June 10, 2020, with questions about the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Farmers to Families Food Box Program (FFFBP). The following is background about the program and answers to your specific questions.

FFFBP is a new, innovative program designed to provide critical support to American farmers and families in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. To address the immediate food needs of newly unemployed Americans and respond to the crisis of food rotting in fields and animals being euthanized, USDA moved expeditiously to stand up the program and begin new pipelines of support to communities across the nation.

The goal of FFFBP is to allow producers to sell food previously destined for restaurants and other bulk purchasers to suppliers—preventing waste—while helping Americans in need during the COVID-19 pandemic. The program is designed to put American farmers and distributors of all sizes back to work while supporting burdened food banks, community and faith-based organizations, as well as other nonprofits serving Americans in need. USDA prioritized working with impacted organizations of all sizes and across all regions of the United States to ensure maximum positive impact of the program.

USDA is committed to ensuring the integrity of the program and administering it in an efficient and cost-effective way. Outlined below is information about the structure of the purchase program and the safeguards put in place to protect taxpayers' funds and ensure that relevant laws and regulations are being followed.

Utilizing contracting flexibilities provided by Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) Part 18 during an emergency declaration, USDA designed a process to rapidly vet and approve contractors to participate in the program. The vetting process relied on answers to a Request for Proposals. Offerors described the capabilities they had for achieving performance under the contract.

Demonstrations of this capability included, but were not limited to, commercial experience; business ethics and integrity standards; food safety and/or regulatory audits; inspections, certifications and approvals; and a demonstration of financial capability to perform.

USDA evaluated the offeror's ability to responsibly execute the requirements of the contract as they pertain to administrative, ethical, safety, compliance, and financial prowess of the offeror. As part of USDA's standard internal controls, the acquisition will be reviewed for compliance to the solicitation and Federal regulations.

In addition, the Contracting Officer is monitoring the performance of the contractors. If there are concerns, contractual remedies may be used, which could include termination. USDA has chosen to exercise this right in at least two situations and will not hesitate to do so if circumstances warrant such a response.

1. How did USDA ensure awardees had established relationships with other supply chain subcontractors needed to execute the Farmers to Families Food Box Program? Describe in full the background check done for each awardee and provide the specific results of your background check on CRE8AD8.

Like other Federal contracts administered by USDA, the FFFBP and its awardees require strict adherence to the FAR and other regulations. All proposals were carefully reviewed by a team of contracting and technical experts, and contracts made accordingly.

Proposals for the FFFBP were evaluated by (in descending order of importance) the technical information; past performance of the offeror; the offeror's capability to perform; and the prices offered. Offerors must have met all criteria in order to be competitive and must have, or be able to acquire, a Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (PACA) license to comply with the contractual requirement.

As part of the proposal, offerors, including CRE8AD8, described their capabilities for achieving performance under the contract. Demonstrations of this capability included, but were not limited to, commercial experience; business ethics and integrity standards; food safety and/or regulatory audits, inspections, certifications and approvals; and a demonstration of financial capability to perform.

Each awarded offeror provided three past performance references for similar contract/orders completed within the past 3 years (or contracts and orders which were currently being completed).

The program was dependent upon relationships between contractors, subcontractors, nonprofit and other governmental organizations, taking advantage of the marketplace and natural supply chains.

An important point to make about the program is that contractors are only paid for the food boxes they successfully deliver. Each offeror provided an estimate of how many boxes they could assemble and deliver. If the entity falls behind in the volume promised, USDA contracting staff have the ability to take appropriate action.

2. Prior to awarding contracts, what specific steps, if any, did USDA take to ensure awardees had secured facilities to protect food safety, including refrigerated transportation and storage?

The prime contractor receiving an award is responsible for all aspects of contract performance. The aspects of performance include, but are not limited to, sourcing product for inclusion in boxes; conducting all aspects of preparing the boxes; sourcing and communicating with nonprofits; and transporting and delivering of boxes to the nonprofit on a mutually agreeable, recurring schedule. It was anticipated that a number of firms would need to subcontract some element of their plan, including supply, handling or delivery. Please see answers to Question 3 for additional information about oversight.

3. What is USDA doing now to ensure food safety during the contract period?

As previously mentioned, as part of the proposal, offerors described their capabilities for achieving performance under the contract. Demonstrations of this capability included, but were not limited to, commercial experience; business ethics and integrity standards; food safety and/or regulatory audits, inspections, certifications and approvals; and a demonstration of financial capability to perform.

Ensuring that the food for the FFFBP is handled in a safe manner is critical to the success of the program. USDA will provide oversight throughout the contract period, conducting audits to ensure food safety plans are followed, contract terms are fulfilled, and only quality domestic produce is provided and delivered to nonprofits and governmental agencies in support of Americans in need. There are multiple actions available to the Contracting Officer for non-conformance, including contract termination.

4. What actions has USDA taken for awardees who are not fulfilling contractual obligations?

A key performance indicator in which contractors will be measured is successful delivery of quality food boxes. If contractors are not meeting their commitments, the contracting staff has the ability to adjust the contract accordingly, including termination of the contract.

5. Which Farmers to Families Food Box Program distribution contracts have already been terminated?

USDA has terminated two contracts to date. The contracts were with Ben Holtz Consulting and Fossil Creek Farms.

6. Under the contract awarded to CRE8AD8, was there a daily and weekly distribution requirement to ensure families are not waiting on food throughout the approximately 6 week contract period?

There were no daily or weekly contractual requirements for delivery; however, the contractor is required to deliver the product within the 6 week delivery period. The expectation is that the contractor will work with the recipients to ensure deliveries are made on a mutually agreeable schedule. If contractors do not meet promised delivery schedules, contracting staff have remedies available, including contract termination.

7. What steps have already been undertaken, if any, to ensure that families receive the food that CRE8AD8 has been unable to deliver since the program's distribution period began May 15?

It is important to note that more than 1.126 million boxes have been delivered to various parts of Texas as of June 1, 2020. However, as USDA looks ahead to the end of the initial round of the FFFBP contracts worth $1.2 billion on June 30, 2020, USDA is exploring options to continue serving American farmers and families up to the program's $3 billion authorization. USDA may extend current contracts or award additional contracts to ensure that under-served areas are provided an opportunity to participate in the program. Some contracts may not be extended based on vendor performance.

Initial program feedback has been incredibly positive. USDA is committed to the program's success and is optimistic it will have meaningful impact for the many customers it serves. I look forward to keeping you and your Congressional colleagues updated on its contributions.

If you have any further questions, please have a member of your staff contact the Office of Congressional Relations and Intergovernmental Affairs at [Redacted].

Sincerely,

Hon. SONNY PERDUE,
Secretary.

Editorial: Investigate USDA food box contracts

Express-News Editorial Board May 18, 2020

Gregorio Palomino, CEO of CRE8AD8, received a $39 million Federal contract to create and distribute food boxes to food banks and nonprofits—but failed to deliver. A reader wonders how much of that contract he received.

Although it has just begun, the USDA's Farmers to Families Food Box Program is off to a disturbing start, one that appears to be a betrayal of taxpayers and unlikely to deliver for Americans in need.

Many questions have been raised about the contracts the U.S. Department of Agriculture has awarded to companies to package and distribute produce, dairy and meat to food banks across the nation. Questions that are, unfortunately, best reflected in the awarding of a $39.1 million contract to a San Antonio-based event planning company, CRE8AD8 LLC (pronounced Create a date).

Has CRE8AD8 ever distributed wholesale food to food banks and nonprofits? No, owner Gregorio Palomino told Express-News reporter Tom Orsborn.

Does CRE8AD8 have a Perishable Agricultural Commodities ACT, or PACA, license?

"It's been applied for," Palomino said.

Can CRE8AD8 hit the ground running, getting food boxes to families in need as quickly as possible?

Nope. Palomino is scrambling to hire people, and hopes to be up and running in June.

Does CRE8AD8 have the warehouse and logistics operations to supply the massive Southwestern Region, which stretches across Texas, Arkansas, Arizona, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Utah.

We don't think so.

"We knew that we easily could do this because instead of putting tchotchkes in a bag that is going to go to a conference attendee, this is the same exact thing except it's just food going into a box," Palomino said.

In principle, the Farmers to Families Food Box Program is a worthy idea. With the closure of restaurants and schools during the pandemic, the program purchases surplus dairy, meat and produce. The idea is to package this food into family-sized boxes and then distribute it to food banks. So, why not contract with known food distributors instead of doling out millions to an event planner?

Other questionable awards in the $1.2 billion program include contracts for two meat processors under investigation and a bankrupt dairy producer. A number of contracts went to companies outside the regions they are supposed to serve.

It's almost as if USDA doesn't care if the food makes it to those in need. When an event planner secures a contract like this, it's time for Congress to investigate.

Editorial: In aftermath of CRE8AD8 failure, pain for families

How was Gregorio Palomino, an event planner, chosen to receive a $39 million Federal contract to create and distribute food boxes to food banks and nonprofits?*

Let's remember, the USDA should never have awarded a $39 million contract to CRE8AD8, a San Antonio event planner we wouldn't entrust with putting tchotchkes in a bag, let alone delivering food for struggling families.

While it is welcome news the USDA won't renew its contract with CRE8AD8—as in “Create A Date”—and its assailable owner, Gregorio Palomino, this is only a decision that prevents future harm.

It does nothing to ease the pain Palomino's abject failure has created for families and communities across Texas and beyond.

It does nothing to explain how an event planner with no experience in food distribution, who has misrepresented himself to the public, would land such a large contract at such a critical moment.

What does harm look like? In this case, it looks like the number zero, which is exactly how many food boxes CRE8AD8 delivered to the North Texas Food Bank in Plano, and the Southeast Texas Food Bank in Beaumont, and the West Texas Food Bank in Odessa, and the Community Food Bank of Southern Arizona in Tucson, and the Utah Food Bank in Salt Lake City.

“We have received zero loads, zero boxes, zero of anything” from CRE8AD8, Libby Campbell, executive director of the West Texas Food Bank, told Express-News reporter Tom Orsborn.

Even in those instances when CRE8AD8 delivered something, it was inadequate. At the San Antonio Food Bank, which has been serving 120,000 people a week in this crisis, CRE8AD8 was supposed to deliver 57 truckloads of food. It delivered an estimated 22.

Likewise, it was supposed to deliver 87 truckloads to the Houston Food Bank, but it only came through with 15.

Every failure by CRE8AD8 had the potential to leave someone hungry. This was a contract for 750,000 boxes of food through the USDA's deeply flawed $3 billion Farmers to Families Food Box Program. It should have gone to a proven supplier, and our Congressional delegation needs to keep pressing on why it didn't.

As we have learned since the contract was awarded in May, Palomino has brazenly misrepresented himself and his company, claiming associations that were not true—and were easily checked.

*Editor's note: the submitted print copy and the online version of this article differ in that this is the picture used for the online version. Both have been included in this publication.

We learned this thanks to dogged reporting from Orsborn, who in normal times covers sports, but in this moment of crisis has chronicled food insecurity. Stories like these are why local news matters.

Bigger picture, we can't help but wonder if the Farmers to Families Food Box Program is really the best approach to feeding the hungry. With schools and restaurants closing during this pandemic, the program purchases surplus dairy, meat and produce. These items are packaged into family-size boxes and then distributed to food banks.

While that sounds promising, it has opened the door to questionable contracts. Besides, if the primary goal is to feed the hungry and ease overburdened food banks, it would make more sense to funnel these funds to the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, providing direct support to families and allowing them to shop at grocery stores rather than wait in distribution lines.

We're relieved CRE8AD8's contract wasn't renewed. But if feeding families is the priority, how on earth did Palomino land this contract?

SUBMITTED LETTERS BY HON. ABIGAIL DAVIS SPANBERGER, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM VIRGINIA

Hon. SONNY PERDUE,
Secretary,
United States Department of Agriculture
Washington, D.C.

Dear Secretary Perdue,

We write today to express our grave concerns about the distribution of contracts under the Farmers to Families Food Box Program. While we sincerely appreciate USDA's efforts to quickly provide relief to farmers and those without adequate access to food through the creation of the program, we are concerned that the Commonwealth of Virginia has received a disproportionately small share of food through this program under the contracts awarded to date.

Under contracts awarded by the program, it is our understanding that the Feeding America food bank network in Virginia is only expected to receive 2.3 million pounds of food relief. This quantity is far less than the amount that would be allocated if the program were administered under the same formula utilized by The Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP), which distributes food relief proportional to each state's needs. Had aid been allocated under the TEFAP formula, we would expect Virginia to receive approximately 5.3 million pounds out of the 264 million pounds of product distributed in the first contract period.

We are also deeply concerned that only one food distributor in the state, DeLune Corp, was awarded a contract through the program in the first round of approvals. While we are grateful for the speed with which the first round of awards was distributed, we are concerned that Virginia is currently under-served by participating distributors. Food banks across Virginia have reported difficulty receiving aid through the program, especially in our rural communities, even as demand for food assistance continues to rise alongside growing unemployment, economic uncertainty, and the ongoing public health crisis.

Given these concerns, we ask that you provide answers to the following questions:

1. What formula did USDA use to decide how to allocate food under the Farmers to Families Food Box Program? Why did USDA choose not to utilize the existing need-based method used by the TEFAP Program?
2. In awarding the first round of contracts, what steps, if any, did USDA take to ensure that all geographic areas were serviced? Will USDA commit that when awarding future rounds of contracts, steps are taken to ensure that all geographic regions are served by the program and receive aid proportional to the region's need?
3. Before the first round of contracts, did USDA conduct any outreach to individual food banks or food bank networks to assess their needs, level of increased demand, or any other concerns they might have about the program's administration? Will USDA commit to conducting outreach to food banks to assess their needs ahead of any future rounds of funding?

We are truly grateful for the USDA's swift actions to set up the Farmers to Families Food Box Program. Like many regions, Virginia has seen dramatic increases in the number of those suffering from food insecurity. We believe that the Farmers to Families Food Box Program can be an essential lifeline for those who need it, and we stand ready to help ensure that this critical relief program is administered in a manner that is fair, equitable, and best reflects the needs of communities across the country.

We thank you for your attention to this important matter and look forward to your response.

Sincerely,

Hon. ABIGAIL D. SPANBERGER,

LETTER 2

June 29, 2020

Hon. ABIGAIL DAVIS SPANBERGER,
Member,
U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Congresswoman Spanberger:

Thank you for your letter of June 15, 2020, cosigned by your colleagues, with questions about the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Farmers to Families Food Box Program (FFFBP). Provided below is background information about the program and answers to your specific questions.

FFFBP is a new, innovative program designed to provide critical support to American farmers and families in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. To address the immediate food needs of newly unemployed Americans and respond to the crisis of food rotting in fields and animals being euthanized, USDA moved expeditiously to stand up the program and begin new pipelines of support to communities across the Nation.

The goal of FFFBP is to allow producers to sell food previously destined for restaurants and other bulk purchasers to suppliers-preventing waste-while helping Americans in need during the COVID-19 pandemic. The program is designed to put American farmers and distributors of all sizes back to work while supporting burdened food banks, community and faith-based organizations, as well as other non-profits serving Americans in need. USDA prioritized working with impacted organizations of all sizes and across all regions of the United States to ensure maximum positive impact of the program.

Utilizing contracting flexibilities provided by Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) Part 18 during an emergency declaration, USDA designed a process to rapidly vet and approve contractors to participate in the program. The vetting process relied on answers to a Request for Proposals. Offerors described the capabilities they had for achieving performance under the contract.

Demonstrations of this capability included, but were not limited to, commercial experience; business ethics and integrity standards; food safety and/or regulatory audits; inspections, certifications and approvals; and a demonstration of financial capability to perform.

USDA evaluated the offeror's ability to responsibly execute the requirements of the contract as they pertain to administrative, ethical, safety, compliance, and financial prowess of the offeror. As part of USDA's standard internal controls, the acquisition will be reviewed for compliance to the solicitation and Federal regulations.

An important point to make about the program is that contractors are only paid for the food boxes they successfully deliver. Each offeror provided an estimate of how many boxes they could assemble and deliver. If the entity falls behind in the volume promised, USDA contracting staff have the ability to take appropriate action.

1. What formula did USDA use to decide how to allocate food under the Farmers to Families Food Box Program? Why did USDA choose not to utilize the existing need-based method used by the TEFAP Program?

Proposals for the FFFBP were evaluated by (in descending order of importance) the technical information; past performance of the offeror; the offeror's capability to perform; and the prices offered. Offerors must have met all criteria in order to be competitive and must have, or be able to acquire, a Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (PACA) license to comply with the contractual requirement.

As part of the proposal, offerors described their capabilities for achieving performance under the contract. Demonstrations of this capability included, but were not limited to: commercial experience; business ethics and integrity standards; food safety and/or regulatory audits, inspections, certifications and approvals; and a demonstration of financial capability to perform.

Each vendor awarded a contract provided three past performance references for similar contract/orders completed within the past 3 years (or contracts and orders which were currently being completed). The amounts and locations awarded were based on the offers received and the evaluation of those offers.

2. In awarding the first round of contracts, what steps, if any, did USDA take to ensure that all geographic areas were serviced? Will USDA commit that when awarding future rounds of contracts, steps are taken to ensure that all geographic regions are served by the program and receive aid proportional to the region's need?

USDA is exploring options to continue serving American farmers and families up to the program's $3 billion authorization. USDA plans to extend current contracts and award additional contracts to ensure that under-served areas are provided an opportunity to participate in the program. Using emergency procedures for under-served areas, USDA plans to issue additional contracts by drawing on the pool of original proposals submitted.

3. Before the first round of contracts, did USDA conduct any outreach to individual food banks or food bank networks to assess their needs, level of increased demand, or any other concerns they might have about the program's administration? Will USDA commit to conducting outreach to food banks to assess their needs ahead of any future rounds of funding?

FFFBP provides a new approach to support American farmers and families, and USDA moved as expeditiously as Federal procurement rules allow to stand up the program and solicit offers. While many conversations took place with nonprofit organizations during the 3 weeks between the announcement of the program and the award of contracts, the short timeframe to begin much needed shipments of produce did not allow for extensive dialogue. Nonprofit organizations will work directly with suppliers to determine details regarding delivery, including volume and delivery schedules.

Any entity that provides to their local supplier proof of its 501(c)(3) tax exempt status or is a government entity (e.g., school food authority, Indian Tribe, etc.) and who can demonstrate that they have the operational and financial capability to receive, store, and distribute requested food items is eligible to participate. Nonprofit organizations can contact the supplier that has been awarded the contract for their service area to see if they can partner and participate in the program. The list of suppliers that have been awarded contracts is available on USDA's website.

Initial program feedback has been incredibly positive. USDA is committed to the program's success and optimistic it will have meaningful impact for the many customers it serves. I look forward to keeping you and your Congressional colleagues updated on its contributions.

If you have any further questions, please have a member of your staff contact the Office of Congressional Relations and Intergovernmental Affairs at [Redacted]. A similar letter has been sent to your colleagues.

Sincerely,

SONNY PERDUE,
Secretary.

SUBMITTED STATEMENT BY HON. DUSTY JOHNSON, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM SOUTH DAKOTA AND HON. K. MICHAEL CONAWAY, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM TEXAS; ON BEHALF OF MOLLIE VAN LIEU, SENIOR DIRECTOR, NUTRITION POLICY, UNITED FRESH PRODUCE ASSOCIATION

Review USDA's Farmers to Families Food Box Program

When COVID hit the U.S. in March, it brought with it an unprecedented scenario: a dramatic increase in the number of vulnerable and hungry people, food banks struggling to meet the demand to feed them, and an overnight disruption in the fresh produce supply chain with the closures of restaurants, schools, and food-service which wiped out the customer base of 40 percent of fresh produce. As food banks worked tirelessly privately to serve clients, and the industry worked to divert highly perishable produce to food banks and grocery stores, it became clear that the Federal Government was not equipped to provide immediate assistance to this devastating situation.

Over the course of next 2 months, USDA developed a program to deploy a supply chain that has worked behind the scenes for years in getting Americans and the world fresh, nutrition produce; growers provide their fresh fruits and vegetables to distributors that pack and deliver consumer-ready fresh produce to the end-user. In the case of Farmers to Families, the consumer was food banks and other emergency feeding nonprofits, which could then distribute the family-style boxes directly to clients in need. What resulted was not perfect but represents a historic investment in fresh produce purchases by the Federal Government.

Given the speed in which the government created a program, and its relative inexperience with working with the full supply chain—there were instances where the bidding did not work as it should. For example, companies with no prior experience doing this highly specialized work were awarded contracts in award amounts that would have been better utilized spread across several companies. Highly qualified companies that continue to face devastation have not been awarded. In other cases, food banks were left shouldering costs they did not anticipate. However, by the end of this summer, USDA will have purchased $1.7 billion in domestic fresh produce and fresh produce mixed boxes. This represents a larger purchase in 4 months than USDA has made on fresh purchases in the past several years—combined.

As told in the attached letter by a number of awarded Farmers to Families companies that the Agriculture Committee represents, when the program is executed as intended—it is a win, win, win for the supply chain, food banks, and the clients they serve. COVID has brought—and continues to bring—exceptional challenges to the supply chain that Farmers to Families cannot alone fix. But it has provided a lifeline to many distributors and a customer base for domestic growers that continue to struggle.

We are hopeful that this initiative continues to evolve and improve so that we are better prepared should an emergency like this occur again. When implemented as a complement to the SNAP program, a program like this serves to help stabilize the supply chain while also diverting food to those in need. It has shown that there is an incredible demand for this high-quality, nutrient-dense food, and that the nation has the supply chain in place to serve our nation's most vulnerable, even beyond this crisis, to help ensure that all Americans have access to fruits and vegetables.

Dear Chairman Peterson, Ranking Member Conaway, Chair Fudge, and Ranking Member Johnson:

On behalf of the undersigned distributors participating in the Farmers to Families Program that are constituents of Members of the House Agriculture Committee—we wish to thank you for your efforts to ensure the program is run efficiently and effectively and share your commitment to the utmost accountability of the program. Additionally, we also share your belief that this program alone cannot solve hunger and, accordingly, support an increase in SNAP benefits.

When COVID-19 closures hit restaurants, schools, and food-service in March—the industry faced an emergency overnight—as 40 percent of fresh produce goes to these sectors. The fresh produce supply chain already runs on razor thin margins, and given that many of us primarily serve food-service customers, this was devastating. While we worked privately to divert product to retail and direct-to-consumer to retain our workforce and continue to support growers, it was clear that the private-sector alone could not address the crisis and the Federal Government did not have a turnkey solution to address highly perishable products like ours.

At the same time, unemployment was rising and our neighbors were facing growing food insecurity, putting immense pressure on our local food banks. Our companies represent a critical part of the supply chain that—until recently—was mostly hidden from the public eye despite our role in getting farm-fresh produce to consumers 365 days a year. Most fresh produce distributors are small businesses with deep commitments to our communities.

When the Farmers to Families program was launched nearly 2 months later, it provided an unprecedented lifeline for our businesses and an opportunity to support our neighbors. The bidding process was lightning fast and was not without its challenges and shortcomings. Many of our peers that were just as deserving were not awarded, and in most cases, the demand for food at food banks surpasses the awards that were given to us by USDA. Despite those facts, the impact that these awards have had on our businesses and communities cannot go understated. We have:

- delivered an unprecedented amount of nutrient-dense fresh produce that has never been available through USDA purchasing programs previously (More than 95% of USDA purchases are non-fresh)
- hand-packed and delivered consumer-ready boxes to minimize food banks' and their clients' physical contact
- supported domestic and local growers
- retained and hired employees
- fed hundreds of thousands of families during a time where many had few options of where to turn in their time of need

Provides Efficient, Effective, and Safe Delivery

Our companies are highly skilled at procuring, packing, and distributing fresh produce. As Eric Cooper from the San Antonio Food Bank so eloquently stated at the July 21, 2020 hearing “not all contractors are equal”. In about a week’s time from being notified that we were awarded, our companies were able to deliver our first round of deliveries. This is because we had existing relationships with growers, our own facilities, established skill-sets, delivery vehicles, and a talented workforce. Our employees are highly trained at food safety measures and moving perishable food efficiently and effectively and we believe the end product that we are delivering to food banks and nonprofits reflects this. Contrary to some statements at the July 21, 2020 hearing, most of us are making direct deliveries to sites per the mutually-agreeable terms of the contract.

To date, our companies have delivered more than one million boxes with commodities including fresh apples, blueberries, butternut squash, kale, strawberries, parsnips, peaches, sweet corn, sweet potatoes, onions, romaine lettuce, honeydew, nectarines, radishes, artichokes, and so much more.

Supports Local Jobs and Economy

As previously stated, most of us are small businesses with deep roots in our community. Our employees are valued members and keeping them employed was top priority. The Farmers to Families program allowed us to retain and, in some cases, hire employees.

Supports Farmers

We of course are just one piece in this puzzle. Our valued grower partners have also faced devastation as a result of the shutdown of restaurants, schools, and food-service and we are proud to work with them to help pack and deliver their produce to those in need. As seasonally and geographically available, we make every effort to procure local produce. All boxes are filled with domestic, American-grown fruits and vegetables. The type of commodities included in our boxes evolve as the growing season provides additional variety, allowing for more access to locally grown produce.

Farmers to Families has provided a direct solution for some growers that would have otherwise disked up their fields. In some instances, small, local growers that are dependent on farmers' markets and white tablecloth restaurants that shuttered were making plans to close down their farm operations before Farmers to Families provided them an avenue for their harvests.

Supplement not Supplant SNAP

During this unique crisis, we were deployed because our existing skill-set was underutilized as a result of the food-service shutdown at a time when food banks experienced historic levels of demand with reduced storage, packing, and volunteer capacity. Despite the historic investment by USDA in fresh produce, it is still not enough to solve hunger. Our food bank and nonprofit partners cannot do it alone and we do not believe that hungry Americans only option should be food banks. Accordingly, we view the Farmers to Families program as an opportunity to support agriculture and our local food banks during this time, but not supplant SNAP. We support an increase in SNAP benefits during this emergency.

We thank you once again for your commitment to agriculture, nutrition, and hunger relief and ensuring the Farmers to Families program keeps quality and integrity at the forefront. We would welcome any Members of the Committee to visit our facilities and would be happy to provide any additional information. We believe that this program has value in helping Americans reach dietary guidelines recommendations for fruit and vegetable consumption and we look forward to working with you in the years to come to ensure that all Americans have access to fresh, affordable fruits and vegetables.

SUBMITTED LETTER BY HON. RODNEY DAVIS, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM ILLINOIS

Hon. COLLIN C. PETERSON,
Chairman,
House Committee on Agriculture,
Washington, D.C.;

Hon. K. MICHAEL CONAWAY,
Ranking Minority Member,
House Committee on Agriculture,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway,

On behalf of Vermilion Valley Produce DBA Central Illinois Produce, I write to you to highlight the success of the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Farmers to Families Food Box Program. During this time of crisis due to the Coronavirus Pandemic, this program has fulfilled a unique need within our local community and has continued to build on the unique partnerships we've long held to help serve our neighbors that have been negatively affected by job losses and state mandated closures of local businesses,

We are a long-standing partner with many local food banks and nonprofit organizations in central and southern Illinois including the Eastern Illinois Foodbank in Champaign and Peoria and Midwest Foodbank in Peoria, Bloomington, Fairfield, and Indianapolis, along with nonprofit organizations like the Don Moyer's Boys and Girls Club of Champaign and the United Way of Southern Illinois who coordinates with hundreds of other nonprofits throughout southern Illinois. Through our consistent work with these organizations that supply food to those in need throughout the State of Illinois, we have established an exceptional reputation for providing families with much needed, healthy food.

On May 8, 2020 USDA announced that we would receive a contract for $8.5 million. Since then we have been able to provide approximately 350,000 boxes of produce and dairy to tens of thousands of families. We currently produce on average over 30,000 boxes of produce and dairy boxes each week. We have been able to provide these boxes to families throughout central and southern Illinois to cities as far reaching as Cairo, Illinois. Recently we were notified that our contract was extended through August 31, 2020,

Additionally, the Farmers to Families Food Box Program has also been an intense success in terms of the number of employees we have been able to safely retain and hire back in order to carry out the program. Prior to the [COVID]-19 pandemic, we employed more than 130 full and part time employees in central Illinois; at the height of the pandemic, prior to our contract for the Farmers to Families Food Box Program contract, we were forced to cut our workforce nearly in half.

Because of this program, we have since rehired 16 employees who were willing to come back to work despite the additional $600 weekly Federal Government unemployment benefit which has created hiring challenges for our box program. Thankfully we have worked with employment agencies and currently have over 30 temporary employees on staff helping to make the boxes, swelling our overall employment to over 110 employees.

We are thrilled to be able to continue building on this successful program and working to provide potatoes, onions, apples, oranges, strawberries and locally grown lettuce, zucchini, cucumbers, peaches and cantaloupes just to name some of the produce items we are putting in the box. Our dairy box is almost all local producers including Ropp Cheese in Bloomington, Kilgus Farms in Fairbury, and Prairie Farms in Peoria providing blocks of cheese, yogurt, milk, cottage cheese and butter to families in our community.

This program is a prime example of the success of well thought out public-private partnerships filling important gaps in our communities. As we work to consistently improve and serve more families through this program, we are hopeful that we can continue such partnerships and use this program as a model for success in the future.

We respectfully ask for your continued support of USDA's Farmers to Families Food Box Program as we work to feed hungry families throughout central and southern Illinois, and ask that you work to bolster and enhance this program as we move through and past this pandemic.

Sincerely,

JOHN ROLLINS,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

As President of Borden Dairy Company, I am writing to express gratitude for the Farmers to Families Food Box Program as well as encouragement for your continued support and advocacy of this critical initiative.

Based in Dallas, Borden has been in business since 1857 and employs 3,200 people who work to keep America fed. We operate 12 manufacturing plants and nearly 100 distribution branches. Borden produces 35+ products enjoyed by millions of people every day, including children at 9,000 schools nationwide. Mid-size companies like ours employ more than ¼ of our nation's workforce.

When COVID-19 began making its impact in the U.S., Borden lost approximately 30% of its business virtually overnight due to school and restaurant closures. The contract Borden was awarded through the Farmers to Families Food Box Program enabled us to preserve employment and benefits for our people. The opportunity has reinvigorated our employees to fulfill this important mission of providing nutrition for American families.

More importantly, Borden has supplied or scheduled donations for nearly 1,000 charitable organizations across the country. By Aug. 31, we anticipate we will have provided more than 11 million free gallons of milk to people in need. These donations are reaching a wide range of organizations, from large food banks in major metropolitan areas to small town community churches and nonprofit organizations. As an example, thanks to this program, the Extra Table organization in Mississippi let us know that this is the first year in its history that it has been able to provide fresh milk to the food banks and soup kitchens it serves throughout the state. In addition, it is worth noting that Congressman Conaway's constituents have likely benefited from the 6,850 gallons of milk provided to the Food Bank of West Central Texas.

Enclosed with this letter are a few messages we have received from other recipient organizations and consumers in response to these donations. As you will see from these messages—along with the hundreds of news stories that have been published about Borden's involvement with the Farmers to Families Food Box Program—the program's impact is incredibly meaningful.

We urge you to continue supporting this initiative that is helping so many Americans who are food-insecure as a result of this global pandemic. Please do not hesitate to contact me at [Redacted] or [Redacted] if you would like to discuss our experience with this program in greater detail.

In the meantime, the Borden team continues to seek out and serve additional organizations in need as the word spreads about this terrific Federal Government program. The needs of the communities we serve continue to grow, and we are here to help.

Thank you for your leadership and support of farmers, food manufacturers and families in this time of crisis.

Sincerely,

PAT BOYLE,
President,
Borden Dairy Company.

Message: I just wanted to say Thank you for giving the milk to the food program. At the present time I have had to depend on the food pantries and they have helped since I have the grand kids living here they will drink 3 gallons a week having this extra milk sure helps. I just wanted to say Thanks and my family greatly appreciates what your company has been doing. I know it sure helps the farmers from dumping, even thou[gh] I hate seeing them loosing money at this time since being raised on a farm myself it is a lot of work and sometimes a big loss I pray that all the farmers can start coming out of the loss they have been seeing. Thanks again, McConaha family.

Good afternoon Gretchen and Kris,

We wanted to take a breathe to stop and say thank you again! You probably saw all three of our large scale distributions over the last 3 weeks! Each event increased in scope from 100% to 50%! And thanks to your product, efforts and financial support family was provide fresh milk. And as we all know milk goes a long way from a refreshing glassful, poured over cereal or an essential ingredient to some many recipes!

Thank you again to both DairyMax and Borden for collaborating with us on these special occasions!

Stay safe and well! I should mentioned the many smiles you missed seeing as a member of the Air National Guard placed a gallon or 2 of milk in their car!

In the Alabama heat Tuesday, volunteers and milk jugs sweat as hundreds of gallons were handed out for free.

A red tractor-trailer emblazoned with the Borden smiling cow sheltered the crates of milk as volunteers distributed the drink. In a drive-through style pickup, motorists pulled through the line as they were handed gallons through windows and milk was put in their trunks.

The Dairy Alliance, a nonprofit that represents dairy farmers across the southeast, partnered with Borden Dairy Co. to provide the milk free of charge to community members at Garrett Coliseum.

Borden was awarded the U.S. Department of Agriculture's largest contract through its Farmers to Families Food Box Program as part of the Coronavirus Farm Assistance Program. The contract enables Borden to supply 700 million servings of milk for free to qualifying nonprofits like the Dairy Alliance.

Borden Dairy
Cowarts, AL

Dear Borden Dairy,

Thank you so much for your generous donation of 9,600 pounds of milk to Prodissee Pantry. As you know, it's about hunger at Prodissee Pantry. The COVID-19 Pandemic has us following our Emergency Operations plan for Mass Emergency Food Distribution for Baldwin County families in need. Since March 24th, our compassionate volunteers and caring community have allowed us to distribute 5,966 family food units. That is 135 tons of food provided to Baldwin County families to insure they have food on the table and hope in their hearts. We will continue these large-scale distributions as long as needed. Your support and prayers makes this possible.

Please use this thank you as a tax deductible acknowledgement of you contribution in which no goods or services were received by the donor as a result of this gift. Let me know if you need any other documentation. A heartfelt thanks for helping us fulfill our mission found in Matthew 25:35[:] "I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you welcome me."

Blessings,

DEANN SERVOS,
Executive Director.

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

GA Foods is a specialized maker of nutrition-driven meals serving the distinct nutritional needs of healthcare patients, seniors, children, the military, and those affected by disasters. Our products are marketed under the SunMeadow® brand name and are available nationally through Meals on Wheels-type programs and health insurance providers.

We believe that our mission is much larger than “just food” and is best described as Nourishment. Delivered. Providing nourishment includes food’s vital nutrition and sustenance for life and the strengthening and building up of one in need. This is who we are and what we do. We include “delivered” in our mission because we, literally, deliver our meals right to the kitchen of seniors and healthcare patients. We also take pride in “delivering” when there is a natural disaster, a tough situation, or even active combat locations for our military.

My name is Ken LoBianco, and I founded GA Foods with my brother Jim in 1973. We remain a family business with myself and my two sons actively working in the business every day. With the pandemic outbreak, senior centers across the country were forced to close to prevent spreading the virus to their vulnerable population. Elective surgeries were also delayed. Both disrupted demand for our services and products. I am writing today to support the Farmers to Families Food Box Program, which has allowed our company to retain our staff at 14 locations and employ an additional 500 temporary workers since April.

Additionally, our team has seen firsthand how this program enabled nonprofit organizations to meet the needs of so many in our community. At each of the distribution sites, there were lines of cars with families who, without your support, may not have had food for their table.

The Farmers to Families Food Box Program perfectly combines solutions to two problems: protecting vulnerable families while providing an outlet for agricultural products that could have otherwise gone to waste. I wholeheartedly support the program and appreciate everyone involved in making it a reality.

Respectfully,

Ken LoBianco,
GA Foods,
St. Petersburg, FL.

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Charlene Johnson and I'm the executive director for Plenty Doors Community Development Corporation (Plenty Doors CDC) on the Crow Indian Reservation in southeast Montana. Plenty Doors CDC is a [501(c)(3)] nonprofit organization that focuses on building a thriving community by diversifying the economy and building individual and community capacity.

Plenty Doors CDC had to shift it's focus to responding to the local COVID response in March 2020. The Crow Reservation has been designated as a persistent poverty area for decades. The primary industry was coal and the Tribe was heavily dependent on the revenue from their coal mines. The decline in the coal industry forced the Tribe to lay off over 1,000 employees in 2017. In the spring of 2018, a fire damaged the only local full service grocery store in Crow Agency. Access to affordable groceries is at least 50 miles away, one way. This is an issue with those without reliable transportation. Our communities had a high unemployment and poverty rates prior to the pandemic. The pandemic made a difficult situation even more difficult.

The food boxes from Farmers to Families have helped tremendously. They provide our families with fresh good quality produce and protein that families do not have access to due to lack of transportation and/or inability to purchase.

Plenty Doors CDC supports the continuation of the Farmers to Families Food Box Program. Many of our families will be without food especially good quality produce and protein if this program is discontinued.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

Missouri Baptist Disaster Relief is a faith-based nonprofit ministry of the Missouri Baptist Convention. We have served disaster survivors since 1986 by providing, hot meals, flood and storm cleanup, chaplaincy, temporary childcare, hot showers, clean laundry and other ministry as needed. Approximately 2,000 volunteers are trained to serve disaster survivors without discrimination, and we never charge for the work because of the support from churches and donors.

I became aware of the USDA Farm[ers] to Famil[ies] program via a local food supplier with whom I had been working. In addition, Missouri State Emergency Management was helpful in pointing us toward ways we could serve during the [COVID-19] crisis.

Thanks to the ease by which the USDA Farm[ers] to Famil[ies] Food Box plan was implemented, over 97 churches and ministry agencies served 19,120 fresh produce boxes since June 15, 2020 in 32 Missouri counties. The majority of the 75 cities we are serving are considered rural, where access to food is more difficult than in the urban centers. Recently, we gave several boxes of fresh produce to four families living in one home. The demand for food is projected to increase, while the national food supply chain is projected to continue at pre-[COVID] levels.

I have told many of my colleagues and constituents that the USDA Farm[ers] to Famil[ies] Food Box Program is one of the best I have seen. It helps the farmer sell product, leverages the food supplier network, provides a way for the nonprofit to serve, and best of all the people get to eat! Thank you for creating an accessible program that is simple with effective results.

Sincerely,

GAYTON MOSS,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Nick Conforti and I am one of the owners of C&C Produce in Kansas City, Missouri. We have been a fresh fruit and vegetable wholesale distributor since 1992. Our company was fortunate to receive a contract with the USDA Farmers to Families Food Box Program this year. C&C Produce is not new to government contracts and I felt it important to share some firsthand experiences and insights with Congress.

As a business where nearly $70,000,000 of our revenue comes from restaurants, business cafeterias, and related food service organizations, C&C Produce was hit hard when COVID-19 struck and cities around the country instituted stay-at-home orders. We had perishable product go to waste, our 250 employees were concerned about their job security, and our growers feared for the crops that had already been planted. In one swift motion, the Farmers to Families Food Box Program solved all of these issues.

From the outside looking in, it is easy to see the USDA only distributing 25 million packages of food as a failure; however, when you consider the monumental supply chain activities that took place, it should be considered as an incredible government success. First, the USDA should be commended for the speed in which they acted. The program went from RFP to contract awards in just 2 weeks, a pace that is unheard of in government contracts. Second, awarded companies had to source product, create packing lines to make the boxes, staff those packing lines, find non-profit organizations that had the capacity to receive and distribute the product, and arrange transportation to get the product to the organizations. This type of program was new to the entire industry, to expect for this program to roll out flawlessly and at full capacity would be irresponsible.

I want to share some numbers that reflect the positive impact the Farmers to Families program has had. To date, C&C Produce has distributed nearly 900,000 boxes of fresh produce under this program. That is 22,500,000 pounds of fresh produce to an average of 2,826,000 people (assuming the average family size is 3.14 persons) in need across nine states with the help of over 300 nonprofit organizations. These boxes haven't just gone to major food banks in large metropolitan areas, they are going to hubs that are distributing to dozens of other organizations that stretch across the region. They are going to rural churches who are serving populations that have no other outlet to find help. They are going to small organizations that deliver boxes door to door to the elderly or those that cannot afford transportation to pick them up. They are going to Tribal Reservations to help the Native American populations. They are going to inner city areas designated as food deserts where there is little to no access to healthy foods. Just as no subset of the population was left unimpacted by the COVID crisis, no subset of the population has been left unaided by the Farmers to Families program.

I believe one of the biggest benefits of this program has yet to be seen. I ask that Congress consider the potential long-term outcomes of providing fresh, healthy food to people in need. Unarguably, fruits and vegetables have a positive impact on an individual's health. What will the savings to Medicare and Medicaid look like after just 6 months of having regular access healthy food?

In addition to the direct help of people in need, America's farmers have found help and confidence in the Farmers to Families program. When COVID caused restaurants to close, countless growers were terrified that their entire crop could be lost. Frequently, small growers invest their future in what they plant. If there was suddenly no one to buy that product, their future could be devastated. Because of this program, farmers have an outlet for their products and the confidence to continue planting. Furthermore, because they have the confidence to continue planting, the produce industry will avoid a catastrophe that would have happened if growers would have stopped growing resulting in huge shortages and inflated prices causing even fewer people to have access to fresh food.

The impact for C&C Produce has helped our community as well. Because of the Farmers to Families program, we have been able to add nearly 100 jobs at our facility. We market these jobs to people who are temporarily out of work because of business closures. Additionally, we fulfilled and added to our purchasing commitments to small, local growers. And we have been fortunate enough to witness first-hand how many organizations and volunteers there are willing to come together to help their neighbors in need.

In closing and on behalf of over 2.8 million people C&C Produce has been able to help, I want to thank Congress and the USDA for making the Farmers to Families Food Box Program available. I hope my writing highlights how much of a positive impact you have made on so many people who are struggling in these difficult times. We continue to see the need for this program grow each week and we urge Congress to continue to provide people the means to access healthy food. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

NICK CONFORTI,
C&C Produce,
Kansas City, MO.

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Mark Blomberg and I am the President of Western Missouri Fruit Sales, Inc. in Waverly, Missouri. We are a MO Apple Shipper/Exclusive Sales Agent for two family owned orchards in MO. One of those being the largest in the state, Peters Orchards, as well as Rasa Orchards. We started our company in 1989. Peters Orchards has been in business since 1908, who currently have 20+ full time employees and more than 120 employees during harvest/packing. Rasa Orchards has been in business for 75+ years and currently have 10+ full time employees and more than 60 employees during harvest/packing.

I am writing today in support of the Farmers to Families Food Box Program, which has helped our company get through this global pandemic and economic crisis we have all been battling. The importance of this program cannot be overstated. No matter who you are, what line of work you are in or where you live, coronavirus has affected you. As a member of a rural community, business owner and husband/father of five, I support this program because I know that our apples are going to families who are struggling during these times and might not be able to afford food for their families, let alone fresh produce without this program. I also support this program because it keeps a market for our apples and more importantly, keeps food on the table and a roof over the head of not only my family but my fellow employees' families as well. Farmers to Families is helping companies like ours to keep our business running through this pandemic.

When this pandemic hit in mid-March, our business almost came to a standstill. With schools closing early, restaurants/food-service closing and grocers trying to keep their inventory to absolute minimums in fear of being forced to close, we had nowhere to go with our apples. We did not know if we would be able to keep our business afloat. Our growers were doing everything they could to keep their employees busy while trying to decide if they should continue caring for the upcoming new crop of apples or bite the bullet and quit while they were ahead.

Thankfully one of our long-standing and loyal customers, C&C Produce, Inc. out of Kansas City, Missouri, was awarded a contract for the Farmers to Families Food Box Program. They were gracious enough to offer us a bid to sell our apples to them for the food boxes. We were amazed at the sight of their organized and highly efficient packing line they have designed for these boxes when we recently visited their facility. Seeing our fruit packed alongside the other quality produce they have procured to fill these boxes makes us proud to be a part of their operation and more importantly to serve those in need.

The Farmers to Families Food Box Program has been a blessing to so many struggling families by connecting farmers with food banks and hungry families that need help and support. I support this program and am thankful to be a part of a solution to meet such a pressing need during these unpredictable times.

Sincerely,

MARK BLOMBERG,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is John Zombolas and I am President of McFarling Foods in Indianapolis, one of the proud partners in the USDA Farmers to Families Food Box Program. Locally owned and operated since 1948, McFarling Foods is an employee-owned, full-service broadline food distributor serving restaurants, institutional food service operations, and community organizations within a 2 hour radius. We have a proud history of offering our customers the freshest ingredients necessary to remain and become successful in the food service industry. We take every opportunity to support local growers and domestic manufacturers in delivering products to our network of customers and have nurtured long standing relationships with producers who are focused on quality.

I am writing today in support of the Food Box Program, which has helped our Company endure the operational and economic challenges of the pandemic while affording us the privilege of getting food to those families who very much need support during these times. McFarling Foods felt the full weight of the pandemic crash down upon us as most of the customers we serve are restaurants, all of which have been forced to curtail operations in one form or another for protracted periods. Although our business suffered as a result, we chose to use our time to reach out to those in our community and supported many charitable endeavors early on to help stock food pantries, churches, and other charitable organizations. While these actions galvanized my employees and united them in rising above our own misfortune through service to individuals in our communities with greater need, our reach was limited by our limited resources. We did the best we could do on our own, but still had to look ahead to how we would weather the storm ourselves and keep all of our team members employed when many other companies in our industry were furloughing or terminating 40–50% of their workforce. Being granted the award to participate in the Food Box Program gave us the opportunity to do what we know we can do very well—distribute food—with a combination box comprised of items sourced from domestic producers with whom we have a long history. We wanted to include as many producing partners we could in order to build a box with a variety of food items that would substantially feed a family for several days. This Program allowed us to reach far more families in need and develop new charitable relationships than we ever could have accomplished on our own.

The importance of this program cannot be overstated. Our business was thrown an important lifeline when we needed it most. I was able to keep all of my 100 employees gainfully employed and have been able to offer work to even more individuals, both on a temporary and permanent basis. My McFarling Foods team members have found the work to be very gratifying and this program has engendered a feeling of solidarity by providing these food boxes, while we also work diligently to support our core customers as they struggle to contend with the operational challenges the coronavirus has forced upon them. Most importantly, we are humbled that we can be part of an effort that demonstrates how adversity can bring out the best in people who genuinely want to help one another find a way through these unprecedented obstacles . . . together.

Over the past several weeks that the Food Box Program has been running, we have received countless indications of gratitude from the charitable sponsors with whom we partner to distribute these boxes, and the individual recipients themselves. The response has been resoundingly positive. Without question, the Farmers to Families Food Box Program has been a blessing to so many struggling families by connecting farmers with food banks and the families that need help now more than ever before. I support this program wholeheartedly and am thankful to be a small part in meeting such a pressing need during this crisis.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

Our team at Operation Food Secure (a joint effort of the Topeka Rescue Mission, the United Way of Greater Topeka, and the City of Topeka) would like to share our support and appreciation for the USDA Farmers to Families Food Box Program. In just a few weeks, we have joined hands with thirty partner organizations to distribute over 7,000 boxes of fresh produce, dairy products, and fluid milk across five northeast Kansas counties.

These boxes come from hardworking American farmers and farmworkers, who originally raised the food for a different segment of the supply chain. Farmers to Families, authorized by the CARES Act, purchases food that would otherwise be wasted and redistributes it to nonprofits like ours that are providing hunger relief.

We have joined forces to engage social service organizations, churches, neighborhood improvement associations, and other community groups to move food into areas that need it most. Our local U.S. Foods, Reser's Fine Foods, and Mars plants have donated refrigerated trailers for us to receive, store, and redistribute 1,760 food boxes each week. We have also developed new relationships with dozens of volunteers who wholeheartedly support the vision of this program.

The pandemic has left so many families struggling with hunger and food insecurity. Furthermore, many of our rural communities and Tribes face additional barriers to food access like pervasive food deserts, food cost disparities, and transportation challenges. These struggles can hamper healthy eating habits and create nutritional inequity in states like ours. Some of our partner organizations transport food over 40 miles outside of Topeka to provide fresh food to rural families. Farmers to Families presents an exciting opportunity to bring fresh fruits, vegetables, and dairy products to the doorstep of small-town America.

We've come to find this effort is about so much more than food. These food boxes have served as a vehicle to strengthen the community, build new relationships, and sow seeds of hope amidst the storm of this pandemic.

Dear Chairman Peterson, Ranking Member Conaway, Representative Jim Hagedorn and Turner Bridgforth and Representative Rodney Davis and Janie Costa:

Prairie Farms Dairy has been a Farmer-Owned Cooperative since 1938, with over 825 farm families.

Prairie Farms has been proud to partner with the USDA on the Farmers to Families Program. We have seen first-hand the incredible impact this program has had on our local communities. We have received hundreds of calls and emails from individuals thanking us for our participation and sharing their personal stories with us. It is evident that food insecurity is a prevalent issue during these unprecedented times and this program has provided those in need with a way to overcome some of that difficulty.

For Prairie Farms Dairy, this program has been a bright spot in a very challenging time. This program has had a positive impact on Prairie Farms Dairy in a variety of ways. First, it has provided an outlet for our dairy products. With most schools and restaurants closed, the demand for a lot of our items has been reduced significantly. This program has offset that dip in demand and allowed us to put that milk to good use.

The program has also allowed us to maintain, or even expand, our workforce. The dairy variety box concept is a new and very innovative opportunity for the dairy industry. This innovative program has allowed us to maintain our workforce at our production facilities and, in some cases, we've been able to hire additional help in order to fulfill this opportunity.

We experienced historic decreases in the dairy markets at the start of the coronavirus. For many of our farmer owners, this presented them with substantial financial difficulty. Ongoing months with market losses and low prices would have caused many of them to face serious financial hardship. This program has played a significant role in stabilizing the dairy markets and bringing pricing back to levels where our farm families can earn a living, while also providing much needed food for those without jobs.

Prairie Farms Dairy has had a relationship with the USDA for several years and has been part of many of their purchasing programs. Because of this ongoing relationship, when we saw the announcement of the Farmers to Families Program, we knew that we would be the perfect fit for this type of program.

We are already so connected to the communities that we serve, we felt we had an obligation to rise to this challenge to make sure those communities were provided for in these challenging times.

Prairie Farms Dairy has seen firsthand the benefit that this program has been to local communities and agriculture professionals across the country. We support this program and everything that it has accomplished in a very short amount of time. We look forward to continuing our partnership with the USDA on this program and making sure that those struggling during these difficult times are provided for.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

Citygate Network is North America's oldest and largest community of independent, faith-based crisis shelters and life-transformation centers. In most U.S. cities, a member of Citygate Network is the most comprehensive homeless services provider, and in some cities, it is the only homeless services provider. With that background, I'd like to share my perspective and support for the Farmers to Families Food Box Program (F2F).

When we first introduced F2F to our members—approximately 300 rescue missions and similar ministries—they had many questions about the feasibility of such a massive undertaking. The questions came from a desire (actually a commitment) to serve with excellence and not under-deliver. Our members regularly step into difficult roles as an extension of their faith; however, the COVID-19 crisis required an all-hands-on-deck approach to their already stretched programs. While some organizations with limited resources had to bow out to prioritize keeping their vulnerable guests safe, housed, fed, and healthy, others with more capability stepped up to the plate, boldly trusting the vision of the program.

The role of Citygate Network has always been to provide its members with leadership and representation that inspires, advocates, educates, and represents their interests so they can lead life transformation ministries. For more than 100 years, we've faithfully served in this capacity and witnessed amazing results. Informing and encouraging our members to embrace the F2F program was a natural fit with results that far exceeded our expectations.

So many of the USDA programs provide vital lifelines to food service providers, but not one of them can work efficiently on their own. The F2F program facilitated the delivery of life-sustaining food boxes to needy families across the country. In many cases, this distribution system reached vulnerable families and individuals in dire need, creating new relationships and opening doors to other community services.

While we have been doing this work for a long time, it never gets old to see broken people filled with new hope, like they were when they received F2F food boxes. Communities have come together around this visionary program and lives have been impacted in their greatest hour of need.

Creative solutions like F2F compliment the many Federal and local programs available, closing the gaps that poverty leaves. In this case, we've learned a lot about meeting needs in hard to reach places, and neighbors willing to drive that last mile to make sure someone gets fed. The Farmers to Families program provides a unique and healthy way to make a difference across the country, and we encourage you to continue supporting this innovative approach.

Respectfully,

JOHN ASHMEN,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

I'd like to share with you about two of our smallest ministry members. Both have participated in the Farmers to Families Food Box Program (F2F) and their results are encouraging. One is located in a very rural part of North Carolina and the other provides services in the heart of downtown San Antonio, Texas. Each has a heart for service that is unique to their community. The Brunswick County Recovery Center (BCRC) in Ash, NC offers addiction programs to men and women on separate campuses with a deep dedication to gospel-powered life transformation. The Church Under the Bridge (CUB) ministry in San Antonio is primarily an outreach and emergency shelter program that provides public dinners and a church home to San Antonio's impoverished.

When the F2F program was first introduced to Citygate Network members, the leaders at BCRC said, "We absolutely need to do this for our community." I asked them if they had adequate space to meet the requirements and they said, "No, but through our partners at the local police and fire departments, the school district, the churches, the medical centers, and the many eldercare partners we work with, it'll be a cinch." Admittedly, I had my doubts, but figured it couldn't hurt for them to give it their best shot. As it turns out, thanks to their healthy partnerships, they were able to deliver a seemingly endless supply of food boxes to their community in a single day! Lines formed from multiple community hubs where families could pick up groceries, while other volunteers took boxes directly to residences without any form of transportation. Since that first day, they've received additional deliveries and have continued to bridge hunger gaps while expanding partnerships in their community to address needs.

Because of their relatively small size, The Church Under the Bridge (CUB) in San Antonio did not sign up to participate in the F2F program at first. However, when a full truck was stuck in San Antonio with no place to deliver, we reached out to CUB and they coordinated 200 volunteers to help deliver and distribute every box within a matter of hours.

These two organizations demonstrate the importance of empowering community effort. Neighbors serving neighbors to bring about family stability. The visionary solutions of F2F have brought the right people together and created opportunities for meaningful partnerships to form. Some of the relationships built will serve as a portal into the most vital programs of the community and eventually bring about stability. Others form caring relationships that inspire hope. F2F is an affordable option allowing every community to engage in the fight against hunger and poverty. I urge you to do what it takes to keep this innovative program alive and well for years to come.

Faithfully yours,

SAM EDWARDS,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

I wanted to take a moment and thank you on behalf of the 33,674 people that received roughly 444,000 pounds of food over the past several weeks. Our organization, Love Has No Limits Inc., was created to serve individuals in Los Angeles, CA and across the United States. Our organizations specializes in unifying thousands of faith communities and charities through unified events that produce lasting change.

Hundreds of our communities across southern California have been impacted by COVID-19 and as a result organizations have rolled up their sleeves to serve those in our community who need it most. I can speak for thousands of families when I tell you that this program has changed lives across southern California. Every week we have precious families who arrive and wait for hours in the hopes of receiving aid, and when they receive it, their gratitude and thankfulness is hard to describe.

We are so grateful for all that you have done to make this program a reality and look forward to continuing the work we have started.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Al Ferry and I'm the Associate Pastor at the Living Waters Oildale Seventh Day Adventist Church in Bakersfield, Ca. Our church is currently comprised of many members that have been in attendance for decades. The community our church is located in is a residential neighborhood of poor to low-income families.

The location we occupy presents a high need of concerned help to our neighbors, spiritually as well as materially. Because of COVID-19, we have realized a greater financial loss in our area. Loss of work has brought a tremendous need for feeding our local families, wherever possible.

The Farmers to Families program has brought an overwhelming, positive response. Receiving fresh fruit and vegetables, delivering these to those that are hurting, has brought great joy, not only to our neighbors but to all of our involved church members as well. It's exciting to see hope fulfilled.

I received a letter of gratitude, from one family that I believe would prove the happiness that has blossomed throughout our area. It's from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Canley. This couple has adopted two of their nieces, out of necessity and both Mr. and Mrs. are both retired, with a limited income. Mrs. (Cathy) wrote, "Thank you! Thank you! Thank you!!! These words are not enough for all the blessings you've poured out on me and my family. You've taught us that giving is such an important part of helping others. Even when it's hot, all of you have been out there carrying and delivering these wonderful boxes of food. One of our neighbors, Gus, his wife and five kids, told us they all run out when they see your people coming. He said there's so much laughing and they're so thankful for what your church does. I've seen Gus and most of the time there are tears running down his cheeks."

We are praying that the Farmers to Families program won't end, at least until things get much better. I'm sure what your doing has brought much happiness to people, wherever this program is implemented. Thank you for allowing our church to be a part of this. Our prayers are with you.

Sincerely,

AL FERRY,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Jim Craig and I am the Associate Pastor at the Living Waters Assembly of God in Lamont, California. Our church is comprised of mostly poor, farm laborers, and small business owners from Lamont and the surrounding areas. Most of our congregation are elderly and are part of the history of this area and our great nation.

Our community is mostly Hispanic and most speak little or no English. But they are proud to be living in Lamont and be a part of the United States of America. The people here are hardworking and respectful and proud of the work they are doing.

The Farmers to Families program has been a blessing to so many families in our area. These are families who live from payday to payday and often must scrounge for everything they have. That is why they are so proud of what they do have.

When we show up at a family's doorstep with a box of produce, the entire family usually greets us at the door with huge smiles. Because of the pandemic, we have to resist the urge to give and receive hugs from the entire family.

The pandemic has affected our church tremendously because most churches are almost family outings. It has scared many of them into becoming hermits and living in fear in their homes. Afraid and alone, and most have lost hope.

These are the people we reach out to. We have many people we purposely take food boxes to weekly. Some we have met simply by knocking on their door and showing them love.

We listen to people. To their fears. To their concerns. To their hearts. Some tell us about other families that may be in greater need. We visit that family. We help them with food. We help them with physical needs. We are there for them spiritually. We are there to show them love.

Some of these families are family members (children) of felons who are incarcerated and we make sure those children are able to have Christmas despite the fact there parent(s) may be locked up during this time. We visit these families also and supply them with boxes of produce from the Farmers to Families program.

These boxes enable us to reach out to families who may feel alone and unwanted, and not sure of how they can make ends meet. Because of the generosity of this program, they get more than they ever expected. They get love and concern from a church family they never knew they had.

It is never just a box of produce. It is a whole lot more.

One lady lost her husband a year or so ago. She has four (4) children. She works in the field. We showed up at her house and brought her a box of produce. She could not talk. She could only cry. Then she told us her story. She went from being some lady to being Adriana.

We take her boxes when we receive them. We have gone from being strangers alone in our community to being family. All because of a box of produce.

I have given you one example of how a box of produce has changed a life. However, I have a whole lot more stories like this. I feel like I am the luckiest man on Earth. I get to go out into my community and shower people with love. And sometimes change their lives. All because of a box of produce.

Thank you for making this happen. Your generosity has made so many great things happen in our community. I spent twenty-seven years with the Kern County Sheriff's Office and felt I made a huge difference in so many lives, but that pales in comparison with the opportunities you have provided—with a box of produce.

Sincerely,

JAMES B. CRAIG,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Troy Singleterry, and I'm the Lead Pastor of City View Church which is comprised of English, Spanish and Ethiopian speaking congregations. Nestled in the heart of San Diego, CA, our multigenerational and multi-ethnic congregations reach people from all walks of life, including many military families, throughout San Diego County.

The COVID-19 pandemic has caused many families in our church and community to lose jobs or have work hours cut, which in turn has dramatically reduced their resources. This has left them worried and hopeless mentally, financially, and physically. Our volunteers, not only from our church but occasionally others from local businesses, military personnel, and political leaders and staff, serve with hearts of compassion and a desire to make every person who comes to get a box of food feel valued, loved and accepted. How fulfilling it has been to witness the joy on people's faces, the hope kindled in their spirits, and hear the appreciation they have expressed for these boxes of quality food.

As a HUB for San Diego County, we not only have reached thousands in our community, but we also partner with about 30 local churches and para ministry organizations to reach our county and help those in need. Since May 29, we've been able to distribute over 26,500 boxes of food to people here in San Diego County.

Compassion is breeding compassion as people serve their neighbors, families, and friends. Thank you so much for launching this much-needed program during these trying times for America. It has been our highest honor and privilege to serve our community through the Farmers to Families Food Box Program.

Sincerely,

PASTOR TROY SINGLETERRY,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Karl Hargestam and I am the Executive Director of CityServe Network, based in Bakersfield, CA. We are a collaborative network of churches and community leaders connected to overcome despair in the community. The network expands throughout southern California and extends to Washington and Nevada. Currently, the network is made up of 38 HUBs who receive, sort, and distribute food and other necessities to 1,000+ PODs (point of distribution). CityServe PODs take the resources into their neighboring communities and deliver them to the most vulnerable people in need.

When the pandemic hit we knew the CityServe HUB/POD distribution model, which was in place prior to the crisis, could reach families that are affected most by the shifted economy. More often than not, food is being delivered through, what we call, the “Last Mile of Need.” Households in the “Last Mile of Need” are families with food needs that are often unmet for a variety of reasons. The deficiency of government agencies and most nonprofits to reach these households, mostly due to program capacity, creates a risk of malnutrition and starvation—which is particularly true for households with young children.

I’m writing to you today to express my support of the USDA Farmers to Families Food Box Program and ask that it continues forward during this challenging time. We have seen in various ways how this program has been a unique solution to the many problems brought on by the COVID-19 pandemic. Low-income families who were working hard to make ends meet in their homes before the pandemic are now having to make hard decisions on whether their household funds go towards food or shelter.

These families are scared and are losing hope. They shouldn’t have to feel this way when we live in the greatest country with an abundance of fresh, nutritious foods. The alarming amount of food that has been wasted because of the abrupt halt in our national food supply is not necessary and is why the food box program is an excellent solution.

The food box program is feeding hungry families but it is also providing hope during the darkest time the world has ever seen. One of our church PODs in Bakersfield shared a story of a man who had reached a dark point of depression. With young children at home, the man was overcome with despair because of the loss of a job, money, and food and was about to take his own life. But he saw the church sign that read “FREE FOOD” and it gave him hope. The man did not turn to suicide for the answer. He got food for his family and connects with the church congregation on a regular basis for resources from the food box program.

We know the Farmers to Families Food Box Program is making a difference in the lives of millions of families. CityServe Network supports this program because it supplies food in the “Last Mile of Need,” it offers hope during this tragic season, and it demonstrates our country’s resiliency and ability to come together and triumph in the midst of chaos.

Sincerely,

KARL HARGESTAM,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Susana Beltran and I’m an Associate Pastor at El Buen Pastor Church in McFarland, California. Our church is comprised of mostly Hispanic families in a small community of predominantly Hispanic farmworkers.

The Farmers to Families has been a blessing to our church and community. We have seen many families hit hard financially during this [COVID-19]/quarantine time and the produce & protein boxes we have been able to distribute have helped the situation greatly.

It might be easy to think that the affect of this pandemic is not as bad as we think but the numbers do not lie. Even in our small community, week after week, we see over 250 to 300 people drive thru to receive help in the form of the produce & protein boxes. This pandemic does not discriminate: Everyone need help.

We had a lady drive thru at a recent distribution who would seem out of place at a food giveaway. She rolled in on a SUV & as she drove thru the line, the tears started to fall. She never expected to “need” the help but the pandemic had touched her family & she wasn’t sure where her next meal would come from. The financial weight the pandemic had caused was made a little lighter knowing that she wouldn't have to worry for a meal for her family for at least 2 weeks.

During another distribution, towards the end of our time out there, a car full of farmworkers pulled up. As we loaded their trunk with the protein boxes, they expressed their gratitude & told us they were just notified it was their last day at work so they were grateful to not have to worry about a meal.

We know that Farmers to Families has truly been a blessing to every single person that comes through & it has also been a blessing to every single one of our Ministry Volunteers. Thank you to everyone involved in the Farmers to Families Food Box Program. We hope you continue the amazing work that has been of great help to so many.

Sincerely,

SUSANA G. BELTRAN.

Honorable Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

I am writing in regards to the Farmers to Families Food Box Program that has helped hundreds of families receive food in my district and thousands throughout our region.

As you know, the COVID-19 pandemic has resulted in severe job loss and disruption throughout our nation. Thankfully, City View Church head pastor Troy Singleterry and his congregation has stepped up during this crisis to serve as a hub for this program in San Diego County. The church has tirelessly organized 35 other local churches and organizations to distribute over 26,000 boxes of food to struggling San Diego families.

Through the Farmers to Families Food Box Program and City View Church's hard work, the hub has become a vital resource for our region. If the programs discontinues, it would create severe distress to working families already struggling to tread water during this unprecedented pandemic.

I respectfully request your strong consideration to continue this vital food program during these hard times. For any questions or comments, please don't hesitate to contact me personally at [Redacted] or email at [Redacted].

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Rich Shepherd and I'm the Campus Pastor at Canyon Hills in San Luis Obispo, CA. Our church is comprised of many different age ranges and social backgrounds. We would be considered a college town, but also a town of young families and the elderly.

The reason that I support the Farmers to Families program is because of its dedication to help those in need. We have been blown away by the response of our community and in the 2 short weeks doing it, have ran out. The need is so big. I've seen countless families come through and with tears in their eyes share just how much this helps them. Because of schools being shut down, families not receiving lunch meals for their kids have said this is such a help.

This pandemic has affected our town so much because it is built on small business and travel. Because of that, many hotel, restaurant, and customer service business have closed and these families have felt the impact of it.

One thing that stands out to me is the people who have stepped up to serve these families. Volunteers have come to give 6 hours of their time to help. Because of that, they have looked into the eyes of those people and have acquired a greater compassion level for those in need. Truly irreplaceable! Our mayor has joined us for 2 straight weeks and can't get enough of it.

I cannot stress enough how much this program has impacted our city. Our mayor and town officials have been blown away by the response as well as the news media as they have come out and witnessed the lines backing up onto other streets. I support and commend the Farmers to Families Food Box Program and can't thank them enough!

Sincerely,

RICH SHEPHERD,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Rod Haro and I'm the Lead Pastor at the Fowler Worship Centre church in Fowler, Ca. We are a rural church located in the heart of an agricultural community. Our church is multi-cultural and the economic demographic is low-income to middle class. We are a community-minded church with a great emphasis on compassion ministry. We have six other Worship Centre campuses that are located in more impoverished rural communities.

Our community and the Central Valley has been hit extremely hard by the current pandemic crisis. Many families have lost their jobs and are experiencing such challenging times economically. We as a church have been working hard to secure the one thing that these families need most . . . food to feed their families.

Farmers to Families Food Box Program has been an invaluable resource and a tremendous blessing to our community. Because of this program we are able to supply thousands of families all over this valley with fresh, quality produce. People are lined up hours in advance at our weekly food outreach because of the great need for food. In addition we are able to service 20 other local churches and community outreach partners as they in turn resource their communities and neighborhoods.

The Farmers to Families program in a very practical way is what the spirit of America is all about. People helping people in their times of need. It creates a spirit of unity and connection as those less fortunate realize that others care and that their needs are important to those in their society.

Thank you to the Farmers to Families program for making such an impact on so many peoples lives in this most trying of times in our nation. The people who receive these much needed resources thank you and our prayer is that this program will continue to be available to those who truly depend on this program.

Sincerely,

REV. ROD HARO,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Jared Waterfield and I am the Director of Marketing for Military Produce Group located in Norfolk, Virginia. We are proud partners of the United States Military community, having enjoyed 2 decades of distributing fresh fruits and vegetables to the Defense Commissary Agency. In addition to our facility in Norfolk, we operate fresh produce distribution centers in Birmingham, Alabama and Savannah, Georgia. This geographical footprint enables us to place great emphasis on supporting local and Veteran owned farms throughout the eastern United States. When the opportunity to support communities within our reach arose in the form of the Farmers to Families program, we knew we were not only built for the mission, but that we had a duty to do our part in helping to ensure it is successful.

The USDA Farmers to Families Food Box program has had such a positive impact on all aspects of the produce supply chain. For the American farmer, it has provided a much-needed outlet for their produce to reach the community. Product originally destined for restaurants and food service, that would otherwise go to waste, is now available to the dinner tables of families in need. For distributors, the Farmers to Families program has kept packing lines operational, distribution centers running, and supported ongoing employment in the agriculture industry. But most importantly, this program has helped fragile communities impacted by the pandemic, preventing them from falling into a “food desert” in their own towns. Through the Farmers to Families Food Box program, Military Produce Group has been empowered to help these communities, no matter how out of reach they may appear, ensuring that nutritious food options are not limited only to families who remain financially fortunate.

We are grateful for the opportunity that Farmers to Families has provided and humbled by the ground floor stories we have heard from community leaders while supporting the initiative. When we received notice that we were awarded a contract within the program, we worked quickly to contact food banks, nonprofits, and faith-based entities that were experienced in serving communities in need. Partnerships were swiftly developed and communication between our team and local organizations became ever-increasing. We heard stories of families that had not had fresh vegetables in weeks and communities with thousands of people lining up hours in advance of a distribution event, just to ensure they received fresh food while it was available for a limited time. Frequently after making our first food box deliveries, we were asked to increase both the frequency and number of boxes we were delivering due to increasing and unprecedented demand. It became clear that organizers were doing a fantastic job of spreading the word that these boxes were available and coordinated ever-growing, ever-improving events to ensure distributions were efficient. Food-insecure communities were further identified through reaching out to organizations such as Convoy of Hope, Community Foodbanks of NJ, the Federation of Virginia Food Banks, and the North Carolina Dept. of Agriculture. Each partnership helped to identify more areas of need and more stories of hardship wrought on rural America.

As we continue to support the Farmers to Families program, we maintain our lines of communication with the organizers and representatives throughout the communities we serve. We have seen photos from events large and small, full of volunteers unloading thousands of boxes by hand. Videos of cars lined up for miles waiting for a food distribution to begin. Letters and phone calls from representatives telling us of their efforts and the community response while requesting additional distributions. Throughout every area the feedback has been the same—grateful communities, desperate for nutritious food, are coming together to do everything they can to support each other.

The Farmers to Families Food Box program continues to be essential in keeping towns like those described here from falling apart during the pandemic. Through this program farmers, distributors, nonprofits, and American communities have created a network that ensures our food supply is directed to those who benefit most. Providing this necessary food supply chain for impacted families ensures we can keep our nation healthy, our children fed, and families free from the fear of food insecurity. Military Produce Group is proud to participate in such an initiative and encourages the ongoing support and funding for the Farmers to Families Food Box program.

Sincerely,

JARED C. WATERFIELD,
Military Produce Group,
Norfolk VA.

Dear Representative Conaway,

Thank you for your leadership on behalf of America's farmers and ranchers, especially in such trying times.

As you work to develop Phase IV legislation to respond to COVID-19 impacts on the U.S. economy, including agriculture, I would like to encourage you to continue the highly successful Farmers to Families Food Box Program.

While my bid to participate in round one of the program was not accepted, I was able to cure the defects in my bid in order for it to be accepted in the second round. Despite the early setback, I am very proud to be a part of a program that has provided 41.5 million food boxes to food banks, community and faith-based organization, and other nonprofits serving Americans in need. Just last week we packed and shipped 38,000 20 pound boxes of fruits and vegetables throughout the Southeast.

Titan Farms primarily grows peaches, bell peppers, and broccoli and my family and I are truly grateful for the opportunity the Farmers to Families Food Box Program afforded us to share the bounty of our family farm with Americans in need during the ongoing pandemic. Healthy diets, including fruits and vegetables, promote healthy immune systems and that could not be more important than it is right now.

I hope you will continue to support the Farmers to Families Food Box Program as part of the nation's COVID-19 relief efforts.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

By way of introduction, my name is Bob Ona, and I serve as the Lead Pastor of Northview Church in the Fargo/Moorhead area, which are border cities in North Dakota and Minnesota.

Our church has worked at founding civic activities that benefit our area, which has resulted in unity events involving community and municipal organizations that highlight building bridges between local police forces and ethnic enclaves in various parts of our metroplex. Typically we work with multiple entities to stage outdoor events with sound systems and platforms, mass barbecues, games, dunk tanks, prizes, food distribution and in general create a carnival atmosphere that builds community esprit de corps.

One result of these events has been the founding of Reach the Heart, a service minded entity through which we recently distributed 75,000 pounds of food to those in need of our community, all because of the food provided by Farmers to Families. These events, conducted in June, went a long way toward promoting community unity at a time when civil unrest was stirring in our area.

I was pleased that we were able to distribute food to diverse groups including those who came to the United States from Nepal, Haiti, Sudan, Ivory Coast, and Bosnia to name a few.

One young man called me to ask if he could help distribute food even though:

- He did not go to my church. Answer: “Yes”.
- He was not a Christian. Answer: “Yes”.
- He was a Muslim. Answer: “Are you a hungry Muslim?” We both laughed and he promised to show up.

One further bright spot is that we linked the food distribution to the first of several relational events called, “Selah listening Circles.” The object is to bring together those who are considered minorities so that others can hear their stories and build community. Our first session went exceptionally well, with more to come.

As a result of the efforts mentioned above, people in smaller communities have touched base with us in the hopes that we could help them do similar events in their relatively distant locales. Of course we would be happy to help if we have the opportunity.

I deeply appreciate how the food box program through Farmers to Families gave us a mechanism to reach out into our community and build good will. Hopefully we will be able to repeat the experience and help others in more remote locations to do more of the same.

Thank you for your leadership.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Calvin Thompson and I serve as the Director of Reach the Heart Ministries. I also serve as Outreach Pastor with Northview Church in Fargo, ND.

Northview Church and community is comprised of people from numerous backgrounds and we have a large number of people from a variety of different countries who now reside in this area.

Over the last 28 years, I served Northview Church (formerly First Assembly) as Youth Pastor and have been involved with many community events that included volunteering in area Middle Schools and High Schools of the Fargo, ND, West Fargo, ND, and the Moorhead, MN communities.

When the opportunity was presented to provide families with fresh produce through this difficult time, it was a no-brainer for me to want to participate. As we prepared for our first distribution on Saturday June 13th; we scheduled to distribute boxes of food from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Quickly, many volunteers stepped forward to participate. During the first week we were able to distribute approximately 950 boxes of food before 1 p.m.

Throughout the morning many people expressed their appreciation for what we were doing throughout the day. Several of those individuals were literally on the verge of tears and thankful. It was amazing!

At our second distribution day June 27th; we distributed two semi-truck loads of produce. Our plan that day was also to distribute from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. However, by 1 p.m. we had given out almost 1,900 boxes of food.

That day, I personally had several folks ask how they could be involved and expressed how much it meant to have us providing so much food to people needing assistance. Several persons even offered to deliver boxes of produce to elderly individuals who could not come to pick up a box. We had already set up though several organizations and people to do just that.

For many, the pandemic has affected a family's level of income. By providing numerous families with a box of produce it gave each family a little extra money to be available for other needs.

Our community, like many other communities during this time has seen the shut-down of their places of employment. Several individuals would even get out of their vehicle in order to give me a fist bump or an elbow hit and to let me know how incredible this gift will be for their family.

One huge take away from this time was to be able to watch as volunteers worked so hard; placing a box of produce in a vehicle; and then taking a moment to offer a word of encouragement to each person. Several families who were assisting to hand out the boxes, indicated that they had one of the greatest family experiences by having their children involved as well.

Knowing that lives were changed and blessed has made this experience so incredible.

When I was looking for assistance to put this event together, several very key persons came on board immediately to assist with the organization and flow of the day. It amazes me how ready people are to help with an opportunity to bless others.

In doing this event, I knew we would also need a refrigerated truck in order to keep the produce cool throughout the morning. A local businessman who owns a produce company provided us with a refrigerator trailer at no cost for both our events and came by a couple times to observe. Also, another individual's business provided us with a forklift to make it easier to lift the pallets of produce out of the truck.

Finally, here is a message a mom shared on my Facebook page from her experience that day. She brought her two children with her to volunteer the entire morning.

"I told my girls that volunteering is like veggies for the soul and for our community. It may not be something you crave right away, but the more you do it, the healthier you are, the more you'll want to do it. AND the ranch you put on it to make it taste even better are things like your attitude, music, togetherness, and laughter. I had mixed reviews on my analogy, but because I'm a good mom (not always a popular mom) I'm happy to let that marinate. ☺ #eatyourveggies #bekind"

I have so many other responses I could share if I had the time; but I want to thank you for making this opportunity a reality for the community. If other opportunities are provided, I plan to do this event again and I have been talking with several other Pastors in the state to see if we could assist them with an opportunity in the future as well.

Sincerely,

CALVIN THOMPSON,
Director of Reach the Heart,
South Fargo ND.

United States House Committee on Agriculture,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Chairman Peterson and Ranking Member Conaway:

My name is Lori McAfee and I'm the President at Wings As Eagles Ministries on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation, SD. Our ministry is comprised of three reservations including Pine Ridge Reservation as well as Rosebud, SD, Northern Arapaho Reservation, WY. It has been an amazing program to bring much needed fresh food to a forgotten people group.

The poorest of the poor on these reservations have been excited to receive fresh fruit and vegetables. The families do not receive fresh fruit or vegetables even on a good day. One family cried when they received a box. Two Lakota children from the Pine Ridge Reservation ate a whole bag of apples!

With gatherings not permitted on the reservations due to an increase of cases this program has made all the difference to the people.

We are grateful and thankful for this fresh food program. Many of the forgotten areas of the country are now receiving quality food.

Sincerely,

LORI MCAFEE,
Wings As Eagles Ministries.

Farmers to Families Food Box Program

Claim vs. Fact

July 2020

Claim: The Farmers to Families Food Box Program (FFFBP) was the victim of a rushed process that included no engagement with current distributors and non-profits and resulted in cherry-picked contractors who were not qualified.

Fact: Utilizing contracting flexibilities provided by Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) Part 18 during an Emergency Declaration, the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) designed a process to rapidly vet and approve contractors to participate in the program. The vetting process relied upon answers to a Request for Proposals (RFP). Offerors described the capabilities they had for achieving performance under the contract.

Demonstrations of this capability included, but were not limited to, commercial experience; business ethics and integrity standards; food safety and/or regulatory audits; inspections, certifications and approvals; and a demonstration of financial capability to perform. USDA evaluated the offeror's ability to responsibly execute the requirements of the contract as they pertain to administrative, ethical, safety, compliance, and financial prowess of the offeror. As part of USDA's standard internal controls, the acquisition will be reviewed for compliance to the solicitation and Federal regulations.

Like other Federal contracts administered by USDA, FFFBP and its awardees require strict adherence to the FAR and other regulations. All proposals were carefully reviewed by a team of approximately 18 contracting and technical experts, and contracts were made accordingly.

Proposals for the FFFBP were evaluated by (in descending order of importance) the technical information: past performance of the offeror, the offeror's capability to perform, and the prices offered. Offerors must have met all criteria in order to be competitive and must have, or be able to acquire, a Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (PACA) license to comply with the contractual requirement. All current contractors have valid PACA licenses.

Each vendor awarded a contract provided three past performance references for similar contract/orders completed within the past 3 years (or contracts and orders which were currently being completed). The amounts and locations awarded were based on the offers received and the evaluation of those offers.

Claim: There is no accountability in FFFBP.

Fact: USDA provides oversight throughout the contract period, conducting robust audits to ensure food safety plans are followed, that only domestic produce is provided, and that quality products are delivered, among other contract administration matters. Contracts require suppliers to source food from producers, prepare the boxes of items identified in their proposal, and deliver the boxes to nonprofit organizations on a mutually agreeable, recurring schedule while adhering to food safety protocols. Payment is only made upon the submission of an invoice documenting evidence of delivery and adherence to the contractual requirements. In addition, the Contracting Officer is responsible for monitoring the performance of all contractors. If there are concerns, contractual remedies may be used, which could include termination. USDA has chosen to exercise this right in two situations. As with any new program, evaluations are ongoing to assist USDA in determining whether any adjustments are needed.

Claim: Increasing the benefits associated with the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) or increasing funding for The Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP) would have been a smarter policy solution.

Fact: Increases to SNAP or TEFAP are subject to Congressional action. Unlike these programs, there are no hurdles to households seeking food from FFFBP. This program provides food to any family in need regardless of income, employment, immigration status, etc.

Further, in addition to supplying food to families in need, the program was crafted in response to unprecedented global and domestic disruption to the food supply chain. FFFBP serves three objectives unique to the program:

- Provides an alternative market for food intended for restaurants and food service, creating outlets for supply chains that could not be easily realigned to retail markets quickly enough to prevent spoilage.
- Provides fresh products in greater quantity than suitable for traditional emergency feeding programs—items such as dairy, fluid milk and cooked meat—which present unique logistical challenges for distribution.
- Re-employ workers in the commercial food distribution sector, whose work was idled by the closure of restaurants, hotels, and other food service businesses.

Claim: Increasing SNAP benefits is the only viable approach to meet the nutrition needs of Americans.

Fact: The COVID-19 pandemic brought unprecedented challenges to our nation's food supply system. Simply providing more money for use in retail venues, while many retailers were facing historic demand:

- Would not have moved excess product that had been intended for non-retail buyers;
- Would not have put Americans to work, and most importantly;
- Would not have distributed nutritious and abundant fresh food to Americans most in need during this crisis.

The pandemic and the FFFBP have made clear that we need to address food insecurity in creative ways that leverage public and private capabilities to America's nutrition needs.

Claim: The program only serves limited areas and did not take into consideration those areas with the most need.

Fact: On July 1, 2020, USDA announced $202 million in new contracts, via a new acquisition activity, with select vendors whose offers were not previously accepted due to various minor technical issues in their proposals. These distributors will help direct food to under-served areas and will have an increased focus on Opportunity Zones in order to direct food to reach under-served areas, places where either no boxes have yet been delivered, or where boxes are being delivered but where there is additional need. Original RFP offerors do not need to submit additional or revised information unless asked to do so by the Contracting Officer.

Claim: USDA fell woefully short of their commitment to deliver 40 million boxes to people in need by June 30, 2020.

Fact: As of July 22, 2020, USDA has invoiced 35.4 million boxes for the period ending June 30, 2020. While deliveries from the base period of performance have ceased, AMS continues to receive and process invoices, leaving the total amount of boxes delivered subject to change. Critics of the program essentially want to tell you the final score of the game before it is over!

Additionally, FFFBP has far exceeded USDA's April estimate that the program would procure $300 million per month in fresh fruits, vegetables, meat, and dairy. The value of the 35.4 million boxes invoiced so far in May and June is more than $940 million.

Claim: There are no clear points of contact within the Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) to submit complaints or ask questions.

Fact: The FFFBP website via AMS has a specific email address that allows USDA internal teams to triage inquiries. AMS's contracting team fields inquiries from recipients and contractors on a regular basis through this channel.

Claim: USDA has not explained their rationale for the various regions (e.g., Puerto Rico being part of the Mid-Atlantic Region).

Fact: USDA used the identical regional breakdown used by Food, Nutrition, and Consumer Services (FNCS). Applying these existing regional boundaries allowed USDA to quickly delineate areas for local and regional procurement of food and distribution of boxes—a stated objective of the program.

Claim: Some contractors fell short of the number of boxes they were contracted to deliver.

Fact: The following cannot be stressed enough: no vendor is paid until proof of delivery and compliance with the contract is confirmed.

Contracts included not-to-exceed volumes, but did not stipulate a minimum performance level, allowing flexibility under changing market conditions. Fluid milk is a good example of the soundness of this approach:

- Demand and pricing for cheese increased throughout the contract period;

- Milk was directed to the processing of cheese; and
- Less fluid milk was available in certain areas as a result.
- Therefore, a contract for specific volumes would have negatively impacted the dairy industry.

Remaining funds not paid against contracts in the first round were used to augment the program in the second round. Any funds remaining from the second round will be applied to the new round of vendor solicitations for deliveries through October, which USDA will announce shortly.

SUBMITTED COMMENTS BY HON. GLENN THOMPSON, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM PENNSYLVANIA

"These have been great for the families that we are serving mainly because these are items that with limited incomes most people aren't able to purchase due to getting other basic foods that they need. The popularity has been outstanding, the product has been great, and I only wish I was able to get more. The food chain per say is still tight in most stores and people are trying to stretch their dollars as much as they can. I am getting most of these boxes from the Central PA Food Bank and I did get some from Ryan Campbell Farms, but not been able to receive more from them."

MEL CURTIS, YMCA of Centre County, Anti-Hunger Director.

"Fresh produce boxes were received and weighed approximately 20lbs each I and other volunteers were amazed at the variety of fresh produce. They were amazing. Quality, excellent. No spoilage that I could see or heard from anyone. Received some comments second hand that clients were very appreciative and amazed at the quantity and variety."

One client, no two clients, commented to me directly that they were going to make homemade vegetable soup. They were excited actually."

My opinion. To be able to distribute these emergency [boxes] to each and every client was a 'God'send. Both types were well received and would be great to continue to distribute to all during these difficult times."

JOHN, Christian Food Bank of Elk County.

"The USDA Farm[ers] to Families Food Box Program has been a blessing to the Food for Friends Food Bank in Columbia County, Pa. The quality of the produce is very good and the variety of fruits and vegetables is excellent. The people we serve look forward to receiving the items every other week. I hope the program is able to continue till the end of the year."

JOHN TRATHEN, Food for Friends Food Bank Committee Member.

"We are receiving and distributing dairy boxes and half gallons of 2% milk from Schneiders' and Turner Dairy. We can get all the milk we need, but the dairy boxes are limited. Dairy boxes contain cheese, yogurt, butter, etc., as well as milk. The boxes are easy to distribute when we have drive-thru distributions because we can safely load them directly into clients' trunks. We also receive all the produce boxes we need that contain potatoes, carrots, cabbage, onions, fruit, etc. Because these items are already boxed, it is easy for us to distribute them. The Farm to Families program has enabled us to distribute healthy food to families in need, and it would be important to continue it during this pandemic."

SUBMITTED QUESTIONS

Responses from Hon. Greg Ibach, Under Secretary, Marketing and Regulatory Programs, U.S. Department of Agriculture

Questions Submitted by Hon. Marcia L. Fudge, a Representative in Congress from Ohio

Question 1. For Rounds 1 and 2 of FFFBP, what is USDA doing to ensure that all the food in the boxes, including processed foods like cooked chicken and pork and dairy products, can be traced back to domestic producers?

Answer. USDA provides oversight throughout the contract period, conducting robust audits to ensure food safety plans are followed, that only domestic produce is provided, and that quality products are delivered, among other contract administration matters. Outlined below and attached is the relevant contract requirements specific to domestic origin. (See attached domestic origin certification that must be submitted by all vendors [Attachment 1].)

Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) technical staff conduct reviews of all vendor proposals to assist AMS contracting staff determine vendor eligibility for the Base and Option 1 food box purchases, including confirmation of domestic origin of product provided.

Agency technical experts also complete vendor verification reviews and audits, including domestic origin in support of the USDA Farmers to Families Food Box Program (FFFBP). Additional information about the AMS Domestic Origin Verification (DOV) program can be found at www.ams.usda.gov.

Contracting staff is responsible for monitoring the performance of all contractors. If there are concerns, contractual remedies may be used, which could include termination.

Question 1a. Has USDA confirmed that all contractors, including those with little to no experience in food distribution, have the necessary documentation describing where they sourced their food? Has USDA paid any contractors without confirming such documentation?

Answer. USDA provides oversight throughout the contract period, conducting robust audits to ensure food safety plans are followed, that only domestic produce is provided, and that quality products are delivered, among other contract administration matters. Contracts require suppliers to source food from producers, prepare the boxes of items identified in their proposal, and deliver the boxes to nonprofit organizations on a mutually agreeable, recurring schedule, while adhering to the high USDA food safety protocols. Payment will be made upon the submission of an invoice documenting evidence of delivery and adherence to the contractual requirements. The Federal Acquisition Regulation Part 49 provides guidance regarding termination of Federal contracts, including contracts approved for the FFFBP.

As part of their proposal, offerors described their capabilities for achieving performance under the contract. Demonstrations of this capability included but were not limited to: commercial experience; business ethics and integrity standards; food safety and/or regulatory audits; inspections; certifications and approvals; and a demonstration of financial capability to perform. USDA evaluated the offeror's ability to responsibly execute the requirements of the contract as they pertain to administrative, ethical, safety, compliance, and financial prowess of the offeror.

As part of the technical review prior to contract award, USDA contracting staff reviewed subcontracting plans of all suppliers. In addition, during the execution of the food box program, desk audits, and in some cases when safety allows it, on-site audits are being conducted to verify contracting terms are being met.

Question 2. Please provide the number of individuals at USDA, as well as the number of FTEs, ensuring that the FFFBP contractors are in compliance with the terms of the contracts in Rounds 1 and 2. Please provide the job title for each individual and describe the responsibilities for each individual, as it relates to ensuring compliance with the Food Box contract.

Answer. USDA has designated a team of specialists and contracting officers to assist in the administration of the FFFBP purchases. Purchases were awarded by region. There are eight regions covering the country and territories including one designated as multi-regional. Each region has a specialist assigned to it to assist with questions, logistics and to monitor pricing and payments.

The USDA team is being led by a GS15 Agricultural Marketing Specialist (Division Director) responsible for overall team planning and project execution. Contracting activity was led by a GS14 Contracting Officer (CO) responsible for development of the purchase strategy, solicitation design and submission review, contract award and compliance supported by a team of contract specialists. In addition, the team consists of five 1102's at the GS12 level and two 1146's, one at the GS12 and the other at the GS11 level. 1102's are Contract Specialists and 1146's are Agricultural Marketing Specialists.

The contracting team is being assisted by a group of four from across the Agency with expertise to review proposal submissions for technical sufficiency and to conduct food safety and Domestic Origin Verification audits.

A team from the Web Based Supply Chain Management (WBSCM) group and data analytics assisted in contractor training and report development. A GS13 Program Analyst, and two GS12 Agricultural Marketing Specialists assisted in these activities.

Question 3. During the hearing, I had requested a list of all the nonprofits receiving food boxes from FFFBP contractors in Rounds 1 and 2.

Please provide a list of those nonprofits, as well as any governmental entities, the address of each entity, and how many boxes each entity received.

Answer. Yes, we are providing a list of entities receiving boxes, [see Attachment 2]. We are not capturing addresses and box counts.

Question 4. Just 3 days after the hearing, USDA announced a third round of FFFBP contracts and significant changes to the Program in the third round.

Why did USDA decide not to extend any of the existing contracts into Round 3?

Answer. On August 25, 2020, USDA announced it has begun issuing agreements for distribution of Food Boxes in the upcoming third round of solicitations. Issuing new agreements for distribution in the in the third round using Basic Ordering Agreements (BOA) gives USDA greater flexibility to ensure contracted entities provide adequate coverage throughout the states and territories. In addition, the new agreements incorporate feedback received during the first two rounds, including placing more emphasis on food insecurity by seeking entities that provide combination boxes and requiring distributors to illustrate how they will provide coverage to areas identified as opportunity zones, detail subcontracting agreements, and address the “last mile” delivery of product into the hands of the food-insecure population.

Question 4a. The solicitation for the third round notes that offerors “must self-certify that nonprofits have the capability to ensure that only needy people, or the food-insecure population, will receive the food boxes,” and that the offerors must address their ability to ensure this requirement is enforced and validated. Please explain in detail what information USDA would consider sufficient to demonstrate the nonprofit’s capability and how it expects offerors to enforce and validate the requirement.

Answer. An offeror’s nonprofit partners must comply with AMS Doc. No. AMS-CP-20-0040. An offeror must self-certify that their nonprofit partner has the capability to ensure that only needy people, or the food-insecure population, will receive the food boxes through this Program. As part of the BOA proposal submission narrative, offerors shall address their ability to ensure that the aforementioned requirements are enforced and validated. The offeror is also required to affirm this via the Section E.2, BOA Submission Spreadsheet tab B.4.a-d ‘Required Performance Elements/Affirmation.’ USDA contracting staff is responsible for monitoring the performance of all contractors. If there are concerns, contractual remedies may be used, which could include termination.

Question 5. The Federal Procurement Data System (FPDS) is the Federal Government’s central database of information on Federal procurement actions. Federal regulations require Federal agencies to report procurement actions, such as FFFBP contract awards, to FPDS.

Can USDA please explain the numerous inconsistencies between the list of contractors posted on USDA’s FFFBP website and the information in FPDS, and commit to ensuring that the correct information is posted on both websites? For example, USDA’s website shows that Borden Dairy Co. was awarded a contract of $146.9 million in the first round. FPDS shows that Borden Dairy Co. was awarded a contract of $36.7 million in the first round and had its contract extended for $36.16 million in the second round.

Answer. Awards were based on contractors stated ability to deliver specific amounts of food boxes. Upon award and based on discussions with offerors, it was occasionally decided that a different amount of boxes were going to be delivered for various reasons, thus the discrepancy. Contracts were awarded on a “Not to Exceed” basis. The AMS website shows the NTE and FPDS is the actual amount the contractor agrees to deliver. Contractors are only paid for what they deliver.

Question 6. Please describe in detail the economic analysis used by USDA to determine purchases in the Trade Mitigation Food Purchase and Distribution Program.

For example, how does that economic analysis justify USDA’s purchase of canned vegetable soups, such as cream of mushroom soup, for the Trade Mitigation Food Purchase and Distribution Program?

Answer. An economic assessment of trade damage conducted by USDA’s Office of the Chief Economist identified a variety of processed foods negatively impacted by retaliatory tariffs. These processed food products included tomato sauces, canned tomatoes, pasta, prepared cereals, soups/broths, and other food products commonly purchased for USDA feeding programs. A link to the reports that outline the methodology used to estimate trade damages can be found here:

Question 7. On July 30th, the Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) announced a nearly $1 million award under the Healthy Fluid Milk Incentive (HFMI) Project to the Baylor University Collaborative on Hunger and Poverty. This is in addition to FNS's September 2019 grant of $5 million to Baylor University and FNS's March 2020 collaboration with Baylor University to deliver food boxes to children.

How many other entities submitted applications for an HFMI award?

Question 7a. Can USDA provide the points awarded for each submitted HFMI application, broken down by evaluation factor?

Question 7b. How much funding has Baylor University received from FNS for each of Fiscal Years 2009 through 2020?

Answer 7–7b. The information requested is outside the purview of the Marketing and Regulatory Programs Mission Area. As such, we cannot offer further insight, and would respectfully encourage the Representative to engaged directly with the Food and Nutrition Service.

Questions Submitted by Hon. Jimmy Panetta, a Representative in Congress from California

Question 1. My food bank in Monterey County is receiving dairy and produce boxes from the Central Valley. They are partnering with some wonderful distributors, but I have asked myself, why is a food bank in the Salad Bowl of the World receiving produce from a different region? From conversations with the California Association of Food Banks, I understand that this example is a microcosm of what is happening up and down the state.

In agricultural hubs like my district, what is USDA doing to ensure local produce reaches local food banks and nonprofits?

Answer. For Round 3 solicitations, USDA is requiring offerors to include a written narrative describing their role in support of American agriculture. The offeror should address how their participation supports the mission of facilitating agricultural markets. The offeror should also describe how they intend to engage small farmers (e.g., those farms servicing local and regional interests and farmers markets). If this is not addressed, USDA will not consider the proposal. USDA is specifying that one or two locally grown fruit or vegetable items, as available, be included in the produce and combination box.

Question 2. From stories I have heard from my food banks, I am aware that some of the food boxes are full of nutritious fruits and vegetables or dairy products, while others are less than ideal—maybe some onions and carrots.

Is every food box supposed to be equal to another in the same category?

Answer. USDA understands that the value of a food box will depend on the product it contains. However, USDA has attempted to provide equal volume of food by requiring about 15–20 pounds each of produce, meat and dairy in individual boxes and the combination box.

Question 2a. What are you doing to ensure the nutritional value of food boxes?

Answer. A primary driver of the emphasis on combination boxes for the next round of solicitations is the need to provide a nutritionally balanced food box. USDA has specified a certain amount of food in each category of product as illustrated in the excerpted solicitation language below.

[b.] Contents of boxes are limited to the items described herein.

c. Boxes with a net weight ranging from 30–40 lbs are required.

d. Boxes must contain, at a minimum;

1) Fresh Fruit and vegetable (F&V) content:

i. 2–4 lbs. of root vegetables such as potatoes, yams, carrots, onions, etc.

ii. 2–4 lbs. of fruits with longer storage life such as stone fruits, citrus, apples, or melons.

iii. 1 or 2 locally grown fruit or vegetable items, as available, and if none available, add additional items of vendors choice or increase the fruit or vegetables to meet a minimum F&V weight range of 10 to 12lbs.

2) Dairy content:

i. 5–6 lbs of at least 2 dairy items including at least one from group A and one from group B plus the equivalent of 1 gal of milk (2 percent or whole)

Group A	Group B
Cheddar Cheese Swiss Cheese Pepperjack Cheese Mozzarella Cheese	Cottage Cheese Cream Cheese Yogurt Butter Sour Cream

3) Meat and Egg or Egg Products (meat must be pre-cooked) content:

i. 5–6 lbs of at least 2 pre-cooked frozen or refrigerated meat items. No more than 1 lb. of lunch meat item is permitted.

4) Meat and dairy must have combined weight of at least 10 lbs

5) *Fluid milk or other temperature sensitive items may be provided either physically in the box or provided simultaneously with the other box contents (for the purposes of delivery confirmation and invoicing, all the required components are considered a single box, even if delivered simultaneously outside the box). All the materials specified above must be given simultaneously to an end-user. The contractor is responsible for ensuring appropriate packaging[ . . . ]**

Question 2b. Why have frozen fruits and vegetables, which are often harvested from the same fields as fresh produce and have the same nutritional content, excluded from this program? Does USDA plan to incorporate these products into the Farmers to Families Food Box Program in the future?

Answer. At the time of program development, the fresh produce, dairy, chicken and pork industries were negatively impacted by COVID-19 and subsequently selected as the product categories for the program. Fresh produce farmers in particular were impacted as product was being left in the field to rot as distributors lost their traditional restaurant and hotel business.

Other USDA purchase programs outside of the Farmers to Families Food Box Program are having a positive impact on the frozen produce industry. USDA purchases a significant amount of frozen product each year with Section 32 and other funds for distribution to food banks and other outlets.

Question 3. When contracts are canceled for various reasons, is the money allocated to that contract reallocated to distributors in the same region? For example, if a contract in California was canceled, is the unspent money reallocated to another distributor in the Western Region?

Answer. USDA collects and displays in map, chart and other formats data illustrating coverage of the box program. USDA knows at any time how many boxes, what kind of boxes, and the value of boxes delivered to each state and territory. Utilizing this data as well as continual feedback from governmental entities, industry groups as well as nonprofit organizations, USDA is continuing to develop plans and execute contracts to help better serve under-served areas. For example, to date, 16 contractors have been added to the program and have delivered an extra 2.849 million boxes to under-served areas such as Maine, Alaska and North Dakota that had previously received few or none. There are currently 20 contractors serving CA alone with others covering the rest of the West Coast.

Questions Submitted by Hon. Chellie Pingree, a Representative in Congress from Maine

Question 1. Many food banks have existing relationships with local farmers. In Maine, some food pantries have gone from having no fresh produce to an oversupply, as boxes arrive at the same time as product from local farmers.

What changes will you make in the next round of the program to ensure that the food boxes are better complementing these existing partnerships?

Answer. For the third round of solicitations the Department has made a decision to refine the program to include more of an emphasis on food insecurity and nutrition and less on surplus removal. The delivery record of almost 70 million boxes as of Aug. 21 in the first two rounds of solicitations is a testament to the strength of the existing network of contractor and nonprofit relationships. However, to further strengthen this network USDA is expecting offerors to have a more robust relationship established with nonprofit recipients. Offerors must provide a written and signed agreement between themselves and the nonprofit (if a subcontracted nonprofit is part of the offerors supply chain). At a minimum, the agreement must confirm that a mutually agreed to delivery schedule and approach have been agreed upon. The agreement must explain how the two parties intend to ensure last mile delivery and to avoid delivering product that may not be needed.

Offerors are required to identify and explain the distribution plan for their food boxes; this would include the scope and extent of subcontracts (including any potential nonprofit agreements). The prime contractor is solely responsible for ensuring truck to trunk model, last mile delivery and aspects pertaining to means testing.

Question 2. The Farmers to Families Food Box Program was intended to divert food that would otherwise be wasted due to supply chain disruptions and processing bottlenecks to families in need. However, it doesn't seem that USDA has a mechanism to help distributors identify this soon-to-be wasted food, or to assist farmers with excess supply in finding a contracted distributor.

Did USDA provide any guidance to approved contractors on the products they should purchase in order to minimize food waste? If not, why not?

Answer. During the planning stages of the food box program, USDA staff consulted with numerous trade associations, companies and other stakeholder groups to identify agricultural products that were in oversupply due to supply chain disruptions. As a result, requirements were developed for boxes to contain a variety of fruits and vegetables, milk, other dairy products, pork and chicken.

Question 2a. If a farmer has excess product, who should they contact at USDA to be matched with a buyer for this program?

Answer. USDA has posted a complete list of contractors to its website to enable farmers to reach out to establish business connections.

Question 3. Food bank representatives testified at the hearing that some of the boxes were assembled in ways that contributed to food waste. For example, onions packed with melons resulted in the contents of the boxes quickly rotting.

What new guidance will you provide to contractors in the next round to ensure that the food purchased for this program is not wasted?

Answer. Recipient organizations have been instructed to not accept delivery of boxes containing product of low quality. USDA contracting staff occasionally receive complaints and immediately follow up with the contractor to remedy the situation.

In addition, the government reserves the right to perform quality assurance at source; source includes, but is not limited to, contractor's manufacturing facility, packaging facility, warehouse, in-house laboratory, subcontractor's facilities, etc. USDA has exercised this right in a number of situations to ensure the quality of boxes being provided through the program.

Question 4. You mentioned that USDA collects data on the nonprofits that receive the food boxes but does not currently provide this data publicly.

If a family in need would like to receive a food box, how should they find which nonprofits are distributing them in their community?

Answer. USDA maintains a list of nonprofit recipients to facilitate confirmation of delivery. At this time, USDA does not have a matching mechanism for individual recipients to find details about food box distribution events. Since contractors have the most readily available schedule and nonprofit contact, recipients are being directed to the list on our website.

Question 5. You testified at the hearing that USDA had not rejected any invoices for food boxes provided under this program.

How many invoices has USDA now received to date? How many have been paid? How many have been rejected?

Answer. As of August 21, USDA has received 105,925 invoices for payment. A little over 730 have been rejected for further review for a variety of reasons, including incomplete supporting documentation. Payment will be made only upon the submission of an invoice documenting evidence of delivery and adherence to the contractual requirements.

Question Submitted by Hon. Jim Hagedorn, a Representative in Congress from Minnesota

Question. Under Secretary Ibach, thank you for spending time with the Committee last week in defense of the Farmers to Families Food Box Program. While MN and my district have benefitted from the program, our dairy processing industry has faced some issues with procuring raw materials. It seems there is an unintended consequence to the surge of cheddar and mozzarella purchases by USDA. The milk market itself, which cheese companies in my district rely on to plan, has seen unprecedented swings in pricing over the past 3 months. An example, block cheddar went from a low in April of $1.00 to an all-time high of $3.00 in July. The last time there was a spike like that was in 2014, and July's price is 22% higher than 2014. On the flip side, there are other cheeses such as swiss, jack cheese, and aged cheeses that are in oversupply.

Would USDA consider diversifying their cheese purchases in upcoming solicitations to give the market time to correct itself?

Answer. Yes, USDA has expanded the allowable cheese products in the food box for Round 3 solicitations given ever evolving market developments to include . . .

Dairy Box:

1. 8–12 lbs. of at least 2 dairy items including at least one from group A and one from group B plus the equivalent of 1–2 gallons, of milk (2 percent or whole)
2. Total Box Weight including Fluid Milk must be between 17–21 lbs.

Trade Damage Estimation for the Market Facilitation Program and Food Purchase and Distribution Program

U.S. Department of Agriculture, Office of the Chief Economist
September 13, 2018

Executive Summary

This paper outlines the methodology USDA employed to estimate the level of gross trade damage caused by retaliatory tariffs to U.S. agricultural exports by commodity. Those estimates were used to determine the Market Facilitation Program (MFP) payment rates and the value of commodities to be purchased under the Food Purchase and Distribution Program (FPDP). USDA announced (<https://www.usda.gov/media/press-releases/2018/07/24/usda-assists-farmers-impacted-unjustified-retaliation>) these two programs as part of a trade mitigation package on July 24, 2018. For more details about the trade mitigation programs, visit <https://www.farmers.gov/>.

Rulemaking and related documents, including the Cost Benefit Analysis (CBA), for the Market Facilitation Program can be found at <https://www.regulations.gov/docket?D=CCC-2018-0002>.

Trade Damage Estimation for the Market Facilitation Program and Food Purchase and Distribution Program

USDA developed an estimate of gross trade damages to set commodity payment rates and purchase levels for the trade mitigation package announced on July 24, 2018.<sup>1</sup> This is the approach often employed in adjudicating trade dispute cases. For example, in the U.S.-Country of Origin Labeling dispute case, World Trade Organization (WTO) arbitrators awarded trade damages of approximately $1 billion to Canada and Mexico based on the gross trade value of their lost livestock exports to the United States due to the COOL measure.

The following explanation describes the steps taken to calculate the trade damage estimates for the 2018 retaliatory tariffs by Canada, China, the European Union (EU), Mexico, and Turkey (for a more detailed discussion of the model equations, see Annex 1).

- Step 1: Trade value without the retaliatory tariff from a particular country (Exports1).
- Step 2: Trade value with the retaliatory tariff from a particular country (Exports2).
- Step 3: Take the difference of the two as the “trade damage” due to the tariff (Delta).<sup>2</sup>

For Step 1, we use actual trade in 2017 as a proxy for the expected value of trade without the retaliatory tariff (or Exports1) using import data from Canada, China, the EU, Mexico, and Turkey.

From above, we cannot observe the Delta from trade data yet. Typically, a WTO dispute is filed, and time lapses and allows the observation of lower trade following a disputed measure, but implementing a timely program to respond to retaliatory tariffs did not allow for multi-year data collection. Therefore, for Step 2, we use a global trade model to estimate what the value of trade is expected to be after the imposition of the tariffs (or Exports2).

The model estimates bilateral trade flows for each of the commodities with assessed tariffs. As a general rule, a given tariff will increase the cost of that commodity in the importing country, leading to lower demand for the commodity from the exporting country. This method reflects the level of the tariffs and the sensitivity of the retaliatory partner's import demand to the higher prices caused by the additional tariff. Availability of substitute suppliers on the one hand (for the retaliating importer) and substitute demanders on the other hand (for the U.S. exporter) are also reflected in this approach.

Subtracting Step (1) from Step (2) provides a measure of gross trade damage. Note, the gross trade damage only reflects direct export losses due to the retaliatory tariff imposed on the U.S. commodity. Indirect or secondary effects from the tariff, such as cross-commodity effects are not reflected in the gross trade damage estimate.

The Food Purchase and Distribution Program's announced purchase values were set at the same level of gross trade damage to each affected commodity, using the trade model outlined above and reflecting the amount of commodity surplus resulting from the gross trade losses.

In determining the amount of assistance that USDA would make available to producers to facilitate marketing of crops affected by these retaliatory tariffs and to assist in the development of alternative markets under the Market Facilitation Program (MFP), USDA divided that estimated trade damage level by 2017 crop year production to calculate a per unit rate. We used 2017 trade and production data because 2018 data are not final and are months away from being complete. Moreover, the 2018 trade data will show a biased impact because of the tariffs. Because the goal of the MFP is to provide assistance to producers of commodities that have been significantly impacted by the retaliatory tariffs, the MFP per unit rate is applied to a producer's actual 2018 production levels to generate a producer's total payment amount.

The retaliatory tariffs may be removed at some point through trade negotiations and other factors may occur that ultimately help mitigate the trade damage to U.S. producers, creating the need for an interim step to calculate payments. That interim step led USDA, in consultation with the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and other White House offices, to split a producer's 2018 production into two parts. The first part was announced on September 4th and payment calculation follow the steps above. The second part will be announced, if necessary, in December and may account for other factors, such as new tariff levels, regional basis effects, or other market conditions that may have mitigated some of the trade damages calculated above.

MFP example 1: Sorghum

Step 1: In 2017, China imported $956 million of sorghum from the United States.

Step 2: With additional 25% tariff, China is estimated to import $642 million from the United States.

Step 3: Estimated gross trade damage = $642 million – $956 million = – $314 million
Initial MFP rate = $314 million/364 million bushels = $0.86/bu.

MFP example 2: Corn

Step 1: In 2017, China and EU combined imported $309 million of corn from the United States.

Step 2: With additional 25% tariff from both countries, the combined imports from the United States is estimated to be $117 million.

Step 3: Estimated gross trade damage = $117 million – $309 million = – $192 million.

Initial MFP rate = $192 million/14.6 billion bushels = $0.01/bu.

Annex 1: Trade Model Formulas

USDA estimated the impacts of retaliatory tariffs using a version of the Global Simulation Model (GSIM). GSIM is a standard Armington partial equilibrium model of trade developed by Francois and Hall (2009).<sup>3</sup> The model assumes that products are differentiated by country, and permits the assessment of tariff changes at the product level. Global bilateral trade flows are modeled according to basic supply and demand relationships, given an initial equilibrium in a base year. The model solves for a new market equilibrium following the imposition of the retaliatory tariff, where prices clear excess supply and demand conditions to adjust to changes in global bilateral trade flows.

The model calculates the expected effect on imports of U.S. products by retaliating trading partners. For example, lost U.S. exports to China due to a retaliatory tariff imposed on product  $i$  is calculated as

$$M_{i,(US,CHN)} - M_{i,(US,CHN)}^T$$

In the model,  $M_{i,(US,CHN)}$  is set to actual import levels in the base year where the market is assumed to be in equilibrium; that amount is taken as the level of imports without the retaliatory tariff. Given a tariff, the model simulates a new global equilibrium, where  $M_{i,(US,CHN)}^T$  is the expected level of Chinese imports of product  $i$  from the United States with the retaliatory tariff.

<sup>3</sup>Francois, Joseph, and H. Keith Hall. Global simulation analysis of industry-level trade policy: The GSIM model. Institute for International and Development Economics, 2009.

GSIM is a global model and includes bilateral import demand equations for multiple countries/regions. In the model, Chinese import demand of product  $i$  from the U.S. with the retaliatory tariff would be represented as follows:

$$M_{i,(US,CHN)}^{\tau} = \left[ \frac{\alpha_{i,(US,CHN)}}{P_{i,(US)}^* (1 + \tau_{i,(USA,CHN)})} \right]^{\sigma} P_{i,(CHN)}^{\sigma-1} E_{i,(CHN)}$$

Where:

- $\tau_{i,(U.S.,CHN)}$  is China's additional retaliatory tariff on U.S. product  $i$ .
- $P_{i,(U.S.)}^*$  is the U.S. export price for product  $i$  and is normalized to one in the initial equilibrium without the tariff. Given the retaliatory tariff, prices are solved iteratively in the model to clear global supply and demand.
- $\sigma$  is the constant elasticity of substitution for product  $i$ . These are sourced from GTAP and Virginia Tech.
- $\alpha_{i,(U.S.,CHN)}$  is a preference parameter that is calibrated in the model to match the initial equilibrium.
- $P_{i,(CHN)}$  is the composite price in China for product  $i$ . It represents the overall prices faced by Chinese consumers. Given a retaliatory tariff, prices adjust not only for U.S. exports but for all modeled countries. These new prices are solved iteratively in the model.
- $E_{i,(CHN)}$  is China's total expenditure on product  $i$ , under the new equilibrium with the retaliatory tariff. It is calibrated to match expenditures in the initial equilibrium.  $E_{i,(CHN)}^{\tau}$  also depends upon the composite price index  $P_{i,(CHN)}$  and the composite demand elasticity and is solved under the new equilibrium.

The above equation is solved in a full system of equations modeling global trade that includes bilateral import demand functions of all countries/regions in the model along with supply functions. An iterative algorithm is used to find the set of prices that ensures that total quantity demanded equals total quantity supplied in all markets simultaneously. Once the price vector is solved, the expected change in bilateral trade flows resulting from the tariff is calculated.

The model is calibrated using 2016 data and employs 2017 trade data for the base year. Trade damages are calculated by the following formula.

$$\text{Trade damages} = \frac{M_{i,(US,CHN)} - M_{i,(US,CHN)}^{\tau}}{M_{i,(US,CHN)}} \times M_{i,(US,CHN)}^{2017}$$

Where  $\frac{M_{i,(US,CHN)} - M_{i,(US,CHN)}^{\tau}}{M_{i,(US,CHN)}}$  is the expected percentage reduction of China's imports of product  $i$  from U.S. producers, due to its imposition of retaliatory tariffs and  $M_{i,(US,CHN)}^{2017}$  is the actual reported value of Chinese imports of product  $i$ , from the United States during 2017. Under this formula, trade damages are limited to the level of China's imports of the U.S. product that occurred in 2017.

Trade Damage Estimation for the 2019 Market Facilitation Program and Food Purchase and Distribution Program

U.S. Department of Agriculture, Office of the Chief Economist
August 22, 2019

Executive Summary

This paper outlines the methodology USDA employed to estimate the level of gross trade damage caused by retaliatory tariffs to U.S. agricultural exports by commodity. Those estimates were used to determine the 2019 Market Facilitation Program (MFP) payment rates and the value of commodities to be targeted for purchase under the 2019 Food Purchase and Distribution Program (FPDP). The paper also outlines the formulas employed to calculate MFP county rates for non-specialty crops, as well as national MFP rates for specialty crops, hogs, and milk. USDA announced details on those programs on July 25, 2019. For more details about the trade mitigation programs, visit <https://www.farmers.gov/manage/mfp>. Rule-making and related documents, including the Cost Benefit Analysis (CBA), for trade mitigation programs can be found at <https://www.regulations.gov/docket?D=CCC-2019-0003>.

Trade Damage Estimation for the 2019 Market Facilitation Program (MFP) and Purchase Targets for the Food Purchase and Distribution Program (FPDP)

On May 23, 2019, the Secretary of Agriculture announced (<https://www.usda.gov/media/press-releases/2019/05/23/usda-announces-support-farmers-impacted-unjustified-retaliation-and>) that USDA would take several actions to assist farmers in response to continued retaliation and trade disruption. President Trump authorized USDA to provide up to $16 billion in programs, in line with the estimated impacts of retaliatory tariffs on U.S. agricultural producers and other trade disruptions. Further details of the 2019 trade mitigation program were announced (<https://www.usda.gov/media/press-releases/2019/07/25/usda-announces-details-support-package-farmers>) on July 25, 2019.

In 2018, USDA developed an estimate of gross trade damages for U.S. commodities affected by retaliatory tariffs to establish commodity payment rates for the Market Facilitation Program (MFP) and purchase targets for the Food Purchase and Distribution Program (FPDP). On September 13, 2018, USDA provided a detailed accounting of how those gross damage estimates were calculated.<sup>1</sup>

For the 2018 and the 2019 trade mitigation programs, USDA defined economic losses due to the trade actions in terms of gross trade damages. Gross trade damages were defined as the total amount of expected export sales lost to the retaliatory partner due to the additional tariffs. This metric provides one assessment of economic loss, and there are other forms of economic injury that could be measured. Gross trade damage contributes to the economic cost to the producer to adjust to the disrupted markets, manage surplus commodities, and expand and develop new markets, consistent with the design of the MFP. Further, export sale losses provide the most direct link to the retaliatory action(s) and is the single estimate that most comprehensively accounts for the full scale of trade impacts. In part due to these reasons, it is often employed in World Trade Organization (WTO) arbitrations assessing the level of nullification or impairment resulting from a measure found to be WTO-inconsistent and is the approach applied here.

For the 2019 program, USDA employed the same methodology to estimate gross trade damages, using the same trade model (Global Simulation Analysis of Industry-Level Trade Policy) documented in 2018. That model simulates the expected reduction in U.S. exports to the retaliatory partner market. Gross trade damages are calculated as the difference in bilateral trade with the tariff and the baseline (without the tariff).

As with the 2018 trade mitigation programs, the gross trade damage estimate is the basis for developing the 2019 MFP payment rates, which are detailed in this paper, as well as FPDP purchase targets. The 2019 programs are designed to aid producers in the disposition of surplus commodities; to aid in the expansion of domestic markets; or to aid in the development of new and additional markets and uses. Those programs are intended for crops or commodities that are negatively impacted by trade actions of foreign governments. Specifically, the 2019 MFP payments may provide producers with an opportunity to adjust to delays in the marketing of their crops and to costs associated with reorienting their sales to new and additional markets.

Changes in Retaliatory Tariffs

The gross trade damage estimate for 2019 takes into account changes in retaliatory tariffs since the original damage estimate used for the 2018 trade mitigation programs. There have been five changes to the retaliatory tariffs applied to U.S. agricultural products since the 2018 damages were calculated:

- (a) On September 24, 2018, China imposed additional tariffs ranging from five to ten percent on U.S. goods, which were applied to $3 billion of agricultural products not previously impacted by China's retaliatory tariffs. Given the timing of China's action, these tariffs were not included in the trade damage analysis for the 2018 trade mitigation programs.
- (b) On May 17, 2019, Mexico and Canada agreed to lift all retaliatory tariffs related to the U.S.-imposed Section 232 steel and aluminum tariffs. These tariffs covered a broad range of agricultural and food products, including U.S. pork and dairy.
- (c) On May 21, 2019, Turkey reduced retaliatory tariffs assessed on U.S. products by half in response to changes in U.S.-imposed Section 232 tariffs on steel and aluminum from Turkey. Turkey's retaliatory tariffs include some U.S. tree nuts and rice.
- (d) On June 1, 2019, China increased retaliatory tariffs assessed on the U.S. on almost $2 billion of agricultural goods by an additional five to 15 percent. This new list includes many U.S. horticultural and specialty products.
- (e) On June 16, 2019, India imposed retaliatory tariffs ranging from 2 to 25 percent on U.S. apples, rice, almonds, chickpeas, and other commodities. India had announced retaliatory tariffs on U.S. goods in July 2018 but delayed implementation until June 2019.

The model commodity coverage was expanded to include the broader range of U.S. agricultural products affected by retaliation, as well as the increase in (China) or implementation of (India) retaliatory tariffs. The model scenarios were also revised to remove the retaliatory tariffs that Canada and Mexico lifted, as well as the reduction in Turkey's tariffs.

Base Year Changes Account for Long-Standing Distortionary Policies and Longer-Term Impacts

For the 2018 trade mitigation programs, USDA employed 2017 trade data as the base year for projecting trade damages. 2017 was used as the 2018 programs' base year because it was the most recent full year of trade data available and reflected trade levels prior to the imposition of retaliatory tariffs starting in April 2018 for some agricultural products.<sup>2</sup>

For the 2019 trade mitigation programs, USDA employed a longer time-series to estimate gross trade damages, by surveying trends in U.S. bilateral trade over a 10 year period (2009–2018). For some of the commodities affected by tariffs, 2017 was not the most representative base year on which to conduct the trade damage analysis. The 10 year period for determining a basis for the evaluating the tariff allows estimates to account for other contributing variables, such as longstanding trade barriers imposed by China and other countries that have affected U.S. exports, as well as the longer-term impact of prolonged retaliatory tariffs.<sup>3</sup>

We included 2018 in this time-series, given that for some commodities, new market access had only just begun prior to the implementation of retaliatory tariffs. For example, in mid-2017, China and the United States agreed to improve market access for U.S. beef exports to China.<sup>4</sup> U.S. beef exports began to increase in late 2017 through the first half of 2018 before declining and leveling-off. U.S. beef had been banned from China since 2003, and prior to that ban, the United States was the country's largest beef supplier. Therefore, it is reasonable to expect that, but for the retaliatory tariffs that China imposed on U.S. beef in July 2018, U.S. beef exports to China would have continued to increase at a similar (if not higher) level as observed in the first half of 2018. Using 2017 as a base year does not fully capture the new market access opportunities for U.S. beef.

Other commodities have faced multi-year market access barriers into China and other countries that have implemented retaliatory tariffs. In recent years, unwarranted regulatory and trade-distorting measures have hindered U.S. corn exports to some of these markets, making the 2017 base year less representative of U.S. export levels.<sup>5</sup> Moreover, products made from corn, such as distillers dried grains and solubles (DDGS) and ethanol have been adversely impacted by China's earlier decisions to unilaterally increase tariffs (ethanol) and impose anti-dumping and countervailing duties (DDGS).<sup>6</sup> Other products facing multi-year market access barriers include poultry, rice, and wheat.

2019 MFP Payments and Payment Rates for Non-Specialty Crops

Given the timing of the 2019 Market Facilitation Program (MFP) during the crop year, USDA developed a single rate per acre in each county for MFP-eligible non-specialty crops, which include select non-specialty commodities both directly and indirectly affected by the trade dispute, in order to minimize potential distortions.

Payments to each producer are limited to:

- 2018 Farm Service Agency-certified planted acres;
- 2018 Farm Service Agency-certified prevented from planting acres (of non-specialty crops); and
- 2018 expiring Conservation Reserve Program acreage.

The specific commodity rates that form the basis of the county rate are derived from the gross trade damage estimates. Commodity rates are set as the estimated trade damages divided by the average volume of production for 2015–17 reported by NASS.

<sup>2</sup>In April 2018, China was the first trading partner to impose retaliatory tariffs on U.S. agriculture in response to Section 232 tariffs on aluminum and steel. Nearly all retaliatory tariffs—including those imposed by China in response to actions under Section 301 and Section 232, as well as those imposed by the EU, Canada, Mexico, and Turkey in response to actions under Section 232, were in place by July 2018. India was the only country that announced but did not immediately apply retaliatory tariffs on U.S. agricultural products in 2018.

<sup>3</sup>To be clear, the model estimates the impact of the retaliatory tariff(s) on a given commodity.

<sup>4</sup>On June 12, 2017, USDA announced that it had reached an agreement with Chinese officials on the final details of a protocol to allow the United States to begin exporting beef to China. See <https://www.usda.gov/media/press-releases/2017/06/12/us-china-finalize-details-send-us-beef-china>.

<sup>5</sup>See the USTR Foreign Trade Barriers Reports and the USTR Trade Policy Agenda and Annual Reports for more details. The most recent reports can be accessed at <https://ustr.gov/about-us/policy-offices/press-office/reports-and-publications/2019>.

The county payment rates<sup>7</sup> were based on historical fixed average area and yields as discussed below. The total potential payment amount for non-specialty crops is the eligible area multiplied by the non-specialty county rate per acre. This total payment amount is subject to limitations further discussed under the “Total MFP Payments” heading, beginning on page 7 of the report.

Non-specialty crops commodity rates

Non-specialty crops	Commodity Rate	Units
Soybeans	$2.05	BU
Cotton	$0.26	LB
Sorghum	$1.69	BU
Corn	$0.14	BU
Wheat	$0.41	BU
Rice	$0.63	CWT
Peanuts	$0.01	LB
Lentils	$3.99	CWT
Peas	$0.85	CWT
Alfalfa Hay	$2.81	TONS
Dried Beans	$8.22	CWT
Chickpeas	$1.48	CWT

Example of non-specialty crop county rate calculation

County A has planted an average of 20,000 acres of corn, 10,000 acres of soybeans, and 1,000 acres of barley. The historical average county yield is 180 bu/acre for corn, 60 bu/acre for soybeans, and 50 bu/acre for barley. The commodity rates under the 2019 MFP for corn and soybeans are $0.14/bu and $2.05/bu, respectively. Since there are no retaliatory tariffs on U.S. barley, the payment rate for barley is $0.00/bu.

County A's payment rate is calculated as follows:

Step 1: For each crop in a county, multiply fixed historical acres, fixed historical yields, and the payment rate per unit for each eligible non-specialty MFP crop

- County A Corn Damage: 20,000 acres  $\times$  180 bu/acre  $\times$  \$0.14/bu = \$504,000
- County A Soybeans Damage: 10,000 acres  $\times$  60 bu/acre  $\times$  \$2.05/bu = \$1,230,000
- County A Barley Damage: 1,000 acres  $\times$  50 bu/acre  $\times$  \$0.00/bu = \$0

Step 2: Sum all calculated values from Step 1

- $504,000 + $1,230,000 + $0 = $1,734,000 in total non-specialty crop damage

Step 3: Sum the acres across all eligible non-specialty MFP crops

- 20,000 + 10,000 + 1,000 = 31,000 acres

Step 4: Calculate the county payment rate per acre by dividing the result of Step 2 by the result of Step 3

- $1,734,000/31,000 = $56/acre non-specialty crop county payment

Acres reported to the Farm Service Agency between 2015–2018 are used to calculate the historical fixed acres for each crop within a county. The 2015–2017 historical fixed county yield is calculated using the following cascade:

1. RMA county yield,
2. NASS county yield, if the RMA county yield is unavailable,
3. RMA T-yield, if the both the RMA county yield and NASS county yield are unavailable,
4. NASS state yield, if (1)–(3) are unavailable, and
5. NASS national yield, if (1)–(4) are unavailable.

Prevent Plant

2019 planting was characterized by substantial rainfall and cool weather that delayed planting of crops across the United States. Producers prevented from planting a 2019 non-specialty crop, but who planted a CCC-approved cover crop, with the potential to be harvested, qualify for a $15 per acre payment.<sup>8</sup>

Cups and Caps

The county payment rates per acre are cupped and capped at $15 per acre and $150 per acre, respectively.

2019 MFP Payments and Payment Rates for Hogs and Milk

Hogs: 2019 MFP payments for hog producers are based on live hog inventory on a day selected by the applicant between April 1, 2019 and May 15, 2019. Eligibility for 2019 MFP payments is again based upon independent ownership of the hogs; persons/legal entities that are contracted to grow hogs are not eligible for 2019 MFP.

Calculate the per unit payment rate for hogs:

- Step 1: Calculate the gross trade damage estimate
- Step 2: Subtract the FPDP purchase amount from the gross trade damage estimate to calculate the portion not covered by FPDP
- Step 3: Divide the value from Step 2 by the number of hogs reported in the 2019 March inventory report to calculate the MFP payment rate per hog

Milk: 2019 MFP payments for dairy producers are based on historical production, the same as what was reported for participation in the USDA Dairy Margin Coverage Program or its predecessor, the Margin Protection Program for Dairy. The ownership share for milk will be as reported to FSA for the aforementioned programs for dairy operations that were in business as of June 1, 2019. Dairy operations that were not in business as of June 1, 2019, are ineligible for MFP.

Calculate the per unit payment rate for milk:

- Step 1: Calculate the gross trade damage estimate
- Step 2: Subtract the FPDP purchase amount from the gross trade damage estimate to calculate the portion not covered by FPDP
- Step 3: Divide the value from Step 2 by 2017 MFP production to get the MFP payment rate per cwt of milk

Hog and Milk MFP Rates

Product	Trade Damage estimate minus FPDP2 targeted purchase amount	Units	Production	MFP rate
	(in million $)	units	(in million units)	$/units
Hogs	$831	head	74	$11
Dairy	$354	cwt	1,761	$0.20

2019 MFP Payments and Payment Rates for Specialty Crops

Similar to the 2018 MFP, producers of an expanded list of specialty crops will be eligible for program payments. 2019 MFP payments for specialty crops are based on 2019 acres of fruit or nut bearing plants. For specialty fruits and ginseng, the payment rate is multiplied by the average yields listed on <https://www.farmers.gov/manage/mfp>.

Calculate the payment rate for specialty tree nuts:

- Step 1: Calculate and sum all gross trade damage estimates for all specialty tree nuts
- Step 2: Sum bearing acres for all eligible tree nuts using NASS Census data for 2017
- Step 3: Divide total gross trade damages from Step 1 by total acres from Step 2 to get the national tree nut rate ($/acre)

Calculate the payment rate for specialty fruits:

- Step 1: For each specialty fruit, calculate the gross trade damage estimate

<sup>8</sup> <https://www.usda.gov/media/press-releases/2019/07/25/usda-announces-details-support-package-farmers>. USDA is not legally authorized to make Market Facilitation Program payments to producers for acreage that is not planted. However, cover crops planted with the purpose of providing animal feed or other marketing purpose are eligible for a minimum payment of $15 per acre.

Step 2: Calculate total production of the fruit crop using 2017 Census acreage and RMA yields

Step 3: Divide the trade damage estimate from Step 1 by average production from Step 2 to get the per unit payment rate ($/lb)

Step 1: Calculate the gross trade damage estimate

Step 2: Calculate estimated ginseng production using 2017 Census data on ginseng acreage and USDA estimate of average yields using industry and academic sources

Step 3: Divide the trade damage estimate from Step 1 by estimated production from Step 2 to get the per unit payment rate ($/lb)

Specialty Crop MFP Rates

Specialty Products	Trade Damage Estimate	MFP Rates
Tree Nuts *	$318	$146/acre
Sweet Cherries (fresh)	$111	$0.17/lb
Grapes (fresh)	$70	$0.03/lb
Cranberries	$28	$0.03/lb
Ginseng	$6	$2.85/lb

Total MFP Payments

The total payments to producers are subject to payment limitations, AGI eligibility criteria, and adjustments to the payment structure.

2019 MFP payments will be provided in up to three installments. The first payment will be guaranteed, and is the higher of 50 percent of the total calculated payment or $15 per acre. If CCC determines that a second payment is warranted, it will be up to 75 percent of the total calculated payment less the amount received in the first payment and the second payment period will begin in November 2019. If CCC determines that a final payment is warranted, it will be for the remaining amount of the total calculated payment, unless otherwise adjusted by CCC, and the last payment period will begin in January 2020.

For 2019 MFP payments, there will be three separate payment limitations for each person or legal entity:<sup>9</sup>

1. $250,000 for eligible non-specialty crops;
2. $250,000 for eligible specialty crops; and
3. $250,000 for hogs and milk.
4. No person or legal entity can receive more than $500,000 under 2019 MFP.

Last, if the average adjusted gross income of a person or legal entity is greater than $900,000, the person or entity is not eligible to receive a MFP payment unless at least 75 percent of the adjusted gross income of the person or entity is derived from farming, ranching, or forestry related activities. The relevant years used to calculate average AGI are the 3 consecutive tax years immediately preceding the year before the payment year, which will be the crop year, or the marketing year for livestock or dairy. For example, for 2019 the relevant years to calculate AGI are the 2015, 2016 and 2017 tax years.

For more information on the MFP program, please go to <https://www.farmers.gov/manage/mfp>. Rulemaking and related documents, including the Cost Benefit Analysis (CBA), for trade mitigation programs can be found at <https://www.regulations.gov/docket?D=CCC-2019-0003>.
